"UP, UP, AND AWAY on that beautiful ferris wheel..." With the exception of a couple hard, but brief, downpours of rain on Monday, the weather has been cooperating beautifully for the 45th annual Garrett County Agriculture Fair, in full swing this week at the fairgrounds in McHenry. An admission fee of $6 affords the fairgoer unlimited riding on the midway, plus free admission to exhibit halls, competitions, barns, and all live performances on the fairgrounds stage. There is also the usual wide variety of food items, the purchase of which benefits a host of local service and charitable organizations. The gates open at 8 a.m. each day and the fair will continue through Saturday evening. Photo by John McEwen.

Grantsville Man Takes Own Life After Gun Fight

A Grantsville man was pronounced dead outside a restaurant in Confluence, Pa., Sunday after he shot himself with a .22-caliber handgun following a domestic incident in the restaurant.

According to the Pennsylvania State Police, Gary W. Rodeheaver, 36, brought the gun to Topo's Restaurant and threatened his estranged wife, Kelly R. Rodeheaver, 36, a waitress at the restaurant. He reportedly held both Mrs. Rodeheaver and the manager of the restaurant, George K. Fisher, 41, at gunpoint. Fisher then escaped and went to his vehicle from which he obtained a 9mm handgun and returned to the restaurant.

Shots were exchanged between Rodeheaver and Fisher, during which Rodeheaver exited the restaurant. He was found soon afterward outside with the fatal gunshot wound, thought originally to have been caused by Fisher, but later determined to be self-inflicted.

Rodeheaver had reportedly attempted suicide at least once before.

No one else was injured in the incident, which remains under investigation by the Pennsylvania State Police.

A complete obituary for Rodeheaver can be found on page A-6 of this newspaper.

"IS IT MY TURN YET?" might have been on the mind of Jessica Simpson when this photo was taken, or perhaps on the mind of her horse Squeak, as the pair waited to perform in the annual horse show at the 45th annual Garrett County Agriculture Fair on Sunday afternoon. The show is always among the kick-off events for the fair, which is under way this week at the fairgounds in McHenry. Complete results of the show have not yet been received, but a number of other photos of the participants appear on the farm pages of this issue. The photos were supplied courtesy of Sandra Zakaluzny.

Mental Health Providers Still Trying To Work Out Conflict

In an effort to further mend the rift between local mental health care providers over the introduction of an out-of-county agency, Patricia Yoder, director of Mountain Top Mental Health Associates (Garrett County's core services agency), met with several providers and the commissioners Tuesday. She said the meeting was her "personal attempt" to improve communication between her core agency and the county's long-standing providers.

MTMHA became the center of controversy this summer when representatives of local mental health providers, including Lighthouse and the Garrett County Health Department's mental health services department, expressed concern and anger over the core services' decision to enter into a contract with the Washington County Mental Health Center (WCMHC). The outside agency is being brought in to provide specialized children's services not previously offered in Garrett County.

Wisp Resort Expending $2.3 Mil. For Construction Projects, Trail Changes

The most extensive changes to the ski slopes of Wisp in 12 years have been in progress over the past few months, according to Bob Yaste, vice president of mountain operations, who is supervising the majority of the work.

"Not since the addition of the slopes on the East Ridge in 1987 have we been involved in a project of this magnitude," Yaste said. "We've never had this many different contractors on one project at one time, which has been a challenge."

This work on a lengthy list of projects began early this spring when the Garaventia CTEC Corp. of Salt Lake City, Utah, dismantled chairlift #4 and reinstalled it farther up the mountain. At the same time, CTEC extended chairlift #5 an additional 500 feet farther up the mountain. Finally, the company installed a new unloading terminal on chair #1 as well as new lift attendant unloading stations at all three lifts.

"Extending the length of chair #5 necessitated the moving of chair #4 that transports skiers from the East Ridge to the North Slope trails," Yaste reported. At the same time, chair #1 was due for a new unloading terminal. CTEC should complete their portion of the project within the month."

With the rearranging of chairlifts on the East Ridge came the elimination of an underutilized trail, Rabbit Run, and the addition of a new trail from Main Street to Eye Opener called Highline Pass. According to Jerry Geisler, who has skied Wisp for over 30 years, Highline Pass is a black diamond trail with a steep quick drop "that will rival the challenge of the Face."

"Rabbit Run didn't have much appeal to skiers, and the DC Development Group is better utilizing the acreage to create one of the most exciting new housing developments on the mountain called Boulder Ridge," Geisler said. "The views from these new home sites is spectacular." The Norm Hanline Excavating Company of Oakland has been contracted for the construction on the Boulder Ridge project.

Earthmoving continues on the new Bear Claw snow-tubing park near the base of the north slopes.

"The seven lane tube park will undoubtedly be the biggest news this winter," said Geisler. Highland Engineering as well as Frank Arnold Contractors, both from Oakland, have

DCL Property Owners' Final '01 Meeting Set

The final 2001 meeting of the membership of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owner's Association (DCLPOA) will be held on Aug. 25 at 8:30 a.m. at the Garrett 8 Cinemas. Roger W. Titus, president of the association, said this is a different location than usual for the membership meetings because the auditorium of Garrett Community College is unavailable on Aug. 25.

Titus also noted that the Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board will hold a public hearing on the proposed Deep Creek Lake Land Use and Recreation Plan at the same location, but in a different theater, beginning at 10 a.m. The president is urging all persons interested in Deep

Third Western Maryland Truck Show Scheduled

The third annual Western Maryland Truck Show (WMTS) will be held Aug. 25 and 26 at the Grantsville Community Park. The gates will open for visitors on both Saturday and Sunday at 7 a.m. Scheduled for the event are displays of the "big rigs," entertainment for children, live music, and a variety of food and craft vendors.

Coordinated by local resident Jim McFarland, the WMTS was started with the purpose of creating a family-oriented event that would include all members of the community. The proceeds from the event will benefit the Dove Center (Garrett County's domestic violence shelter and resource center), as well as other local charities.

On opening day, the Confluence Lions Club will serve a breakfast from 7 to 10 a.m., and a "Kids' Corner" and all crafts will begin at 10 a.m. The Grantsville Lions will host a chicken barbecue meal at noon.

Stellar Precision Components Machine Company To Expand Into Garrett Co.

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners announced last Thursday that a new business will soon be establishing operations in the county. Stellar Precision Components, a machining and fabrication facility currently located in Jeannette, Pa., will expand operations to a new 6,000-square-foot facility to be constructed at the Northern Garrett Industrial Park in Grantsville.

Stellar has agreed to employ 30 to 50 people over the next three years, the commissioners reported. The Maryland Economic Development Corporation (MEDCO) will construct and own the facility with financial assistance from the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED). MEDCO and DBED teamed up in a similar manner about two years ago to construct a 20,000-square-foot facility in the Northern Garrett Industrial Park to accommodate Merkle Response Services.

The commissioners reported that Stellar will [illegible] jobs paying up to $15 per hour, depending on experience and skill level, and benefits packages. Most of the positions to be created will require a high level of skill in the machinist trade. Mike Vucish, owner of Stellar Precision Components, reportedly intends to work with local education institutions to develop training and apprentice programs to encourage people to consider the machinist trade.

Vucish and his family own a vacation home at Deep Creek Lake and have apparently often frequented Garrett County over the past 12 years. Vucish said he has come to appreciate both the quality of life the area offers and the work ethic of the area's residents.

Vucish said Stellar's recent and projected growth requires expansion of its current operations and he is pleased that the expansion will take place in Garrett County. Transportation access and the Northern Gar-

Northern Rescue Squad Rescinds Decision To Purchase McHenry Site

After months of controversy surrounding the planned purchase of property in McHenry and possible closing of the Friendsville and Accident stations of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, members of that organization voted at a meeting Friday to abandon that plan, even though the squad will forfeit a $10,000 deposit on the previously contracted property.

The structure previously under contract is located at the intersection of U.S. Rt. 219 and Maryland Rt. 42 almost adjacent to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police. A number of improvements had already been made to the building in order to house the new station.

The original decision by the NGCRS board to purchase the property and then close the Friendsville and Accident stations sparked major criticism, particularly from residents and squad members in Friendsville.

"Ninety percent of the problem was a lack of communication," said member Terry Spear. "The board was proceeding in a direction that the majority of the members were not in favor of. We (the membership) were not given access to the contract until an open house this spring."

It was by a slim majority, 20-18, that the proposal was rescinded at Friday's meeting, but the membership also approved formation of a committee of five members who would look into the purchase of another piece of property in the McHenry area.

Spear said that the membership of the squad is not opposed to having a station in McHenry, but that the property should be acquired

Kitzmiller Man Sentenced For June Incidents

A Kitzmiller man who had been arrested on two consecutive days in June for alcohol-related charges was handed a 60-day jail term by Garrett County District Court judge Ralph M. Burnett during a recent court hearing.

Walter Lee Paugh, 48, was given a 30-day sentence for disorderly conduct stemming from a June 5 arrest by sheriff's deputies. He was apprehended at C.P. Martin store along Maryland Highway as he was harassing a store clerk over the purchase of alcohol and refusing to leave. The next day Paugh was arrested by a deputy who found him walking in the traffic lanes of Maryland Highway near Mtn. Lake Park while intoxicated. He was arrested on a charge of endangering public safety while intoxicated, and that charge also drew a 30-day jail sentence, consecutive to the disorderly conduct sentence.

In other district court news, a 19-year-old Grantsville man pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor theft charge stemming from an April incident in McHenry.

Ronald Eugene Mitchell was apprehended by Maryland State Police troopers shortly after he had taken part in the shoplifting of a car stereo receiver/CD player unit from the Pawn It Outlet shop. He had the unit in his possession as his car was stopped a short distance from the shop, and he was arrested at that time, according to the report. His guilty plea drew a 30-day sentence, all but four days of which were suspended, a $100 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service. An alleged accomplice in that incident, Vonn Aaron Snyder, 19, Grantsville, was not prosecuted on a misdemeanor theft charge.

Michael Terrence Collins, 23, Harpers Ferry, W.Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was given a 90-day sentence, all but four days of which was suspended, fined $400, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service. State troopers arrested Collins in October after a traffic stop along Interstate 68. A vehicle search uncovered several bags of marijuana, several bags of suspected hashish, and a set of weighing scales. Additional charges of possession of hashish and drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted.

Catherine Reckart, 43, Oakland, pleaded guilty to failure to ensure that a child in her legal custody attend school. The state's attorney's office filed the charge in March after an investigation concluded that Reckart had permitted a juvenile in her car to miss nearly six consecutive months of school. She was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $200, placed on six months of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service.

Jonathan Thomas Watson, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, was handed a stet ruling on a charge of illegally transporting a handgun in a vehicle, with the condition that the gun be forfeited to the state. His April arrest by state troopers came after a traffic stop on I-68 when he voluntarily turned over a loaded handgun.

Anthony Robert Goldberg, 36, Friendsville, was handed a stet ruling on charges of second degree assault and destruction of property. State troopers arrested Goldberg at his residence after an April domestic altercation, during which he allegedly assaulted his girlfriend. Alcohol was cited as a factor.

Charles Allen Forrester, 40, Keyser, W.Va., was deemed not guilty of domestic-related charges of second degree assault and violating an ex parte order after the alleged victim refused to testify against him. Forrester did plead guilty to a driving while under the influence charge, which netted a 30-day suspended sentence, a $355 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 20 hours of community service. The charges stemmed from his June arrest by sheriff's deputies after a reported domestic altercation at a Pysell Crosscut Road residence.

Henry Elmer Moore Jr., 28, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a felony theft charge stemming from an August 2000 arrest by deputies for allegedly not returning work uniforms, tools, and safety equipment that had been issued to him when hired by the 4-M Corporation of Grantsville.

Tonya Marie Shrout, 19, Wadsworth, Ohio, and Jonathan Casey Moriarity, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, were both not prosecuted on charges of possession of counterfeit drugs with the intent to distribute. The two were arrested early last month as part of a group apprehended at an Oakland residence by Garrett County Narcotics Task Force detectives executing a search warrant.

Michael Ernest Maciolek, 25, Oakland, was not prosecuted on charges of unlawful taking of a motor vehicle and unlawful use of a motor vehicle. The charges stemmed from a May arrest by sheriff's deputies after he allegedly took a housemate's vehicle despite being specifically warned not to do so.

Grantsville Man Charged With Domestic Assault

A Grantsville man was arrested by Maryland State Police (MSP) and charged with domestic assault, resisting arrest and failure to obey a lawful order following an incident early Sunday morning at the Little Meadows Motel, located along Rt. 40 in Grantsville.

Steven Eugene Harwell, 45, had engaged in a domestic argument with Ursula Marie Beaver at approximately 2 a.m., according to arresting officer Tfc. Grinnan, who reported that the argument escalated into a domestic assault, causing Beaver to sustain minor injuries.

Harwell was taken to Garrett County District Court where a bond hearing was held.

In other news from the state police, a Cumberland man has been charged with possession of marijuana and possession of CDS paraphernalia following a routine stop for speeding by MSP Wednesday morning.

The charges were filed against Leroy B. Robertson Jr., 20, who had been operating a 1998 Subaru westbound along Interstate 68 in the Finzel area. Robertson was stopped for excessive speed by Tfc. M. Clapper at which time a search of Robertson's vehicle was performed, revealing a smoking device containing suspected marijuana, according to police reports.

Health Dept. Officials Issue Turtle Caution

The Garrett County Health Department has issued a caution to persons who may have obtained or plan to obtain a pet turtle at the Garrett County Agriculture Fair that is currently under way. Those persons are advised that, because turtles may carry the salmonella bacteria, they should wash their hands after handling the turtles.

Persons with concerns or questions about this may telephone Environmental Health Services at 301-334-8980.

Country Fest And Auction Set At McHenry Fairgrounds

The seventh annual Country Fest and Auction is set for Saturday, Aug. 25, from 8 a.m. to 5 pm. at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry. Sponsored by the Dry Run Mennonite Church, the family-oriented event features a variety of demonstrations, crafts, activities for children, baked goods, and gospel music, as well as auctions of Mennonite and Amish-made quilts, furniture, and other items.

Breakfast meals, including fresh doughnuts made on the premises, will be available as the gates open, and chicken barbecue lunches will be sold beginning at 11 a.m. The event's menu also includes fresh hand-rolled soft pretzels, homemade ice cream, and funnel cakes. Other snack items will be sold at a "sandwiches and such" lunch stand.

The quilt auction, a highlight of the annual event, will feature 22 locally made, hand-quilted full- and queen-sized quilts, plus many smaller quilted items. They will be displayed until 12:30 p.m., and the quilt auction will get under way at 1 p.m. Last year's top quilt sold for a record $2,700 to a buyer from New Jersey.

The day's earlier auction, set to begin at 10:30 a.m., will include Amish-made furniture, home decor accents, meal tickets for an "in-home dinner" with a local Mennonite family, Longaberger and American Traditions baskets (among others), a Lloyd Middleton doll, framed prints, and many other items.

A number of demonstrations are set for the event this year, including basket weaving, a new offering. Apple cider pressing, homemade ice cream churning, milking, and quilting demonstrations will also take place.

A variety of rides will be offered — horse and buggy, horse and carriage, pony, hay, and the always-popular "barrels of fun" children's ride, a mock steam train composed of cars made from converted 55-gallon steel drums. Also offered for children are the live animal petting zoo and the pedal tractor pull. Family-oriented children's videos will be shown throughout the day.

This year's singing group is the Garment of Praise, an a capella male quartet from Reading, Pa., which will perform on the auction building stage from 10 to 10:30 a.m. The group will also perform at intervals throughout the day next to the chicken barbecue pavilion.

Booths featuring quality woodcrafts, home-baked goods, homemade noodles, jams, discounted books from the "Choice Books" racks, and a Gift and Card Shoppe will be open throughout the day.

There are no vendors at the Country Fest and Auction, and nothing is sold on consignment. The proceeds benefit the building program of the Dry Run Mennonite Church and School and are also donated to Christian Aid Ministries, a Mennonite relief organization that ministers to the physical and spiritual needs of needy people around the world.

There is no admission fee for the event or parking fee at the fairgrounds. For more information persons may call 301-245-4564 or 301-895-3268, or e-mail at countryfest@juno.com.

GETTING IN LAST-MINUTE STITCHES — The upcoming Country Fest and Auction, set for Saturday, Aug. 25, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Garrett County Fairgrounds, will feature the handiwork of local quilters, furniture makers, artisans, and crafters of all sorts. Making some last-minute preparations for the popular quilt auction are Sandra Yoder, left, and Miriam Bender, who are shown hemming some quilted items that will be auctioned. The family-oriented event raises funds for the expansion and building programs of the Dry Run Mennonite Church and School in Bittinger, and for Christian Aid Ministries (CAM), a worldwide Mennonite relief organization headquartered in Berlin, Ohio.

Mining Co. Sets $50K Reward For Vandalism Leads

Barton-based Tri-Star Mining is offering a $50,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the perpetrator(s) of two serious vandalism incidents of coal mining equipment. Heavy mining equipment was damaged or Tri-Star Mining property in March and again early this month, and the two incidents may be connected.

In the March incident, nearly $1 million damage resulted when dirt, coal, and rock was poured into the crank shafts of strip mining equipment.

Persons with information on either of these crimes are encouraged to contact the Allegany County C3I (Combined County Criminal Investigation unit) at 301-759-6461 or Allegany County Crimesolvers at 301-722-4300.

Commissioners' Next Weekly Mtg. Set For Evening

The Garrett County commissioners' weekly public session, usually held in the morning hours every Tuesday, will be held in the afternoon and early evening next Tuesday, Aug. 21. Commissioner Fred Holliday said he wanted to schedule some evening meetings to accommodate persons who cannot come to daytime sessions.

The tentative agenda denotes a starting time of 3 p.m., with a meeting concerning Wolf Acres Drive in Mountain Lake Park. At 4 p.m., two individuals are to meet with the commissioners concerning the buy-out process in Shallmar.

The Right to Farm Act will be discussed by the commissioners and John Nelson of the planning and zoning department, beginning at 6 p.m. The stormwater management ordinance will then be discussed at 7 p.m.

All members of the public are invited to attend the commissioners' weekly meetings. For more information, the elected officials' offices can be reached at 301-334-8970.

Alcohol Factors In MV Accident With Injuries

As a result of traffic accidents over the past week several persons were injured and transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH), according to reports from the Maryland State Police (MSP).

Sarah and Kyle Smith, ages 4 and 2, respectively, Shady Side, were both taken by Northern Rescue Squad to GCMH, where they were treated and released, as a result of a two-vehicle accident on Saturday at approximately 7 p.m. on Deep Creek Drive in McHenry.

The Smith children were passengers in a 1997 Chevrolet Blazer operated by Aaron Smith, 34, also of Shady Side. According to police reports, Smith was traveling southbound when his Blazer was struck by a 1998 Jeep Cherokee driven by Andrea Cassell Devens, 23, Oakland, who was traveling northbound. The accident occurred when Devens crossed the center line, said police.

Devens was charged with driving while intoxicated and with driving on a suspended license.

Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company also responded to the accident.

In another accident investigated by state police, a 20-day-old Frostburg child received injuries and was transported by Northern Rescue Squad to GCMH, where the child was treated and released.

According to MSP reports, the accident occurred Wednesday at 5:10 p.m. at the intersection of Mosser Road and Rt. 219 when Brandi Smith, 27, Moorefield, W.Va., drove her 1994 Nissan Sentra from Mosser Road out into the path of a northbound 1991 Dodge Spirit being driven by Arlo Weiskopf, 25, Frostburg.

Smith was charged with failure to yield the right of way, said police.

The Deep Creek VFC also responded to the scene.

Charge Of DWI Against Boater Not Prosecuted

A charge of operating a motorboat while intoxicated was not prosecuted against an Annapolis woman who was arrested by Natural Resources Police last year. Catherine E. Ravenscroft, 37, was given a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling on another charge and two fines by a district court judge, according to court computer records obtained this week. The hearing took place several months ago, but was not reported by the DNR.

Ravenscroft was initially charged in the wake of a July 5, 2000, incident when a motorboat she was operating struck the Deep Creek Lake bridge. The charges resulted in a PBJ ruling and a $125 fine for a charge of negligent operation of a motorboat, while an additional citation for operating a motorboat without displaying a valid emblem drew a $50 fine.

Swanton Woman Injured During Motorcycle Crash

A Swanton woman sustained minor injuries when she lost control of her motorcycle along North Glade Road Sunday, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Margaret Hayman Demaree, 47, was traveling west at approximately 12:05 p.m. when she lost control of her 2000 motorcycle on the wet roadway at the intersection of Beckman Road. The motorcycle overturned, ejecting Demaree, who was transported by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released. Personnel from the Deer Park fire department assisted at the accident scene.

No charges were filed by sheriff's deputies.

DWI Arrests

In other sheriff's news, several individuals were charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) or driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) this week.

They are: Paul David Coffman, 46, Keith Allen Powell, 28, and Christopher Allan Glotfelty, 28, all of Oakland; and Mark William Wildman, 30, Swanton.

Salem To Hold OutSpokin' Event

Individuals, families, and businesses are invited to participate in a bike ride event that will directly benefit the children at Maryland Salem Children Trust. The ride will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 18.

Three different courses are offered to cyclists of varying skill levels, according to a spokesperson. Starting from Salem's driveway, the route travels along Lower New Germany Road, down Westernport Road, and along the scenic Savage River to Big Run State Park. The advanced course continues to Savage River Dam and back to Salem.

The beginner course consists of 12.5 miles on slightly downhill and flat terrain, and ends at Big Run State Park. Participants can be transported with their bicycles to Salem for a $5 fee. The intermediate course is 25 miles and the advanced course runs 38 miles.

A T-shirt, water bottle, and trail bar will be given to the first 100 participants who register for the ride. Awards will be presented to the individual and business representatives who collect the most donations or pledges. Winners will receive their awards and special recognition at the OutSpokin' for Maryland's Kids banquet and silent auction on September 8.

For more information or to receive a registration form, persons may call 301-689-8176, ext. 213.

Forging Ahead...

Mental illness is a major problem in our society, sometimes resulting in tragedy for the afflicted one, family members, and any number of others, many of whom are "innocent bystanders." While the perception and understanding of mental illness has progressed somewhat in our country since the days when the mentally ill were treated like animals and warehoused in horrible conditions, there is still plenty of ignorance and misunderstanding. Those with mental illness are feared, and because of fear and ignorance, many "normal" persons would still prefer that these individuals be somehow removed from society. We don't react this way at all if we are speaking about a physical illness, such as cancer or diabetes or heart disease.

As with almost any illness, prevention and early intervention are always better than having to try to find and facilitate a cure. This certainly includes mental illness, and so we are pleased that all of the local agencies that have anything to do with providing services for the mentally ill seem to have come to agreement and understanding with the recent hiring of the Washington County Mental Health Center, which affords specialized services to Garrett County's children. The center, by the way, is hiring and utilizing local persons to provide the services.

The contract with the center was brought about by Trish Yoder, director of Mountain Top Mental Health Associates, which is the county's core services agency. The creation of the agency was mandated by the state a few years ago.

In her zeal to fulfill her agency's mission statement, Yoder apparently stepped on the toes of some other agency heads when she sealed the deal with the Washington County agency. It caused quite an uproar. However, after a meeting with the Garrett County commissioners this week, it seems that all involved are over it and ready to work together toward what we hope is a common goal — to provide needed and valuable mental health services to our children.

We are convinced that if Yoder could go back and do it all over again, she would make a few more phone calls before icing the deal with the Washington County Mental Health Center. But we also admire her for her drive and conviction in doing the job she was hired to do. We also believe that, without her forging ahead this way, these new services would not be available for our children by this fall.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

In the past the Aurora-Terra Alta VFW Post has been highly critical of those who watched the Terra Alta Firemen's Parade for their failure to render the appropriate honors when the American flag passed in review. Although far from perfect, there was a definite improvement this year. Many, if not most, stood and removed their hats as the flag passed, and only one police officer failed to come to attention and salute.

There is still room for improvement, so our still offer stands — If your group would like instructions on flag honors and handling, call Post Service Officer Warren Dixon at 304-7892606 to make arrangements.

Sincerely,
Jim McCartney
Commander

To the Editor:

You are not paranoid. Yes, you do sense environment fanaticism, as should all woodland owners in Maryland.

This is the same J.C. Fox, along with Carol Browner, who tried to make forestry a point source of pollution effective August 1, 2000. This would have been the first revision of the Total Maximum Daily Load (TMDL) and National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NRDES) permit programs. Woodland owners would have been required to get a federal permit to harvest, pay $350 for a permit, wait for over a year for approval, and during this period a person in California could protest. If you proceeded without a permit, expect a $27,000 per day penalty.

When this plan was withdrawn, EPA said they would be back next year. In the meantime, Governor Glendening was working on his own plan, and who better to implement it than J.C. Fox?

In short, this man will make forestry uneconomical for many woodland owners and they will sell their land to developers.

Soon our woodlands will be changing to multiple colors while the Maryland DNR is turning greener.

Sincerely,
C.W. Newhall

Tree Farmer

To the Editor:

Over 850,000 Maryland students will be heading off to school as early as August 27. Emerging onto streets and sidewalks will be a new crop of children excited about their first day of school, focused on anything but traffic.

Children are at an extreme disadvantage when it comes to maneuvering traffic. They're short, making it difficult for them to see motorists and for motorists to see them — especially around parked cars or buses. Their peripheral vision is underdeveloped — one third narrower than an adult's. Judging a car's speed and distance is difficult, often leading them to misjudge how far away that moving car really is. And last, but not least, they are under the misconception that cars can stop instantly.

During the summer, motorists are accustomed to driving on roads without school buses and through empty school crossing zones on their daily commute to and from work. But soon the roads will be filled with buses and sidewalks filled with students. The first day of school is a hectic time for everyone, with parents trying to get to work and trying to get their children to school on time. Remember the rules of the road, exercise caution, and above all, slow down!

During the next several weeks, AAA Mid-Atlantic will be carrying out its annual "School's Open — Drive Carefully" educational campaign. AAA School Safety Patrol members with their familiar neon orange belts will be on full alert for dangerous situations. We ask that all drivers be on full alert too.

Sincerely,
Myra Wieman
Manager, Public Affairs
AAA Mid-Atlantic

To the Editor:

I want to thank everybody for the red carpet treatment we received in Garrett County during our Highpointers Club annual convention there in July.

I don't think we have ever received so much warm attention from local politicians as we did from the Oakland mayor, county commissioners, and Garrett County Historical Society. I was a delighted to walk through Oakland in our club T-shirt and have strangers introducing themselves and telling tales about Backbone Mountain.

Our club is a diverse lot. Convention attendees had climbed Mount Everest, Mount McKinley, and many of the highest mountains on earth. We find it fascinating to see how states treat their highpoints. Our reception in Maryland was spectacular! Thank you!

On a sadder note, I was sorry to read in your paper that the Maryland secretary of the Department Natural Resources, Sarah Taylor-Rogers, resigned in a political flap following the Highpointers Convention. Ms. Taylor-Rogers is a very gracious woman, and she charmed us with her tale of summiting the highest point in Delaware and talking about her preparations for climbing Backbone Mountain.

More to the point, we were happy to hear her report that the state has a verbal right of first refusal for the purchase of the Backbone summit.

A state highpoint is a very valuable historical and geographic treasure. It should be protected and open to the public. Maryland has the dubious distinction of being the only state in the Appalachian corridor where the highpoint is not under some sort of government protection.

While we consider Ms. Taylor-Rogers a friend, we hope that Gov. Parris N. Glendening and the new DNR Chief J. Charles Fox will continue Maryland's efforts to buy its state summit. We will help in all possible ways.

Thanks again!

Roger Rowlett

To the Editor:

A question! How would you feel if someone were to trespass on your private property, and to make matters worse, deny doing it even though you and others have witnessed this? Well, such is the case with my "new neighbors."

For those of you who do not know them, I'll explain. The Maryland highest point "crusade" was initiated some time ago here in Garrett County. People involved in this crusade have taken a wild and primitive but lovely area and literally destroyed it. For those real nature enthusiasts who were fortunate to have hiked Maryland's highest point in the past, consider yourselves very lucky. If you were to see it now, you would probably cry — as I did.

I do not own the highest point, but rather the closest property to it — a mere 40 feet away, in fact. I have for years. Those involved in this pet project have not only trespassed on my property but have also, without permission, gone onto other private lands. (I have witnesses.) Others, whom they call "friends," have been encouraged to see the highest point. Instead of hiking to the top by a more arduous but legal route, they often have gotten there via private land. To add insult to all of this, a trail has been blazed on said private property over to the actual mark. This makes it a short 5-minute and fairly level walk instead of the hour climb it takes to go up the non-intrusive way. The owners of this piece of property are understandably very upset.

This year the annual Highpointer's Convention was held in Maryland. These are people who attempt to climb as many high points that they can. This is called "bagging peaks." I have no problem with this endeavor, but when they and others cross private property, for whatever reason, thus ignoring the rights of the property owners, that is where I have a problem. I know of others who are having similar problems, one of them being a Mr. Henry Richardson of Foster, R.I., who owns the highest point in that state. I have talked with him at length and unfortunately we have many of the same problems. Some of these high-pointers must feel that it is their God-given right to ignore a "no trespassing" sign.

My neighbors and I have had problems with people tearing down our "no trespassing" signs. We've also had our fences torn down and thrown into the woods. I recently hired a professional survey crew to remark my property line. Since then, my survey tapes have been taken off my trees and thrown onto the ground. People have even had the gall to come up and steal truckloads of "souvenir" rocks off the mountain from our private lands. Twice, an MPT (Maryland Public Television) crew was turned away, as they too proceeded (and actually did) to cross private land to get their vehicle and equipment closest to the top. We wonder who gave them permission? We all find it interesting to note that most of these occurrences have been since the preparations began for the highpointers' 2001 convention.

Many of my fellow landowners have been annoyed with their rude and pusillanimous attitude to achieve their single-minded goal. I have over several years caught many people on my property trying to get to the top. My neighbors and I have picked up many bags of litter — some of it quite unmentionable. There is no privacy on private land with people who have this same mind-set.

Now, here is the real kicker! Isn't it ironic that some involved people who have land near the high point have placed no fewer than three large "no trespassing" signs on their mountain property. What does that tell you? In an attempt to raise awareness of the one-time event, they changed the name of their street address to that of Hoye-Crest Road. This is the name given to Maryland's highest point. Oddly enough, it doesn't even go to the high point, but the road they were trespassing on does and the owners will name it themselves.

CELTIC POSTCARD

A few thousand years ago, Celtic peoples marauded their way across Europe, as so many other peoples have done both before and since, and, in fact, continue to do today. In our time they are called venture capitalists.

Other marauders superseded the Celts (most importantly the Romans, who in their day out-marauded just about everybody) and pushed them to the far western corners of the continent.

We can draw a longitudinal line across Europe, west of which descendants of Celtic folk still live. For Americans, the most famous of those descendant peoples are the Scotch, Irish, and Welsh. Even in England, the western corner is populated by Celtic descendants, the Cornish. There are kinsfolk to them in Spain, Portugal, and France.

In France the Celtic cousins are the Bretons, the people of Brittany. The similarity between "Britain" and "Brittany" is striking because they are two versions of the same thing. Some of the Celtic peoples were "Britains," and thus we speak of "the British Isles" where they lived. That spur of France south of Normandy was homeland to the same branch of Britains, and thus the name.

Brittany was the last major region to be integrated into the kingdom of France, which, along with native Celtic stubbornness, made it possible for the Breton people to maintain a substantial measure of cultural independence, centuries after losing their political independence. Breton language survived with a living population down to the beginning of the 20th century.

As in the Celtic parts of the British Isles, Celtic culture has revived in Brittany in recent years. My son Nick and I stayed in the southeasternmost corner of traditional Brittany on the Guerande peninsula.

On our first night in Guerande there was a Breton festival just outside our hotel. I attended the festival, and Nick got full benefit of the music through the hotel window.

While the drink of France is wine, the drink of Normandy and Brittany is hard cider. They still grow special, small apples bred specifically for the purpose of cider. It is a drink which I enjoyed very much. And that was the drink of the festival to accompany the savoury and sweet crepes.

Crepes are an extremely flat pancake. In Brittany they are made with buckwheat flour, and remind me of the paper-thin buckwheat cakes made years ago by my Great-Grandma Stahl. Savoury crepes might be filled with cheese or ham and eggs or some other meat or vegetable. Sweet crepes can be simply spread with butter and sugar, or they can be filled with fruits and whipped cream. They are delicious things any way you please.

In the crepe tent there were grandmothers, daughters, and granddaughters — some of them very young girls — all working away at building piles of crepes for all the dancers, hungry between their reels. It was an all-woman enterprise, which also reminded me of my Grandma Stahl.

Two Breton bands played, one young and the other older. Their styles differed. The younger group played more traditional music, often with the Breton bagpipe (and there is just one pipe). The older group played a more old-fashioned style of music with two accordion-like instruments. Both groups had a non-bag Breton pipe that looked and sounded a little like an oboe.

As the bands played, the people formed up for their dances. Sometimes they danced as couples, but most often they danced in a circle. As the circle became too large, they formed circles within circles and sometimes a long, moving labyrinth of people that embraced everyone.

In the not too distant past a whole village danced together in such fashion. There was a circle of life that held them all. There were lots of young people at the festival, and nearly all knew the steps to those dances, which began simply enough, but progressed into a running frenzy, both primordial and modern.

There is a hunger in our time for that simple village life which is no more. Occasionally, music captures the best magic of those eras which have disappeared behind the mists of virtual reality.

Squad Rescinds

"in a proper manner," and the building should meet the future needs of the squad. He added that building new is often less expensive than renovating a standing structure.

Daniel Durst, chairman of the squad's board of directors and in favor of the original building purchase, said that it was never the intention of the squad to "abandon" the current areas served by the squad or to decrease the squad's quality of service. "We want to improve our service in all our areas, and we feel that this can be accomplished by having a more central location," he said.

Durst said that the majority of trauma cases handled by Northern Rescue occur in the McHenry area, and that the previously considered building could have been made ready for occupancy soon, with lodging facilities, a training center, a garage and social hall, and possibly a heliport for the Maryland State Police medevac unit.

Spear believed that, if the squad is successful in finding and acquiring a piece of property in McHenry by this winter, construction on a new station could begin by next spring.

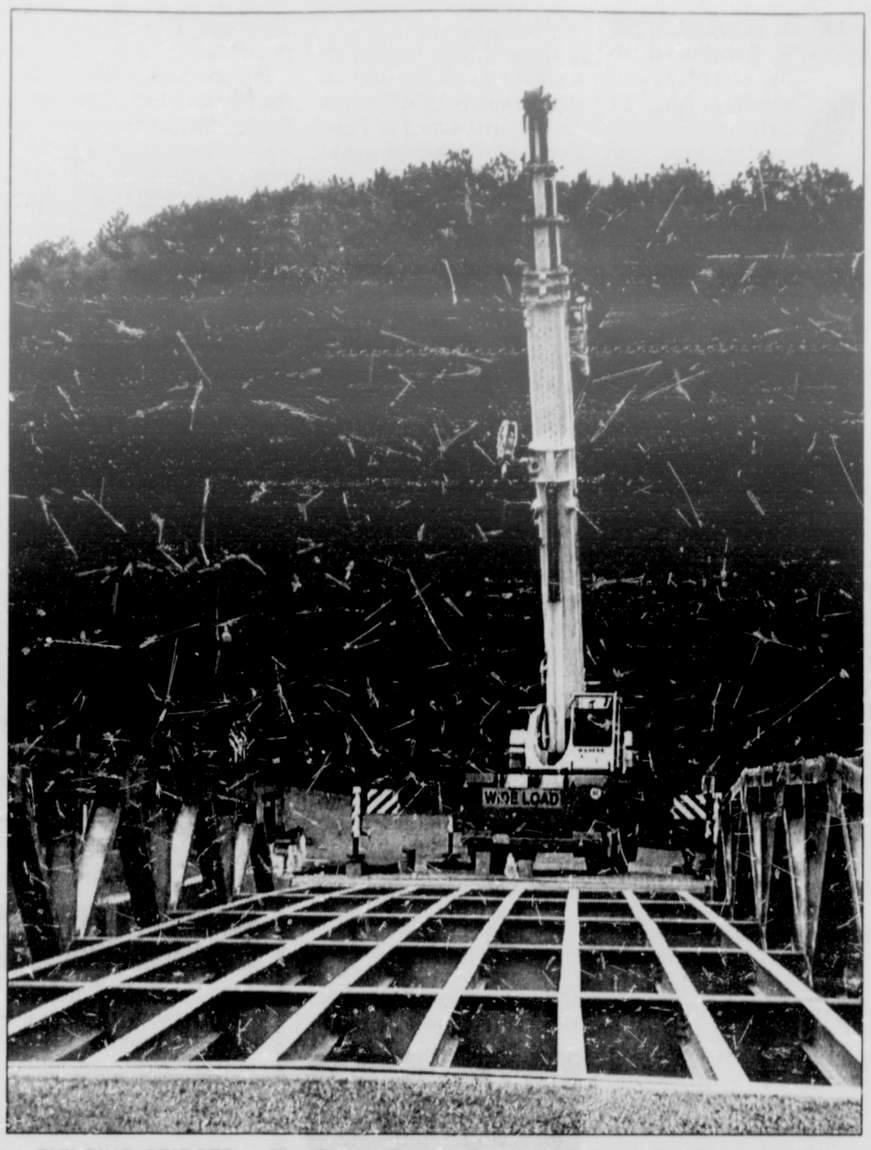
Lake Residents Evacuated After Propane Mishap

Several Deep Creek Lake area residents were forced to evacuate their homes early Wednesday morning because of a propane gas leak that occurred after a 500-gallon tank was struck by a golf cart, according to reports from the office of Garrett County Emergency Management Fire and Rescue Communications.

The Club Car golf cart was being operated by Daniel A. Bellavance, Elizabeth, Pa., at approximately 1 a.m. across the front yard of the Robert Gindlesberger residence along Glen Cove Road where the propane tank was located. When the tank was struck, it reportedly turned over, releasing gas.

A total of six homes were evacuated after the incident, which was investigated by Maryland State Police. Also responding to the mishap were the Deep Creek and Bittinger volunteer fire departments and the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.



BUILDING BRIDGES — The Garrett County Roads Department has been working on a number of road and bridge projects throughout the county, and this week focused on the Avilton-Lonaconing Bridge replacement. A deteriorating, single-lane concrete arch, deemed unsafe by Dwight Emory, county engineer, was replaced with two-lane, 75-foot steel truss. The county roads crews did all the work on the bridge, Emory said, minus the contracted crane and operator, pictured above as the trusses are set. The bridge is not quite finished, Emory said, as there is still some paving to do around the span. It should be open for traffic on or around Aug. 27.

Trying To Work

county core services agency was mandated by the state several years ago. The agency's mission is to coordinate all the mental health services available in the county and "seek to create a comprehensive mental health system with maximum choice and easy access to quality mental health services . . ." It is the core services agency's responsibility to "plan, evaluate, develop, and manage the public mental health system" for the county; to identify gaps in mental health services; and to integrate existing services and expand them as needed. Yoder said Tuesday that the contract with the outside agency is in line with these roles and responsibilities.

The worry and concern of Lighthouse and health department providers is that their offerings were not thoroughly sought in this case, and that an outside company will hurt the existing providers by taking away consumers. Yoder has countered that the Washington Co. company will be hiring local individuals to carry out the program, and that local providers were indeed asked to fulfill this need before the WCMHC was contracted. She also noted that no present funding will go to the company. The money for this program will be new funding, specifically for a new youth program.

Some disagreement exists about the requests for proposals (RFP) sent out last December by the MTMHA. The local providers claim the request was too vague and that a second one was still generalized.

"You need to be more specific in what you want," said Mary VanSickle of Lighthouse. "We are more than willing to work with you and to come up with programs if we are given the opportunity to do so. We feel there is a definite lack of support."

However, the Washington County company has been contracted and has been in regular contact with the Garrett County Board of Education to formulate the program. Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent, has maintained that he and his staff were unaware of any unrest among the local providers and have only been focused on providing some new services to at-risk children.

"We're all here for one reason — to help with the mental needs of our county's children," Teets said. "We have always had an excellent relationship with the health department, especially with Rodney [Glotfelty, health officer] at the helm. There are numerous programs already under way in our schools from the health department. We see this new program as yet another boost for our kids. We certainly do not want to do anything to compete with local providers, but I believe we can all work together on this and provide good services for our children."

Yoder said she has learned a great deal over the past two months in dealing with this dilemma. She said she and the MTMHA will work to better communication links among all local providers. Commissioner Fred Holliday said the commissioners will also try to improve these links, and noted that Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator, has offered to serve on the county's mental health board.

"This will certainly improve our communication with all the providers," Holliday said.

Rep. Bartlett Reacts To Stem Cell Decision

Congressman Roscoe G. Bartlett (R-6-MD) reacted this week to President Bush's announcement concerning federal funding of human embryonic stem cell research.

As the only member of Congress with a doctorate in human physiology and a 100 percent pro-life voting record, Bartlett said he has consulted with some of the nation's top scientists — both those who support and oppose research on human embryonic stem cells. They confirmed that it is theoretically feasible today to remove embryonic stem cells without killing the embryo. He shared this information with top administration officials and urged support for federal funding on human embryonic stem cells under three conditions: the embryo is not destroyed, a clone is not created, and the embryo is not precluded from implantation. Bartlett advocates immediate federal funding for research on animals to develop these techniques. "Techniques that work in animals will work in humans," said Congressman Bartlett.

"I am troubled that the president's decision to fund research into existing stem cell lines amounts to an inappropriate reward to those who willfully destroyed embryos to produce these stem cell lines," said Bartlett. "Many of the experts portrayed as offering disinterested advice in support of this funding have conflicts of interest with companies that have vested interests, including patents and investments derived as a result of destroying embryos. I believe my recommendation would be a better solution that would be acceptable to all Americans."

Bartlett said, "I strongly support the president's decision for federal funding into stem cells derived from umbilical cords, placentas, adults, and animals. Research to produce cures and preserve embryos are not mutually exclusive goals. I am confident that America's scientists will be able to discover better treatments and cures without deriving those benefits as the result of any willful destruction of innocent human life. God creates all life. Our nation's medical advances must always respect, not destroy life."

In Loving Memory of
BARRY E. BEACHY

It is just a cluster of memories,
Sprayed with a million tears.
Wishing God could have spared you
For many, many more years.

We often sit and think of you,
And think of how you died.
To think you could not say godbye,
Before you closed your eyes.

Sometimes it's hard to understand
Why some thngs have to be.
But in His wisdom God has plannned
Beyond our power to see.

So looking back in tenderness
Along the path we trod,
We cherish the years we had with you
And leave the rest to God.

No one knows how much we miss you.
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you
Life has never been the same.

A million times we've needed you
A million times we've cried.
If love alone could have saved
You never would have died.

In life we loved you dearly.
In death we love you still.
In our hearts you hold a place
No one can ever fill.

Sadly Missed By,
Mom & Dad,
Sharon, Tammy,
Tommy, Michael

Town Hall

LOCH LYNN

The council meeting was held Tuesday, Aug. 7.

DFC Robert Corley of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office reported the number of citations/arrests made during the past two months. This information was about regular police patrols, as well as patrols from the Crime Watch grant.

Town employee Vaughn Sweitzer is continuing to correct storm water management problems throughout the town, specifically on Alderson St. and Shenandoah Ave. Drop boxes and culverts are being installed. Bid specifications are being gathered for the paving of Shenandoah Ave.

The ball field committee will meet this month to finalize and proceed with installing dugouts, backstops, and layout of the fields and concession stand.

The Garrett Co. Sanitary District will take over the collection of the town of Loch Lynn's sewer and garbage fees in the October quarter. Citizens are receiving more information with the local newsletter.

The mayor and council announce the appointment of Brian R. Boal, CPA, as the town's new auditor for the 2000-2001 fiscal year.

The mayor signed a garbage disposal contract between the town of Loch Lynn and Perry's Solid Waste. This contract, the same since 1996, will be in effect through 2003.

The council voted to set business hours for the clerk to better serve citizens. Weekly hours will be announced. Mayor Friend stated that because of monies saved through several budget areas he is able to provide the hours needed for the clerk to handle the duties spelled out in the town charter. Services to citizens in Loch Lynn will now be comparable to those in other municipalities.

The council voted to provide a pay increase to town employee Vaughn Sweitzer.

The council approved the Stormwater Management Resolution 2001-01. This document was signed by Mayor Friend.

An amnesty period is being set for citizens who were unaware that a zoning ordinance had been in effect since 1974. The ordinance states zoning applications must be completed and fees paid to the town before proceeding to the Garrett Co. Zoning Office. More information is included in the local newsletter.

Wendell Keaton, Tri-County Council circuit rider, spoke about the Community Legacy Grant and the Parks & Recreation Grant.

The house number maps of the town are being updated. A committee is working to update this information, which will be placed on auto CAD format by Mayor Friend.

A Back-to School Beach Party will be held at the pavilion on August 31 from 6 to 8 p.m. for the youth of the community.

Leo Martin, mayor of Mtn. Lake Park, attended the council meeting and announced that the mayor and council of Mtn. Lake are looking forward to working with the Loch Lynn mayor and council. Mayor Friend will meet with Mayor Martin next week to begin mutual planning.

The annual town picnic for Loch Lynn residents will be held Saturday, Sept. 8, beginning at 2 p.m. Residents are invited to bring a covered dish and spend the afternoon with neighbors.

McGee To Teach Music Theory Course At GCC

A new course in music theory titled "The Musical Experience" (MUS 290) will be taught by Jerry McGee at Garrett Community College this fall. The one-credit course is scheduled for Mondays from 5 to 6:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 10 and concluding Nov. 5.

The course is designed to help students know how music is put together in terms understandable to the layman as well as the musician. It will present elements of music theory, form, and style from a historical perspective and in relation to parallel developments in the sister arts.

McGee, who serves as the conductor of the Garrett Community Band and as organist for St. John's and St. Matthew's Episcopal churches, has an extensive background of musical education and experience. His musical education began with piano lessons at age 7 and organ lessons at age 12. He holds a bachelor's degree in music from Westminister College in Pennsylvania and a master's degree in sacred music from Union Theological Seminary in New York, and he studied conducting with Abrahm Kaplan of the Julliard School of Music.

As an organist and choral director he has served major churches and cathedrals throughout the United States and has taught at various private schools and universities, including Bowdoin College in Maine. He has performed organ recitals in concert halls and cathedrals, including the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., Trinity Church in Boston, and Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

In addition to the course in music theory, McGee will also teach an instrumental music course in organ during the fall semester. That one-credit course will meet at arranged times at St. Matthew's Church in Oakland.

Students may register for these music courses at the Student Assistance Center weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Further information may be obtained by calling 301-387-3044.

Halsig Earns Spot At Levine Music Camp

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival has announced that Jordan Halsig has been selected through an audition process to attend the Levine on the Mountain music camp. The camp will take place at Garrett Community College August 18-25.

A junior at Northern High School, Jordan is the daughter of Mark Halsig and Marci McClive of Accident. Although selected as a bassoonist for the camp, she has studied piano with Elinor Benedict, Grantsville; tenor saxophone and bassoon under the direction of Sharon McLaughlin, Northern Middle School; and baritone saxophone and bassoon at Northern High School, under the direction of Bill Robinson.

In March of this year, Halsig was selected as a sophomore to participate in the West Virginia University honor band. She is on the distinguished honor roll at Northern High School.

Levine On The Mountain Music Camp To Begin

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will host the Levine on the Mountain music camp at Garrett Community College during the week of Aug. 18-25. Created by the Levine School of Music of Washington, D.C., the program will offer a week-long opportunity for instrumentalists ages 14-18 from the Mid-Atlantic area to expand their repertoire and imagination, according to Beth Johnson, executive director of GLAF. Under the tutelage of world-renown musicians, students will perform traditional orchestral and chamber music while also learning jazz standards and the basics of improvisation, Johnson said.

Students with Levine on the Mountain will perform Chamber Music Around Town on Thursday, Aug. 23. The small concerts will be free. Groups of students will perform at Traders' Coffee House, located along Garrett Highway at Deep Creek Lake, at 5 p.m. At 6:30 p.m., they are to play at the Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park. A group will also perform at 7 p.m. in Oakland at the B&O Railroad Station.

The culmination of the residential program is a performance by the student symphony on Saturday, Aug. 25, at 2 p.m. This concert will include classical and jazz selections. Although the show is free, reservations are recommended, Johnson noted. The students will perform at the auditorium of Garrett Community College under the baton of Maestro David Wroe, conductor of the Deep Creek Symphony and music director of Music on the Mountain, the classical music festival taking place at the same time as the music camp.

Guest artist Didier Lockwood will also perform with the student symphony on Saturday afternoon.

Levine on the Mountain is sponsored by the Sprenger-Lang Foundation. For further information, persons may contact the GLAF office Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at 301-387-3082, or log on to www.artsandentertainment.org.

Season sponsors for Garrett Lakes Arts Festival are the Sprenger-Lang Foundation, Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty, and Deep Creek Mountain Resort. The entire season is funded in part by grants from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council, which is supported by the state of Maryland and the National Endowment for the Arts.

HEART 'N SOUL BARBERSHOP QUARTET

Heart 'N Soul Barbershoppers To Perform

The Heart 'n Soul Barbershop Quartet from Somerset, Pa., will perform as part of the Music at Penn Alps series on Saturday, Aug. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Great Hall. The quartet members will present to the Penn Alps audiences their repertoire of barbershop classics, including traditional favorites, gospel tunes, and songs of nostalgia.

Lead singer Don "Brownie" Brown, tenor Elbert "Jimmy" Walker, baritone Kelly Fritz, and bass Ken Halverson have been singing in the barbershop tradition since early 2000. As members of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, they sing with the Roof Garden Barbershop Chorus of Somerset County, Pa.

Members of the quartet have widely varying backgrounds. Walker of Shanksville is a lifelong dairy farmer. Brown, from Garrett, has an eclectic background in horticulture, golf course management, construction, and store ownership. Somerset's Fritz recently retired from the U.S. Navy after 20 years of service and is now a machinist at Hoff Machining. Halverson, Somerset, has owned his own insurance company, served seven terms in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, and now works as an associate broker with Coldwell Banker.

Barbershop singing is a "melting pot" product of African-American musical devices, European hymn-singing culture, and an American tradition of recreational music. Technically speaking, barbershop harmony is a style of unaccompanied singing with three voices harmonizing to the melody. The lead usually sings the melody, with the tenor harmonizing above the lead.

Another Play Reading Slated At OT Theatre

Out Town Theatre, Oakland, will host another play reading this Sunday, Aug. 19, beginning at 7 p.m. The play, a contemporary family comedy, was the hit of the recent community theatre festival in Harrisburg, Pa. It has six characters: two older men, two older women, a man in his 30s, and a woman in her late 20s.

The name of the play will be revealed that evening. All are invited to either read a part or simply to be a listener. Refreshments will be served, and there is no admission charge, although donations to OTT will be "gratefully accepted."

The theatre is located along Center Street.

Community Band Seeks Addition Of New Members

The Garrett Community Concert Band, under the direction of Jerry McGee, will soon resume its Tuesday evening rehearsals at Garrett Community College, and extends an invitation to other area musicians to join the organization.

According to McGee, the band membership consists entirely of volunteers who enjoy playing together and improving their music skills, and also have a desire to share those skills with the community.

Having started last year primarily with just marches, the band is developing a music library of varying difficulty, including Broadway hits, Big Band numbers, and classical concert pieces featuring various instrumentalists.

DOWNHERE is the name of a Christian band that will present a concert at Breakaway 2001, a special event slated at Country Acres Strawberry Farm, Foxtown Road, Accident, August 21-24. The event, which will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. each evening, will feature speakers, prayer time, games, praise and worship, food, and prizes for teens from sixth grade through high school. Downhere will perform on the final evening, Friday, Aug. 24. Breakaway 2001 is sponsored by the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church and partially funded by an MMA grant. Persons desiring more information or transportation may telephone 301-245-4016, 301-895-3131, or 814-662-4064.

McGee said that interested musicians who are able to commit to regular rehearsals, as well as individual practice at home, are welcome to join. There are openings especially for low-brass instruments, French horn, saxophone, and percussion, but all players are invited to participate.

Persons desiring more information may contact McGee at 301-387-6315.

Barbershoppers

The bass sings the lowest harmonizing notes and the baritone provides in-between notes, either above or below the lead to make chords (specifically, dominant-type or "barbershop" sevenths) that give barbershop its distinctive, "full" sound.

Probably the most distinctive facet of barbershop harmony is the phenomenon known as expanded sound. It is created when the harmonics in the individually sung tones reinforce each other to produce audible overtones or undertones. Barbershoppers call this "ringing a chord."

This performance is sponsored by Beachy Pharmacy. The audience is invited to a post-concert reception with refreshments provided by Penn Alps Restaurant.

Music at Penn Alps is sponsored by Sincell Publishing Inc., Penn Alps Restaurant and Crafts Shop, and the support of individuals. Penn Alps is located along Old Route 40 between exits 19 and 22 of Interstate 68.

For information on Music at Penn Alps, reservations, ticket prices, and locations for advance ticket sales, persons may contact Penn Alps Restaurant and Crafts Shop at 301-895-5985. Tickets will be available at the door; there are no reserved seats. Ticket holders should arrive no later than 7:20 p.m. to guarantee seating, a spokesperson said.

Jeff Ferguson, the Brownfield Bullet," continued his torrid pace in the Ken Nicholson and Sons Late Model division Saturday night at Roaring Knob Raceway Park. Ferguson's seventh victory of the season did not come easily.

Polesitter Ferguson grabbed the reins at the drop of the green. For the first 18 laps, second starter Gary Tonkery doggedly pursued Ferguson. Tonkery briefly held the point on the 19th circuit, as moves and counter moves between the two had everyone on the edge of their seats. Ferguson snagged the top spot back on lap 20, bringing Jeff Thomas around with him into second. The "Bullet" led the rest of the distance on the mountaintop oval, with Thomas, Tonkery, Billy Eash, and Bob Neratka following. Mel Minnick, Jesse Guseman, Duke Pratt, Dave Yowler, and Danny Pugh completed the top 10. There were four cautions in the 25 lap event.

The VitaLink-QCOL Classic Lites put on their normal fine show. There was plenty of 3- and 4-wide action, and when the checkered was shown, Lynn Knepper of Somerset, Pa., had taken his first of 2001. Following Knepper to the stripe were John Cogar, Jim Kurpakis, Bob Bolin, and Mike Hay. Five cautions slowed the 12-lap feature.

It was doubles night for the Country Charm Hot Stocks. Double features, double points, and double money inspired some fine dirt racing action on the wide 3/8 mile. Feature number 1 saw ninth starter Jim "The Candyman" Byers of McClellandtown, Pa., score his second win, followed by John Redshaw, Scott Herring, Bob Nelson, and Joe Malarich. Seven cautions marred the 20 lapper, with a first lap red as Jesse King barrel rolled his number 88 machine in turn 4.

The finishing order of the first feature event was inverted for the second 20 lapper. The big guns had their work cut out for them, and when the smoke cleared, 15th starter Steve Huggins of Dilliner, Pa., took home his first win. Second and third went to Redshaw and Byers, 21st and 22nd starters, respectively. Jeff McNett came in fourth and polesitter Bart Tressler wound up fifth. There were five yellows thrown.

Jeff Dillinger of Connellsville, Pa., took top honors, his first, in the Fort Necessity Garage 4-Cylinder Stock division. Following Dillinger to the line were Martin Spade Jr., Ed Leonard, Dave Friend, and Dane Burnworth. There were no cautions in the 12 lapper.

Grafton, W.Va.'s, Dave Summers struck gold in the Fort Necessity Garage Modified 4-Cylinders. Josh Angle took second, followed by Louie Orris, Pat Livingston, and Martin Spade Sr. The 12-lap event saw two cautions.

Rob Felix of Finleyville, Pa., took the Sportsman Sprint main. He was followed by Craig Shaw, Nicole Miller, and Danny Staggers.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park will be back in action this Saturday, Aug. 18. In addition to the regular Mountain Thunder 5-division show, Stepping Stones Support Night is on the agenda. Appalachian Timber Products will hold a birthday party for Checkers, the mascot of the Junior Pit Crew.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park is located two miles west of the Youghiogheny Lake, just off Route 40 on Fearer Road. For more information, persons may call the raceway office at 724-329-0306 or 724-329-8196, or visit www.roaringknob.com on the Web.

eighth time in the 2001 season.

The $300-to-win four-cylinder special will be held on August 17, along with the bike races for the kids, sponsored by the FBI. The AMRA Road Warrior program could not be rescheduled because of the unavailability of open dates.

With only two weeks remaining, Paul Wilmoth leads Butch McGill by a slim 65 points in the late model division. Chuck Harper, Scott Miles, and Gary Dalton hope to close in on the two front runners.

In the Semi Lates, M.T. Hall has nearly wrapped up the points with a 360-point lead over L.C. Powers. Stanley Spooner, Jeff Kesling, and Duane Moreland round out the top five.

Shawn Davis has a point lead of 910 points in the AMRA Modifieds, and the only way he can lose is if he fails to show the next two weeks. Dave Defibaugh, Louie Krushansky, Rick Smith, and Brent Trimble will try to hold or better their positions in the next two weeks.

In the pure stocks, Jim Byers has a lead of 750 points over Jim Bendishaw. Chuck Bloom, Chad Green, and Joe Loudin are in positions three through five.

Dave Summers has a 360-point lead over Tom Simpson in the 4-cylinders. Kevin Pifer, Skip Raupach, and Wyatt Pifer fill out the top five.

The Season Championship in all divisions with double points will be held Aug. 24. The 2001 champions will be decided, and the top 10 will receive their awards at the Awards Banquet this winter.

rett Industrial Park's proximity to Stellar's customer base were apparently major considerations in the site selection for the expansion. Vucish also cited enthusiastic support from the county's elected officials and economic development department as factors in the decision.

"We are extremely excited about working together with the county and local educational institutions to develop the sophisticated trades and technical programs," Vucish said. These programs will be made available to high school students and graduates who have a desire to pursue careers in the aerospace and defense industries, he said.

Sailboat Racing

On Deep Creek Lake

LASER INVITATIONAL AND WOMEN'S NATIONAL FLYING SCOT INVITATIONAL REGATTAS SAILED AT DEEP CREEK LAKE

by Dan Muss

The Women's National Flying Scot Invitational Regatta was sailed here in parallel with our local Laser Invitational Regatta. This joint regatta is deliberate since the Laser ranks are swelled as some of the male sailors are forced out of their Flying Scots because of the women's regatta. The women's regatta is sailed in two fleets: "A" is for women-only teams and "B" is for women skippers with male crews.

We had several Flying Scot skippers from off the lake, and I believe they all placed. One of the invitees was Joni Palmer, the sailing instructor for small boats at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis. Joni and her husband Ray stayed with us for the weekend, and they were delightful company. Joni had a major influence on the development of the Deep Creek Sailing School. She is in charge of instructor training at the U.S. Sailing Association, and guided us in structuring our sailing school and trained and certified all of our sailing instructors. One of those training courses was held here at Deep Creek several years ago.

The first of three scheduled races went off on schedule on Saturday with a very light breeze out of the east. The race commander, Dave Mahan, set an appropriately short course up and back through the slot. Palmer got an excellent start and was in the lead until she sailed into a wind shadow off Thousand Acres. At one point Barbara Elster had a commanding lead until the light breeze died and the fleet just sat, being buffeted by the motor boat wakes. Finally that race was abandoned, and the boats were towed or paddled into the Deep Creek Yacht Club at Deerhaven for lunch.

After lunch a nice 3-5 knot wind came up out of the north, and Dave set a four-legged course up the central section of the lake. Jane Mahan led for the first three legs, but all the boats were pretty close. At the leeward mark Jane was inside, but left the mark wide as she hardened up to the wind. Joni was able to cut in between Jane and the mark and close the gap to windward, but Jane held her leeward position, pulled away, and finished first by a couple of boat lengths.

Barbara Elster was third around the leeward mark with Meredith Dodd on her tail, when the same thing happened. Elster took the mark wide, and Dodd was able to slip in to windward and took Elster on that last windward leg. Meredith Dodd, with her sister Ashley crewing, finished third and Barbara, with Marilyn Filemyr as crew, finished fourth. It was a fun race to watch. There were two collisions during the race, which was surprising since the wind was not that strong.

The Race Committee had decided to try to get two races in on Sunday so the second race was scheduled for 11 a.m. When I went out to watch there was little wind and they were in a 30-minute postponement. A breeze did come up and they were about to start the race, when it started to rain heavily and lightning was crackling all over. The committee wisely decided to bag both races and get the sailboats off the lake.

MAJOR CHANGES UNDER WAY AT WISP — Regular skiers of Wisp Resort might have to glance at a map this winter to find their way around a revamped mountain. Major construction projects are currently under way on the peaks of the resort. In the photo above is the scene at the top of lift #5, which is being moved. The ground at this site is being excavated for a new trail. At right is the excavation site where a new 500,000 gallon water tank is being installed. See story. Photos by John McEwen been the primary contractors on this project.

Yaste said one of the largest and most critical aspects of all these projects, which ties them together, is snowmaking.

"We are burying over four miles of pipe from one side of the mountain down the other to the new tubing park. Pipe sizes range from 8" to 24" in diameter and are in varying lengths, which all have to be welded together," Yaste said. "Beitzel Corporation of Grantsville is handling all the welding and is being assisted with our own construction crews on the installation. Beitzel Corporation will also be working with us on the installation of pumping stations."

Along with the pipe comes over 20 miles of wire and fiber-optic cable being buried to operate the all-electric snowmaking system.

The final project of all the construction is a new 500,000-gallon water tank being installed by the Garrett County Sanitary District. A hole 25' deep and 90' in diameter had to be blasted to place the tank below ground, Yaste said. The tank is only a few feet away from a 40' communications tower near the exit ramp of chair #3. The tank will be a supplemental water supply to the McHenry area.

"We also plan to build a new facility and snack shop over the tank once it is completed," said Yaste. "We're just keeping our fingers crossed that the weather will continue to cooperate with us over the next three months. So far we're on schedule and hope to be making snow in November."

"Aside from all the construction on the mountain, Wisp CEO Bill Quigley noted that a new point-of-sale system is being installed throughout the resort to improve efficiency in guest services.

"We have 800 new sets of ski equipment being delivered to our rental shop, as well as snow bikes and snowshoes for rent. We are outfitting our ski school with new uniforms and making substantial improvements to our food and beverage outlets," Quigley said. "We also have two new grooming machines, one with a 'pipe dragon' attachment for construction of our half pipe which will delight snowboarders. This adds up to another $350,000 investment in improvements to Wisp. We are excited to open this winter with a big bang celebration at the new tubing park."

Final Meeting

Creek Lake to attend both meetings.

During the membership meeting of the association, reports will be given by officers and there will be an election of directors. Immediately following the meeting of the membership, the directors will convene to elect officers for the 2001-2002 year.

County Commissioners Frederick A. Holliday, Wendell Beitzel, and Ernest J. Gregg Jr. have been invited to attend, Titus said, as have State Senator John Hafer and Delegate George Edwards. Also invited to ated are John Forman, chairman of the Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board; Paul Durham, manager of the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area; and John Nelson, director of the Garrett County Planning and Zoning Department.

Titus noted that there is likely to be discussion during the membership meeting on the recent death by electrocution of a sailor on Deep Creek Lake, as well as the recent collision between a motor boat and a Laser sailboat which seriously injured a sailor and cut the sailboat into two pieces.

The DCLPOA has a membership of over 1,000 property owners in the vicinity of Deep Creek Lake, and, for many years, Titus noted, has acted on behalf of the interests of its members with respect to all issues relating to the lake.

Gosnell Twins Both Graduate In Top 5% Of Naval Academy Class

RACHAEL GOSNELL

STEPHENIE GOSNELL

Four years of intensive academic, physical, and professional training at the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis culminated on May 25 for Rachael and Stephenie Gosnell of Accident, as the twin sisters were awarded their degrees by President George W. Bush at the academy's graduation ceremonies. The Gosnells are the twin daughters of Buz and Peggy Gosnell.

Both Northern High School alumnae graduated in the top 5 percent of the USNA's class of 2001. Rachael was awarded a bachelor of science degree with honors in political science and a minor in Spanish, and was commissioned as a Navy ensign. Stephenie was awarded a bachelor of science degree in political science with a minor in Spanish, and commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Stephenie Gosnell, valedictorian of the NHS Class of 1997, is currently attending Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., where she is studying for her master's degree in National Security Studies through the Navy's VGEP Program. She recently returned from Cambridge University in London, where she attended summer school and visited various museums, castles, and other places of interest in England and Scotland. Stephenie will graduate from Georgetown in December and proceed to Quantico, Va., for her basic Marine training.

Stephenie's class standing at the USNA, which included all academic, military, and performance grades of the last four years, was 61 out of approximately 930 graduating midshipmen. She plans to pursue a career in intelligence and intends to earn a law degree.

Rachael Gosnell, a 1997 NHS honors graduate, is studying at the Surface Warfare Officer School in Newport, R.I., which provides intense training of the fleet's junior officers. After completing that school, she will report to the USS Shiloh in San Diego for 18 months, including a six-month cruise. She will report to Charleston, S.C., next June for nuclear engineer training, one of the military's most exclusive training assignments. Less than 30 percent of all applicants are even granted an interview for the program, and only approximately 10 percent of those applicants are selected for nuclear training. The rigorous selection process follows technical interviews and an interview with Admiral Bowman, commander of the Naval Nuclear Reactor Program.

Rachael's class standing at the USNA was 100th in her class, and her successful completion of the Political Science Department Honors Program, which culminated in her thesis titled "The Integration of East and West Germany," placed her in the top 5 percent of this year's graduates. Only three midshipmen successfully defended their honors thesis to earn a Political Science Honors Degree. She is also interested in pursuing a law degree in the future.

Throughout their years at the Academy both Gosnells volunteered to tutor Annapolis-area Hispanic children and adults in English. They have also been active spokespersons for the U.S. military in western Maryland, having visited many Garrett and Allegany county schools when home on leave to represent the USNA and answer questions students may have. They also shared their academic and cultural knowledge of foreign countries with many classes, including Jean Wilt's Northern High Spanish class, which is planning a trip to Spain next year.

Rachael and Stephenie were members and officers of the USNA ski team, the Golden Key National Honor Society, Pi Sigma Alpha, the national political science honor society, and Phi Iota, the national language honor society.

Western Maryland guests on hand for the recent Naval Academy graduation exercises included Sixth District congressman Roscoe Bartlett, who nominated both young women for the academy; Garrett County commissioner Wendell Beitzel; Northern High School teachers Charlie Strauss and Tom Ables; and numerous friends and family.

Brothers Promoted To TSgts

Two brothers, both former residents of Garrett County, were recently promoted to the rank of tech sergeant with the United States Air Force. They are Robert W. Goad Jr. and Richard E. Goad, sons of former Oakland residents Robert and Elnora Goad.

Robert Goad Jr., a 1985 graduate of Southern High School and a member of the Air Force for 15 years, received his promotion early this year. He is based in Arlington, Va., and will be leaving for duty in Germany this fall.

He is the father of one daughter.

Richard Goad, who has served in the Air Force for 12 years, received his new rank via a rare step promotion in July. Major General Robert P. Bongiovi, acting director of the Defense Threat Reduction Agency, awarded the promotion.

Richard, a 1987 graduate of Southern, is also based in Arlington, Va. He and his wife Sheri are the parents of two children, and he has one son by a previous marriage.

The Goads' father, Robert Sr., was a career U.S. Air Force member, having retired with 20 years of service at the rank of master sergeant.

New Arrivals

A son was born August 10 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to Denver L. Jr. and Heidi Joy Michaels Bittinger, Oakland.

A daughter was born August 11 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to Jeffrey Jr. and Brandy Freeland Belanger, Oakland.

A daughter, Kayla Renae, was born August 2 at Mon General Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., to Rickey Jr. and Joyce Thomas Lowdermilk, Mtn. Lake Park. Paternal grandparents are Rickey Lowdermilk Sr., Sang Run, and Patty Aronhalt, Loch Lynn. Maternal grandparents are Carroll Thomas and Brenda Thomas, both of Oakland (corrected from last week).

Northern GOP Women To Meet

The Northern Garrett County Republican Women's Club will meet Tuesday, Aug. 28, at 7 p.m. at Hill Top Inn, Grantsville. The guest speaker will be Robin Bissell, M.D., Grantsville.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

JERRY W. HANLIN

Former Garrett County resident Jerry W. Hanlin was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel recently in a ceremony at the Community Center at Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii. Officiating at the promotion ceremony was Col. Edward Groeninger, commander of the 502nd Air Operations Squadron.

Lt. Col. Hanlin is the commander of the 56th Air Communications Squadron (ACOMS), 502nd Air Operations Group, based at Hickam AFB. As squadron commander he is responsible for providing Command and Control Communications Computer (C4) systems support for the Pacific Command's Joint Air Operations Center and Pacific Air Forces Commander's Air Operations Center. Hanlin directs all facets of C4 support for the Air Operations Center, including exercise and contingency planning, engineering, operations, and maintenance of all assigned C4 systems.

A 1978 graduate of Southern High School, Hanlin also graduated from Garrett Community College and earned a bachelor's degree at West Virginia University, Morgantown. Following his graduation from WVU he entered the Air Force Officer Training School, after which he was assigned to the Basic Communications Officer Training Course at Keesler Air Force Base, Miss. Upon graduation from that course he was assigned to the 682nd Air Support Operations Center Squadron as chief of communications operations and was later reassigned as chief of maintenance.

After completing an Air Force Institute of Technology assignment at the University of Colorado, where he earned his master's degree in Management Science and Information Systems, Hanlin was assigned to Tactical Air Command headquarters, where he was program manager for numerous C4 systems programs. He has also served as Air Command, Control, and Sensors program manager for NATO's Allied Command Europe.

Lt. Col. Hanlin is the son of Letha and retired Air Force Master Sgt. A.J. Hanlin of Oakland. He and his wife, the former Christine J. Clark, who was reared in Barton, have two daughters, Megan and Jennifer. The Hanlins reside at Hickam AFB, Hawaii.

"Starting College As An Adult" Sessions Slated

Members of the Garrett Community College staff will once again hold special "Starting College as an Adult" sessions later this month in several different locations in the community. The purpose of these meetings is to meet with interested adults, answer their questions, and make information about GCC programs and services available to them.

According to Crystal Roberson, director of enrollment development, three early evening meetings have been scheduled. The first will be on Tuesday, Aug. 21, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the new Grantsville Outreach Center. The second meeting will be in the Terra Alta Library on Wednesday, Aug. 22, from 5 to 7 p.m., and the last one in the Laker cafeteria area at GCC in McHenry on Thursday, Aug. 23, from 5 to 7 p.m.

"We know how intimidating the thought of attending college can be to many adults," said Roberson. "That's why we want to meet with them informally and encourage them to consider coming to college, whether to seek a new career or just a new personal interest."

Assisting Roberson with the sessions will be Pat Bennett, director of financial aid; Stacie Upole, career services coordinator; and Marge Mahood, coordinator of student services.

All interested adults are encouraged to attend the session nearest them and to learn about financial aid opportunities, career planning and job placement services, free tutoring, and other services for adults.

Anyone desiring further information may call Roberson at 301-387-3046.

STARTING COLLEGE AS AN ADULT will be the focus of several sessions slated for next week by Garrett Community College. They will be held in three different locations for the convenience of those adults interested in finding out what opportunities are available and requirements necessary to attend college. Pictured from left above are: Crystal Roberts, GCC director of enrollment development; Pat Bennett, director of financial aid; and Marge Mahood, coordinator of student services. See story for details.

GCC Names New Director Of Enrollment Dev.

Crystal Roberson, native of Preston County, W.Va., has been selected as director of Enrollment Development at Garrett Community College, where she will succeed Joan Crawford, who is retiring from the position.

At GCC Roberson will be responsible for marketing both credit and non-credit courses and programs, including advertising in print and electronic media, directing recruiting efforts, analyzing enrollment data, and planning future activities. "I am excited to have become a part of the Garrett Community College team," she says, "and I am looking forward to promoting to the public the many diverse opportunities GCC has to offer." Her first promotional project will be the series of "Starting College as an Adult" seminars planned later this month.

Roberson is a graduate of West Virginia University, Morgantown, with a bachelor of science degree in family and consumer sciences, a major in textile and merchandising and a minor in business marketing. Since graduating from college, she has been employed in marketing with several businesses. For the past three years she has been market representative for Belk Store Services Inc. of Charlotte, N.C., where she directed the staff members of four group offices and provided a broad market perspective on trends and business opportunities. She was responsible for developing and executing a 12-month advertising marketing program.

Prior to that she was an assistant buyer for Mercantile Stores Company of Fairfield, Ohio, where she coordinated advertising and analyzed financial process reports for departmental results and forecasting. She has also worked as a marketing intern for Mountaineer Mall Management Company in Morgantown.

Roberson is married to Brian Boal, who is employed as a certified public accountant in Oakland.

AMERICAN PIE 2

Rated R - Running Time: 1:44 - Released 8/10/01

Although I didn't regard Paul Weitz's blockbusting 1999 teen sex comedy American Pie as highly as many of my fellow critics, feeling it was little more than a lamely concocted story about four high school guys racing each other to be deflowered, I daresay its sequel is leagues better, not only from the aspect of plot development but in terms of characterization and cast interaction. This could be attributed to the directing talent of James B. Rogers (Say It Isn't So), promoted from his AP1 position of first assistant director, but the fact that the entire cast has returned for the sequel, including the eight or ten principals and several minor characters, probably has more to do with it. The result is a palpable sense of camaraderie among the cast, like old high school chums getting back together. And in fact, that's precisely what the story, by Adam Herz and David H. Steinberg, entails.

A year has passed since our friends had their memorable prom experience, and Jim (Jason Biggs), Oz (Chris Klein), Kevin (Thomas Ian Nicholas), Stifler (Seann William Scott), and Finch (Eddie Kaye Thomas) are back home for the summer after freshman year. Although they all succeeded in their goal of a sexual score on prom night, most of them are still woefully inexperienced in the sack, and resolve to spend the summer, er, honing their craft. They pool their resources and rent a huge beach cottage together, planning to make it with as many babes as they can before summer's end, at which time they will have a huge, memorable bash.

The trouble is, with the exception of Stifler, who is game for anything in a skirt, the guys are all stuck on the memories of their prom-night partners. Oz has remained faithful to his glee-club girlfriend Heather (Mena Suvari), but her enrollment in summer school means they have to rely on awkward phone sex until the party. Jim, whose proclivity for extreme public embarassment continues unabated, reunites with band-camp girl Michelle (Alyson Hannigan), who agrees to give him some sexual pointers (pardon the pun) so he'll be ready for a reunion with his Czech beauty and Internet partner, Nadia (Shannon Elizabeth). Kevin spends the summer trying to re-establish ties with ex-girlfriend Vicky (Tara Reid), and Finch, immersing himself in the art of tantric lovemaking, still carries a torch for Stifler's mom (Jennifer Coolidge).

Don't get me wrong; this is still a shallow flick about five guys whose only goal is to get it on, but at least this time it has some heart. The characters seem to have grown considerably, and the chemistry is much more relaxed. Of course, there are numerous comic situations, like the embarrassingly badly timed return of Jim's dad (Eugene Levy) on two occasions, some rauchy band-camp antics, and a scene with two suspected lesbians which borders on soft-core porn. But the humor has enough intelligence to be excused from its low-end premise, and offers many more laughs and much more character development than its shallow predecessor. ★★★★

OSMOSIS JONES

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:38 - Released 8/10/01

Osmosis Jones, the PG-rated cartoon/live-action hybrid about the exploits of a hard-working white blood cell within the human body, marks the kid-movie debut for well-known sleaze merchants Bobby and Peter Farrelly, the writing/directing/producing team behind such classics of the grossout genre as Dumb & Dumber, There's Something About Mary, and Me, Myself & Irene. This time trusting the writing duties to newcomer Marc Hyman, the brothers F. don't fail their well-established reputation for disgusting humor, forcing Bill Murray to perform just about every bodily function known to man with graphic, up-close scrutiny. However, since the live-action portions of the film (those which feature Murray as the omnidirectionally self-abused Frank Pepperidge) serve as a literal vehicle for the cartoon story going on inside his unkempt and unhealthy body, the physiological antics are, I suppose, arguably justified.

This inner saga, which is, if you'll excuse the expression, the "meat" of the film, features colorful if occasionally queasy animation depicting the hustle and bustle of Frank's internal functions, with the body presented as a big city in which all the different organs and/or body parts serve as the various neighborhoods or establishments, each inhabited by a number of cellular characters. Featuring the voices of Chris Rock, David Hyde Pierce, Laurence Fishburne, and William Shatner, it is fast-paced and clever, and Hyman's script full of amusing body-related puns, and as long as you can get past the sheer disgust of some of the subject matter, it presents an enjoyable diversion.

As we learn in the first few minutes of the live-action story, Frank does not take very good care of himself, inside or out. A single father laboring as a zoo custodian, he is ridiculed by everyone except his fresh-faced preteen daughter Shane (Elena Franklin) and his brother and co-worker Bob (Chris Elliott), whose own personal hygiene is no less dubious. But Frank's disrespect for his body comes back to haunt him when the ingestion of a questionable hard-boiled egg results in the appearance of Thrax (Fishburne), a nasty bacterial villain who plans to relieve Frank of his corporeal dominion in record time. Although Mayor Phlegmming (Shatner), whose office is located in the cerebral cortex, underestimates the gravity of the situation and orders a "Drixenol" cold pill (Pierce) to take care of Frank's symptoms, germ fighter Osmosis Jones (Rock) senses the presence of an illness more dangerous than anyone else realizes. Although "Drix" and Jones don't get along at first, they soon realize they must work together to save their host.

While the live-action parts of this film, which feature Molly Shannon as the horrified recipient of most of Frank's disgusting shenanigans, are consistently foul on almost all levels and represent an unfortunate comment on the present condition of Bill Murray's career, the cartoon bits are quite a bit of fun. The background jokes are often more engaging, at least for adults, than the main story (I enjoyed the appearance of signs posted in Frank's body saying things like, "PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAR!" or "No Cilia/No Cytoplasm/No Service"), but Rock and Pierce offer abundant energy to their characterizations and Hyman's story is a fun take on the internal dynamics of the human bod. I'd advise attendees of this film to go on an empty stomach, but if you're willing to endure the Farrellys' warped sense of humor and Murray's scratching, squirting, gas-passing antics, Osmosis Jones offers some lighthearted fun. ★★★★

Thirteenth Annual Homecoming In Kitzmiller Is "Great Success"

The mayor and town council of Kitzmiller recently sponsored the community's 13th annual Kitzmiller Homecoming. "The weekend was a great success," stated an event organizer. "To the standard activities of past years, we added several new features that we believe truly enhanced this great tradition."

The homecoming commenced on Friday evening with a Family Fun Night sponsored by the town's Empowerment Group at the Kitzmiller Elementary School. The evening's theme was "A Walk Down Memory Lane" and featured a dance, juke box with music from the 1950s and '60s, pinball machine, and a "re-created" Cindy's Restaurant. Cindy's was a local youth "hang-out" primarily during the late '50s and early '60s. The nearly 200 individuals who attended reminisced about that bygone era when youth would meet for hamburgers, milkshakes, and Cindy's homemade chili, which was the highlight of the "re-created" restaurant's menu.

The festivities continued on Saturday with the Homecoming Celebration on the Kitzmiller School grounds and adjacent Kitzmiller Park. The celebration began with the 5-K River Run and 2-mile walk. There were 54 participants in the walk and run. Winners for the River Run were as follows: overall top finishers, Tony Yurko and Maureen Hall; male age 13 & under — 1. Daniel Peterson, 2. Jacob Lewis; male age 14-19 — 1. Allen Brady; male age 20-29 — 1. Kyle McCartney, 2. Orlando Caparro; female age 20-29 — 1. Erica Wade; male age 30-39 — 1. Joe Harris, 2. Mark Rogue; female age 30-39 — 1. Robin Storey; male age 40-49 — 1. Steve Sherwood, 2. Randy Storey; female age 40-49 — 1. Mary Sieman, 2. Becky Cosner; female age 50-59 — 1. Ann Rose.

Top finishers for the walk were as follows: overall winners — Andrew Goad and Suzanna Wilburn; age 13 & under — 1. (tie) Ian Brantner and Hannah Storey, 2. Madison Storey; male age 20-29 — 1. Shawn Nesselrodt; female age 20-29 — 1. Missy Nesselrodt, 2. Amy Brantner; female age 30-39 — 1. Sherry Brady; female age 40-49 — 1. Patricia (Suzie) Fike, 2. Betty Burgess; male age 50-59 — 1. Porter Welch, 2. Daniel Paugh; female age 50-59 — 1. Thelma Lacy, 2. Janet Dye; male age 60 & above — 1. Bob Anderson, 2. Ray Welsh; female age 60 & above — 1. Lillian Mitchell, 2. Helen Crouse.

Numerous booths and concessions were open throughout the day, sponsored by several organizations within the local area, including the Kitzmiller Little League, the Kitzmiller Assembly of God's Women's Ministries, Kitzmiller Elementary School PTA, Kitzmiller Ladies' Auxiliary, Kitzmiller Volunteer Fire Department, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, and Garrett County Health Department. The Kitzmiller Lions Club sponsored a chicken barbecue and quickly sold out of 250 dinners.

New to this year's homecoming were pony rides, provided by Western Trail Stables, and horse-drawn wagon tours, provided by Broken Bar Stables. The tours traveled through the town's historic district, chronicling the community's background. Over 250 tickets were sold.

Additionally, the Kitzmiller Historical Museum was opened to the public, with large crowds gathering to view exhibits of the town's past.

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources offered a special presentation titled "Living With Maryland's Black Bears." The presentation consisted of slides and a question-and-answer time.

THE KITZMILLER HOMECOMING was held for the 13th straight year recently, and featured a wide variety of activities for current residents, as well as those who used to live in the town. Among the activities were horse-drawn wagon tours through the town, complete with an oral history of the community. The wagons were provided by Broken Bar Stables. There was also the 5-kilometer River Run, the start of which is pictured above right. Another event held in conjunction with the homecoming was the annual Kitzmiller School reunion, to which grads and former students from all years are invited. Pictured from left below are some of those graduates: Mona (Rohrbaugh) Shultz, a 50-year grad; JoAnn (Milavec) Keller; Earl Keller, another 50-year graduate; George Brady; and Earlene (Shank) Evans. See story for details on all of the events.

The first annual 3-on-3 basketball tournament was successful, with eight teams entering the competition. The winners of the inaugural event were: first place — Jason Lottman, Toby Stoner, and Michael VanBogelen; second place — Tim Barnhouse, Josh Carr, and Rick Hanlin; and third

Welding Cert. Program Slated At Garrett CC

Students who enroll in welding courses at Garrett Community College this fall will have the opportunity to take the test for national welding certification upon completion of their course, according to instructor Greg Carrico. The test will be given at the end of each semester through an arrangement with Beitzel Corporation, and students will be certified by the American Welding Society.

The welding courses will be given three evenings a week from 6 to 10 p.m. in the Agriculture Shop, located next to the aquaculture building on the GCC campus. Fundamentals of Welding is scheduled for Monday evenings, Intermediate Welding I on Tuesdays, and Intermediate II Welding on Thursday. All courses can be taken for two credits or as non-credit offerings.

Carrico is a graduate of the GCC construction technology certificate and the computer applications for business certificate programs, and holds welding certification from the Green Opel Academy in Ohio. He maintains contacts with regional corporations and businesses that employ welders in order to determine their needs.

"This is the time to get welding certification," Carrico said. "There is a constant need for welders. I have seven companies in three different states currently calling for welders, and 80% of last year's students are now employed. High school students should take advantage of the 50% tuition discount and get their welding certification."

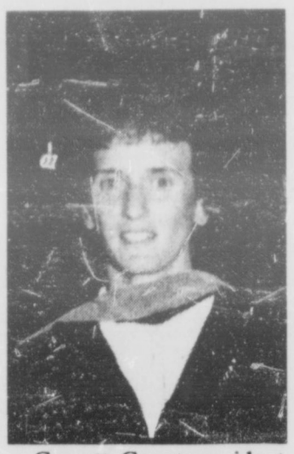
Students can register for the welding class at the Student Assistance Center on weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Classes are limited to 12 participants, so students are advised to register early.

Bethesda Church Sets Homecoming

The Bethesda Church of the Brethren has slated its annual homecoming for Sunday, Aug. 26. The day's activities will get under way with a 9:30 a.m. Sunday school session, followed by a 10:30 a.m. worship service. A covered dish dinner will follow the worship service, and at 1:30 p.m. the men's quartet of the Crellin Assembly of God Church will present a program of gospel music.

All events and activities of the homecoming are open to the public. The Bethesda Church of the Brethren is located along Bittinger Road at Dung Hill Road.

Awarded Master's Degree At FSU; Joins AD Staff



Garrett County resident Karla Bray was awarded a master of science degree in human performance during the spring 2001 commencement at Frostburg State University in May. After earning her degree, Bray was hired this month as the athletic trainer for the FSU Athletic Department.

A graduate of Elk Garden High School in West Virginia, Bray earned her bachelor's degree in health and physical education, with a concentration in athletic training, from FSU in 1999. For the past two years she has served as graduate assistant athletic trainer for the university's athletic teams, and has also been the athletic trainer for the Morgan Wooten FSU Summer Basketball Camp.

As FSU's new athletic trainer, Bray's duties will include assessing and documenting injuries, treatment, and rehabilitation, providing trainer coverage at practices and games, supervising student athletic trainers, and maintaining coverage of the university's athletic training room. Bray is a certified member of the National Athletic Trainers Association, and she is instructor certified in First Aid emergency response.

Bray is the daughter of Dorothy Schoenly of Oakland and Carl Schoenly of Georgetown, S.C. She and her husband Donnie reside in Kitzmiller.

place — Paul Barnhouse, Jason Paugh, and Michael Sharpless. Trophies were awarded to all winners.

Musical entertainment was provided throughout the day by the Christian rock band Solomon's Porch, as well as the variety group SuperTonik. The Kitzmiller volunteer firefighters amused the crowd with their battle of the barrels and water relays.

Several drawings were held. The newly released Kitzmiller community flag, courtesy of the mayor and town council, was won by Martin Smith. The gas grill given by the Kitzmiller Volunteer Fire Department went to Lisa Paugh. The wooden lawn furniture raffled by the Kitzmiller Little League was awarded to Gail Armstrong. The winners of the photo ID contest, in which participants identified pictures of locations within the Kitzmiller area, were Lisa Davis in first place and Aaron Gregg in second.

The homecoming gala concluded on Saturday evening with the Kitzmiller High School reunion. Eighty-seven former Kitzmiller students attended the dinner and accompanying festivities.

Organizers are already working on ideas for next year's event. Councilperson G. Michael Brady said that next year's homecoming celebration "promises to be even bigger and better." The 14th annual Kitzmiller Homecoming weekend will be July 26-27, 2002.

TV PIPELINE

Veteran actor Stack still going at 82

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Robert Stack

Q: I haven't heard much about Robert Stack of The Untouchables and Unsolved Mysteries fame. What has he been up to lately? –Thomas B. DeMott Jr., Cairo, Egypt.

A: More of the same, Thomas. The 82-year-old Stack remains in demand both in front of the camera (Mumford, Sealed With a Kiss, Top Speed) and as a voice artist (Recess: School's Out and the animated Hercules TV series). Stack also co-stars with Corin Nemec (Parker Lewis Can't Lose) and David Faustino (Married ... With Children) in the recent direct-to-video comedy Killer Bud.

Q: Back in the 1970s, I remember Charles Nelson Reilly as the villain in a children's show in which he would take off his top hat and throw it in the air so he could climb in and fly away. Was there such a show? What was it called? –Karl Madl, Bermuda.

A: Sounds like Lidsville, an unusually dark and bizarre 1971-73 Sid and Marty Krofft series starring Butch Patrick (The Munsters) as Mark, a lad who sneaks into the tent of an evil magician (Reilly) and falls into a magic top hat, which transports him to another dimension populated by walking, talking hats. The magician, Hoodoo, trapped Mark there, but his hat friends kept trying to get the boy back home.

Q: I recently saw an episode of Boy Meets World and thought I recognized Mena Suvari (American Beauty). Was she ever on the show? –Jaime Killion via e-mail.

A: Yes, twice. Suvari played Laura in a 1995 episode called "Danger Boy" and a completely different character named Hilary in a 1996 episode called "The Grass Is Always Greener."

Q: Who plays Taylor on MTV's Spydergames? She looks familiar. –K.C. in Evansville, Ind.

A: That's Christina Chambers, a relative newcomer whose previous credits include the role of Maria Torres Evans on the soap Sunset Beach, the film Life 101 and a guest appearance on CSI: Crime Scene Investigation.

Q: Whatever happened to Frances Bavier (Aunt Bee on The Andy Griffith Show) and the man who played Mr. Green Jeans on Captain Kangaroo? –Edward J. Hanley III, Columbus, Ohio.

A: Bavier avoided the spotlight after her appearance in Benji. By many accounts a nervous, high-strung woman, Bavier was not easy to work with, but Andy Griffith reports that she called him in her last years to apologize. She died at 86 in 1989.

Hugh "Lumpy" Brannum, the former musician with Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians who played Mr. Green Jeans, died of cancer in 1987. He was 77 years old.

A Hunger in the Heart

Do you ever feel that something is missing, even when life seems to be going well? Perhaps there is an emptiness in your spirit...a hunger in your heart. Is it possible that a personal relationship with God is missing from your life?

With God, a good life can be great. You will see others in a different and more compassionate light...as one soul looking at another. You will find yourself smiling for no apparent reason other than your heart is filled to overflowing with the Holy Spirit. You can feel immediate satisfaction in simple encounters, like changing places in the grocery store checkout line with the shopper who has only one or two items.

We read in John 6:35 as the Lord says..."I am the bread of life. He who comes to me will never be hungry, and he who believes in me will never be thirsty."

Visit your local house of worship this week. God invites you to feast at His table. You won't leave hungry.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

NO MATTER WHAT YOU CALL IT
August 19, 2001

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 5
Devotional Read:
Mark 12:1-9

Many years ago we visited Naples, Italy. Seeing that we were about to go outside and walk around the city streets, the hotel manager felt it imperative that he warn us about the driving habits of Neapolitan drivers. "You must understand," he said forcefully, "in Naples, green does not necessarily mean green and red does not necessarily mean red." It didn't take us long to observe for ourselves that local drivers were largely unresponsive to the usual understanding of traffic lights.

When green no longer means green and red no longer signifies red, walking or driving the streets of such a city is especially nerve-wracking and dangerous. In fact, when the meanings of familiar words are changed, it can be very stressful to us and dangerous to human relationships. Politicians, entrepreneurs and advertisers who say one thing and mean another contribute to a general sense of cynicism and distrust.

Nowhere is this more of a concern than with the various terms which we use for 'good' and 'evil.' The moral tone of a society is greatly compromised when we get to that point where we hold still for people who, as Isaiah put it, "call evil good and good evil" (Is. 5:20). When this distinction is blurred, the moral fiber of a society crumbles.

Wild Grapes!

This song with which Isaiah begins is a touching analogy of God's relationship with the people of Israel. Comparing his election of Israel to the planting of a vineyard, the Lord tells of all that he had done to make it a fruitful endeavor. Like a hard-working farm laborer, God had figuratively "digged it and cleared it of stones, and planted it with choice vines" (5:2). He did all this in expectation of the vine's fruitfulness. Yes, "he looked for it to yield grapes, but it yielded wild grapes."

Many of Isaiah's contemporaries probably could not understand him. They saw themselves as faithful worshippers of God, paying their tithes, making their sacrifices and attending the holy days. They probably assumed that their lives were "good" in God's sight. But they were so used to calling "evil good and good evil," that they no longer could distinguish between the two.

So what does that have to do with us today? Do you really need help to make the connection? Do you not see that same blasphemy in our own society, calling evil good and good evil—and living accordingly? Like the people of Judah and Israel, are we not his "pleasant planting"? Might he not say equally of us, "What more was there to do for my vineyard that I have not done in it?" (5:4).

What GOD Looks For

Once again it is a matter of people not realizing—or not wanting to—what it is that God wants from us. "He looked for justice, but behold, bloodshed; for righteousness, but behold a cry!" (5:7). (This is a play on words, for the Hebrew for 'justice', mishpat, is close to the word for 'bloodshed', mishpat, while 'righteousness', tsedhagah, is close to 'a cry', tsoqah.) Isaiah makes it crystal clear that greed and avariciousness are 'evil.' "Woe to those who join house to house, who add field to field, until there is no more room" (5:8). Riotous, intemperate living, arrogance and conceit, insobriety, and those who "acquit the guilty for a bribe and deprive the innocent of his right". No matter what they may call it, this kind of living is evil, not the good life.

The result of calling evil good and good evil and living accordingly? The judgment of God and a terrible calamity will fall upon. "And now I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard. I will remove its hedge, and it shall be devoured; I will break down its wall, and it shall be trampled down" (5:11).

Twenty-five-hundred-plus years ago that message came as a shock to the people of Israel and Judah. It should be no less discomforting for us today.

Eleven students have been awarded scholarships by the Garrett Community College Foundation that have been established by local service organizations and businesses, according to GCCF executive director Bretta Rinehard. All of these students are planning to attend GCC this fall.

Lacey Holtschneider, daughter of Dale and Jenny Holtschneider of Oakland, has received the Junior Woman's Civic Club Scholarship and will enter the Early Childhood Education program at GCC to pursue her goal of becoming an elementary school teacher. At Southern High School she was a member of the concert band, marching band, and Garrett County honor band. She was also a stage manager at Our Town Theatre. Holtschneider was named to Who's Who Among American High School Students for three consecutive years. Her interests are acting, music, and collecting Bette Midler memorabilia.

Debra Stemple, wife of Thomas Stemple of Accident, has received the Oakland Rotary Club Scholarship and will enter the Computer Applications for Business program at GCC. After she receives her certificate she hopes to be employed as a medical secretary. She is a 1975 graduate of Northern High School, where she was a member of the color guard and school newspaper staff and worked as an office aide. For the past two years Stemple has been involved in Project Linus, delivering blankets to area hospitals, the Dove Center, and the Crisis Pregnancy Center. Her husband Tom is on the staff of Grantsville Elementary School and her daughter Jessica is employed at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Cynthia Kinsinger, daughter of Marvin and Shirley Kinsinger of Grantsville, has received the Oakland Rotary Club Scholarship and will study agribusiness at GCC. Her goal is to obtain valuable information that will help her and her family make their farm more successful, and help educate others in the local agriculture community about new successful farming methods. She is a graduate of Mt. View Christian School in Springs, Pa., where she was a member of the volleyball and basketball teams, was editor of the yearbook, and served as class secretary. Kinsinger's interests are reading, gardening, hiking, swimming, showing Guernsey cattle, and judging cattle.

Jackie Resh, daughter of Randy and Carol Resh of Grantsville, has received the American Association of University Women Scholarship to study elementary education at GCC as she works toward her goal of becoming a kindergarten teacher. At Northern High School she was a member of the National Honor Society, class treasurer, a distinguished honor roll student, and a member of Who's Who Among American High School Students. Resh's interests include reading, cooking, and spending time outdoors. In addition to working as a server at a local restaurant, she serves as camp counselor at Hickory Environmental Center.

Blake Huber, son of Kent and Leah Huber of Friendsville, has received the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club Scholarship and will enter GCC in the fall to begin his education toward becoming a professional in a health-related field. He is a graduate of NHS, where he was a member of the Lettermen's Club, a four-year letter winner in wrestling, twice the All-Area Student Athlete winner selected by the Cumberland Times News, an honor roll student, and was named to Who's Who Among American High School Students. Huber enjoys kayaking, hunting, fishing, and cross country skiing, and he is a Life Scout from Troop 53 in Grantsville.

Ronnie Carlisle, son of Ronnie and Terry Carlisle of Mtn. Lake Park, has received the Railey Realty Gerald Polansky Memorial Scholarship and will enter GCC this fall to major in secondary education. His goal is to teach mathematics to high school students. Carlisle is an SHS graduate and participated in the Nicaraguan activity project with the Ecumenical Youth Ministry, and the EYM's production of Pippin in 1999. He is interested in sports and is a member of Ecumenical Youth Ministry.

Henry D. Elsea III, son of Janet and Pastor Henry Elsea Jr. of Grantsville, has received the Hobby House Press/Ruddell Family Scholarship for business students and a GCC board of trustees scholarship. He will study network administration and computer repair at GCC and plans to pursue his interest in computers by being actively involved in technology of all kinds. His other interests are reading, fiction writing, and teaching. Elsea is actively involved in the district youth work of the Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren, where he teaches a Sunday school class and his father is pastor. The Elsea family recently moved to Maryland.

Daniel Dockray, son of Barbette and Edward Dockray of New York, has received the Hobby House Press/Ruddell Family Scholarship for adventure sports students to continue his education in adventure sports and business management. He is a graduate of Norwich High School in New York, where he was a lifeguard and a member of the outing club. He also served with his community's volunteer fire department. At GCC Dockray is president of the Adventure Sports Club and organizer of the "ultimate frisbee" league. His career goal is to own and operate a state-of-the-art adventure sports facility and guiding company. His interests are any outdoor activities — skiing, mountaineering, kayaking, camping, fishing, mountain biking, playing guitar — where he can live his "carpe diem" creed. He has lived in four different states and has traveled through nine countries. At the present time Dockray is employed at the Deep Creek Brewery and as a ski instructor at the Wisp.

Jeremy Rice, son of Jeff and Patty Rice of Frostburg, has received a McDonald's Scholarship to continue his education at GCC. He is a graduate of Northern High, where he played varsity basketball and baseball, was a member of the Lettermen's Club, the chorus, yearbook staff, and honor roll, and was named to Who's Who Among American High School Students for three years. At GCC he is in the General Studies program, is a member of the golf team, and represented the college at a conference on "Improving Undergraduate Education" in Seattle, Wash. After graduating from GCC, he intends to transfer to a four-year university, and eventually become a coach. In addition to playing golf, basketball, and baseball, Rice enjoys landscaping, as well as working with young people — he coaches seventh and eighth grade teams at Northern Middle School. He is a member of St. John's United Church of Christ in Grantsville, where he serves as a trustee on the consistory and as groundskeeper.

Delilah Miller, daughter of Ray and Rachel Miller of Oakland, has received a McDonald's Scholarship to continue her elementary education program at GCC as she pursues her goal of obtaining a teaching degree. A graduate of Beka High School in Pensacola, Fla., she enjoys writing, reading, and working with children.

Russell Lawson, son of Byron and Sally Miller of Grantsville, has received a McDonald's Scholarship to continue his education in physical therapy. He graduated from Northern High, where he played JV and varsity basketball, was a teacher's assistant, and was a member of the Students for Christ Club, plus the newspaper and yearbook staffs. His stated goal is "to get a great job so that he can live life to the fullest." In addition to playing in the Grantsville 3-on-3 basketball league, Lawson is a member of a church youth group and was a camp counselor this past summer.

Lisa Yommer, daughter of Timothy and Cheryl Yommer of Mtn. Lake Park, has received the Westvaco Scholarship and will enter GCC to study respiratory therapy. She is a 2001 Southern High graduate. Her interests are visiting with her friends and relaxing to music.

GCC To Offer Webmaster Cert. Program In Fall

Garrett Community College has expanded its non-credit computer offerings by adding the Certified Internet Webmaster (CIW) Master Designer certification program. Endorsed by the Association of Internet Professionals and the International Webmaster's Association, CIW certification defines the job roles and associated skills required to implement e-business solutions. The CIW program was developed by ProSoft Training.com, an Internet solutions company based in Austin, Texas.

Courses in Master Site Designer certification have been scheduled for the fall semester, according to Dr. Terry Norris, director of Business and Information Technology. This particular path includes three 35-hour courses, each mapped to an industry exam. Students will study basic networking and Internet technologies, web page authoring and third-generation web site development, and e-commerce strategies and practices, as they gain hands-on experience.

"In this tech-savvy age, Internet skills are a must," stated Norris." The CIW certification program is an excellent and comprehensive option for individuals who want to enter or advance in the booming field of e-commerce."

The first CIW course is scheduled for Tuesday, September 4, from 8:30 a.m. to noon. For more information and to register for CIW classes, persons should call Norris at 301-387-3043.

Antiques

Q. I am dressing an antique china-headed doll as a bride, and I wondered what kind of dress she should wear?

A. Brides were very practical in past centuries. The bridal dress was usually just a "Sunday best." Most were in subdued colors. White was an impractical color, difficult to keep clean. The Victorian bride often wore satin or velvet. A daring bride wore red, but most preferred blue or brown.

Queen Victoria's wedding dress in 1840 was cream-colored with handmade lace. It created a new look and helped the ailing lace industry. Soon, all brides chose white as a symbol of virginity. The veil became popular in the 1870s.

Q. My daughters were born in the 1970s, and I'm embarrassed to tell you that I am only now cleaning out their toy chests. It's fun, and it brings back happy memories. Among the Barbie dolls are some small Strawberry Shortcake dolls. Should I save these dolls? Does anyone collect them?

A. Kenner introduced Strawberry Shortcake dolls and related accessories in 1979. The dolls were based on an American Greetings character. They were a big hit with little girls.

Each doll smelled like a fruit. Strawberry Shortcake smelled like strawberries, Blueberry Muffin like blueberries, Huckleberry Pie like huckleberries and Apple Dumpling like apples. The earliest dolls had flat hands. Later ones had hands that curled so they could hold flowers or an umbrella. All of the dolls and other toys are collectible today. An early doll alone is worth $25 to $40.

Wild About Catnip — Or Not?

Q. I left the cap off a tube of liniment, used for muscle aches. When I came back to retrieve it, I saw my cat sniffing and licking at the tube opening, rubbing his whiskers against the tube — you name it! He went nuts over it. Are cats drawn to the ingredients in this type of liniment?

A. Some cats find it irresistible — but you should keep it away from them. Many muscle-ache remedies contain menthol, a chemical similar to one found in catnip. Cats are sometimes drawn to it, and their actions — purring, rolling or stretching on the open container, and playing with it — are the same as their reaction to catnip.

The other pain-relieving drugs contained in these liniments can present a real danger to pets. So, like any non-pet-approved product, keep them in a medicine cabinet, out of reach. (Thanks to Dr. Dan Carey at the Iams Corporation for this important information.)

Replace that tube of liniment with real catnip — toys filled with the herb can be found at any pet store. You can also buy containers of dried catnip and place a pinch in a toy or other play object (my cat's favorite toy is an old sock, with a bit of catnip in the toe). Catnip can be grown in your garden, as well.

Aurora CEOS Club Marks 75 Years Of Community Service

by Virginia Martin
Club Historian

The Aurora CEOS (Community Education and Outreach Services) Club will mark its 75th anniversary on Sunday, Sept. 9, from 2 to 4 p.m. with a public display at the Aurora United Methodist Church Memorial Building. There will be displays, pictures, and memorabilia from the many past activities and achievements of the organization, the oldest club in Preston County.

The Aurora CEOS was organized in October 1926 as the Aurora Farm Women's Club with 38 charter members. The list of members was submitted to the Preston County Extension Office by the secretary, Mrs. Page (Veda) Schrock, on Nov. 3, 1926. This list is in the possession of the club. Three members, Mildred Kovalck, Maxine Hauser, and Martha Bolyard, have been members of the club for more than 50 years.

Our founding organization, the Extension Service, came into being with the founding of the West Virginia University in 1867. Moving into the communities to strengthen families and develop a higher standard of living through leadership development, continuing education, and community involvement, the "Farm Women's Club" began as a rural outreach service in the state of West Virginia in 1914.

The Aurora Club was the first organized in Preston County. The name of our organization has changed several times, and its intents and purposes altered to reflect the development in women's domestic circumstances. Known as the "Home Demonstration Clubs" starting in 1954, the organization again changed its name to the "Extension Homemakers" in 1968 and remained such until 1998 when for legal reasons, the name was changed to CEOS.

Today's CEOS Club is composed of 23 members who meet monthly to discuss topical issues and to participate in researched educational presentations and discussions, ranging from food safety and health care to international cultures and government policies.

Our most recent activity has been in cooperation with the Aurora Area Historical Society in presenting to the public the photo exhibit "Through His Eyes: The Photographs of Volkmar Wentzel." Other ways that club members participate in the life of the community include reading at the local elementary school, recycling, promoting cancer awareness and sponsoring teams for the Relay of Life activity, purchasing gifts for children for the Santa Tree Program, serving meals to the local Lions Club, working with the local 4-H Club for the lighting of the community Christmas trees, keeping a bulletin board at the local post office to inform the community of activities, and preparing a yearly scrapbook to preserve the history of the club.

For further information on the Aurora CEOS Club, interested persons may contact Virginia Martin at 304-735-3402.

AURORA CEOS PLANS ANNIVERSARY EVENT — The Aurora CEOS Club, the oldest club in Preston County, will mark its 75th anniversary with a public display set for Sunday, Sept. 9, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Aurora United Methodist Church building. The CEOS (Community Education and Outreach Services) Club was founded in 1926 as the Aurora Farm Women's Club; in 1954 the name was changed to the Home Demonstration Club; and in 1968 it was changed to the Extension Homemakers Club, which remained until its current name was adopted in 1998. Shown above are the Aurora CEOS Club members assigned to plan for the anniversary celebration. From the left are Virginia Martin, Martha Bolyard, Deloris Slawter, Alice Penzo, and Ressie Conrad. Not available for the photo was fellow planning committee member Delores Douglas.

In Memory of
who passed away August 18, 1971

Thirty years ago God took you to a better place. You are missed as much now as when you first left us. We now tell our memories and stories of you to your eight grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren. There has been so much we've missed sharing with you, but we have felt you with us. We love you, dad.

Your children,
Phyllis, Gary, & Carla

Congratulations!
Brandon Manko
on your entering the Garrett County Agricultural Fair
Thank you to loving Mom,
Marsha Custer Marple.
Special thank you to beloved
Grandma and Grandpa,
Janet and Leo Custer.

Special Thanks to all of you from the family of Jaron Michael Fulmer

In my heart somehow I know
You heard God say, "Jaron, it's your time to go."

So excited and anxious about going to the beach.
"How many more minutes, Dad?"
Time ... soon within reach

A special vacation with your family, in the outdoors you love.
All the while, you knew
He's calling from above.

The souvenir T-shirt you wear, for the last time on earth.
"Are you hunting ... for God?"
Time for rebirth.

That special little time playing a game with Mom,
Just before heading for the cabin ... knowing all along.

When Mommy & Daddy came home that night,
Went to your bedroom & turned on the light,

There upon your pillow your Bible lay,
"I'm going home with Jesus. I'm okay."

Your memories we'll cherish each & every day,
As you help God show us the way.

Written by: Sandy Iden

We, the family of Jaron Michael Fulmer, would like to thank everyone who has been there for us during this difficult time. The prayers have been felt and comforting. The food, friendships, cards, calls, and gifts of love have been greatly appreciated. Our prayer for you is that God will bless each of you through all that you have done for us.

We are establishing a memorial fund in Jaron's name at WEPCO Federal Credit Union. Any donations may be deposited there.

With sincere thanks and appreciation - Mike, Kelli, Ayla & Justyce Fulmer, Gary & Sandy Iden, Mike & Susan Fulmer.

The "Golden Advantage" club is a new program for local senior citizens that is being launched by Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The club is a membership program for adults 55 and older and is designed to assist area seniors in maintaining a healthy lifestyle.

Through participation with an annual membership, individuals can take advantage of specific benefits that include: advance notice of senior wellness clinics and screenings; free monthly blood pressure check; recipes, health tips, newsletters, and health articles as available; access to a billing expert/educator to help fill out medical forms; free notary service (by appointment); free self-care booklet and educational pamphlets; advance directive/living will consultations (by appointment); and a 10% discount on regularly priced giftware in the Loar Auxiliary Gift Shop.

"I am very excited to help launch this program," stated GCMH Wellness coordinator Deana Clester. "We have taken a special interest in the senior population of our area and look forward to assisting them in maintaining healthy lifestyles."

The annual membership fee for this program is $5 per person. For more information about the program, persons may contact Clester at 301-533-4295.

Joel B. Miller Descendants Plan Final Reunion

The descendants of Joel B. Miller will hold their final reunion on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 3, at Beitzel's barn near Bittinger, beginning at 11 a.m.

Organizers of the event, which will be 75th anniversary of the first J.B. Miller gathering, hope to attract a sizable crowd for this last get-together.

"When I was growing up," said one family member, "the Miller reunion at Brenneman's Grove in Springs, Pa., was the one to go to. Cousins and aunts and uncles came from all over, and the food was better than anywhere else. It was the social event of the year.

"The ice cream stand, coffee brewed in a huge kettle over an open fire, and singing, with old and young seated on plank-and-keeler benches — all were delights that helped to make the Miller reunion unforgettable."

Dwindling attendance has forced a careful look at the reunion's viability in recent years, according to a family spokesperson, and at the 2000 gathering those present agreed to bring the tradition to a close on its 75th birthday. Those attending this year are encouraged to share photographs and memories from years gone by. Several of the last planks from those trademark benches will be auctioned, and the Miller reunion will end.

Lunch will be "pot luck," with table service and drinks provided. Lawn chairs are suggested. Directions to Beitzel's barn from I-68 as follows: exit 19 in Grantsville, 495 S. to Bittinger, turn left at Buckel's Store.

Rt. 40 Club Visits Publisher

Students from Route 40 School Reading Literacy Club recently visited the publishing house of Herald Press in Scottsdale, Pa.

The club, which meets after school on a weekly basis, focuses on student writing assignments which go "above and beyond" activities completed in the regular classroom, according to a spokesperson. Students visited the publishing house to submit copies of their personal book for review and to tour the facility.

Students in the club were responsible for publishing the school newspaper and completing projects using Power Point. All students in grades 3-5 were encouraged to remain after school and participate.

The after-school club was facilitated by Debbie Brenneman, a teacher at the school. The club received funding for its numerous projects through the Maryland After-School Opportunity Program and the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families.

Weekend Rain Breaks Dry Spell

The rain Maryland received Friday through Sunday this past weekend provided some relief from the recent hot, dry weather trend, with precipitation ranging from .3 inches in Garrett County to 3.9 inches in Caroline County. With last week's rain, many areas are now close to or above normal precipitation levels for this month. The moisture was needed to revive crops, especially in non-irrigated fields, and replenish soil moisture levels. Last week was dry prior to the rain ending the week, allowing farmers 5.7 days suitable for field work.

While the moisture improved conditions for most row crops statewide, relief may have arrived too late to curb the effects of the four-week hot, dry weather trend to corn in some northern counties. Consequently, yields may be reduced in those areas. Nonetheless, the corn crop is rated 17% excellent, 49% good, 25% fair, 7% poor, and 2% very poor. Soybeans are rated 17% excellent, 52% good, 21% fair, 8% poor, and 3% very poor.

Topsoil and subsoil moisture levels increased because of the rain, creating surplus levels in some areas. Topsoil moisture is rated 23% surplus, a 21% increase over the previous week, 49% adequate, 24% short, and 4% very short. Subsoil moisture is now 8% surplus, a 6% increase over the previous week, 65% adequate, 15% short, and 12% very short.

Maryland Grain Checkoff Program Will Continue

Organizers of the referendum on the Maryland Grain Checkoff Program were pleased recently with a positive outcome. Although voter turn-out was not as good as expected, the grain checkoff program passed by an 85% margin. The total number of votes equaled 325, with 273 in favor of the program. Eligible voters had to be financially engaged in the growing of grain as a landowner, tenant, or sharecropper.

The Maryland Grain Producers Association had been authorized to conduct the referendum by the former Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Virts. The vote was held in county Extension offices on Thursday, Aug. 2, or by previous absentee ballot, with the official counting taking place on Aug. 7 at the quarterly meeting of the Maryland Grain Producers Association. Under the authorizing state law, a referendum is required every five years to reaffirm support for the checkoff program.

"We are very pleased that Maryland's grain producers were in favor of the Maryland Grain Checkoff Program (MGCP)," stated Donnie Tennyson, president of the Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) and a grain farmer in Dameron. "I feel that farmers realized the importance of this program and how it is expanding new uses of grain to improve the profitability of our business."

The mandatory checkoff states that a farmer must pay an assessment of one-half of one percent (.5%) to be collected on the net value of each bushel of grain sold. The checkoff will be deducted at the first point of sale on all grain, with the exception of soybeans, which is already under a national checkoff program. Any producer who does not wish to participate in the program can get a full or partial refund upon written request.

Joe Mullhausen, president of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) and a grain farmer in Street (Harford Co.), added, "I felt confident the MGCP would pass by a substantial vote. However, it is disappointing that such a small number of farmers actually took the time to cast their vote. Farmers are getting results from the positive effects of this program. Great strides are being made in research, education, and promotion of our products. I know commodity prices are low, but the question that should be asked is, Where would we be without the checkoff? I think most farmers know the answer."

MGPUB is the 18-member board that administers the checkoff program. The 14 voting members of the board represent grain producers from six regions throughout the state. Funding is used for education, research, and market development. The board appropriates most of the approximately $450,000 collected annually to provide grants to carry out these activities. One of the grants awarded in 2001 was to conduct a study on the feasibility of a small grains ethanol plant in Maryland.

Currently, 20 corn and 21 small grain checkoff programs across America are working together to improve grower profitability. Now passed by a majority of voters, the 10-year-old Maryland Grain Checkoff Program will continue for another five years, beginning October 1, 2001.

Roundup Ready Alfalfa Varieties Being Developed

Commercial release of Roundup Ready (RR) alfalfa varieties is expected in 2004 or 2005. The date of release is primarily dependent on the duration of the review process prior to regulatory approval. Multiple location forage trials of RR experimental germplasm will begin later this year.

The RR transgene has been backcrossed into a wide variety of germplasm sources. Roundup Ready varieties will be available with excellent adaptation to most major alfalfa production areas in the world (fall dormancy three to nine ratings). Preliminary forage yield data suggests that the first RR varieties will yield equal to or better than the commercial check varieties with the same fall dormancy. The RR varieties will also have excellent multiple pest resistance with high forage quality that characterizes many of the newer commercial varieties.

All RR varieties will have at least 90% trait purity, meaning that 90% or more of the plants will be tolerant to Roundup. The tolerance of RR varieties provides flexibility in application timing, making technology a useful tool in both stand establishment and in control of perennial weeds in established alfalfa.

Let's Be Careful Out There!

Farm accidents claimed lives on the average of 700 to 800 people in the United States each year. Farm accidents caused 140,000 people to suffer disabling injuries, according to the National Safety Council. The following safety practices may save a life:

- Equip every tractor with a dealer-certified rollover protective structure and seat belts.
- Make sure all guards and shields are in place.
- Shut off machinery before working on it. Use lockout, tag-out procedures to prevent being started unexpectedly.
- Prevent falls by cleaning up around the farm and repairing ladders and steps. Falls are the third leading cause of injuries behind machine and animal-related events.
- Use protective gear, including goggles, a respirator, gloves, apron, steel-toed shoes, and hearing protection as the job warrants.
- Assign children seven and older age-appropriate tasks, carefully considering what the child can or cannot safely do.

Take a break. Fatigue increases the chance of a machinery operator making a mistake.

Study Confirms Pests' Preference For Corn in Mid-Atlantic Refuges

When it comes to combating the European corn borer, farmers in Northeastern and Mid-Atlantic states should not count on any "help" from plants outside the corn field. To slow the development of resistance, farmers should carefully follow the EPA guidelines for planting refuges — the areas surrounding their biotech-corn fields — a study from the latest issue of Environmental Entomology confirms. The journal is published by the Entomological Society of America (ESA).

The genetically engineered corn, known as Bt corn, was developed to combat the European corn borer, a major crop pest that causes $1 billion in annual damage and control costs in the United States. Bt-corn hybrids contain a gene from the bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis, or Bt, that produces a toxin to kill European corn borers, but widespread use of this corn can lead to these insect pests developing resistance to the toxin.

To manage the resistance problem, EPA mandates that a minimum of 20% of each Bt-corn field be planted with genetically unaltered corn to serve as a "refuge" where European corn borers can grow without being exposed to the Bt toxin. These unexposed pests can then mate with any Bt-resistant survivors emerging from the corn, thus prolonging the pest population's susceptibility to the toxin.

It has been speculated that any type of genetically unaltered plants could serve as refuge plantings so long as they are the European corn borers' natural hosts, which happens to be over 200 plants, including crops and weeds. However, ESA member John Losey, an entomologist from Cornell University and lead author of the study, found the pests favored corn over other plants, including weeds and other crops.

During the 1998 and 1999 growing seasons, Losey, along with ESA members and entomologists Dennis Calvin of Pennsylvania State University, Maureen Carter of Cornell, and Charles Mason of the University of Delaware, examined the number of European corn borer eggs and larvae in two cornfield refuges in New York and Pennsylvania.

To reflect cornfields specific to the geographical area, the refuges consisted of two plots of corn, one planted early and the other planted late in the growing season, as well as soybeans, potato, oats, and weeds. The latter were known host plants for the corn borers that are widely distributed throughout the geographical area and included barnyardgrass, common ragweed, giant foxtail, lambsquarter, Pennsylvania smartweed, and redroot pigweed. As part of resistance management, no pesticides against European corn borer were used in the refuges.

In New York, Losey and colleagues found corn borer eggs only on corn, and in Pennsylvania only on corn, lambsquarter, and pigweed. The researchers also found in both sites more larvae on corn than any other plant. In comparing early- and late-planted corn, they found more larvae on the early corn.

"We found very little evidence to suggest that a substantial proportion of European corn borer larvae develop to adults on plants other than corn," Losey said. "The pests' preference to corn may be at least partly due to the failure of non-corn host plants to provide all the requirements for European corn borer survival and development."

Losey and colleagues also conducted a laboratory study to compare corn and common weeds as host plants of the insect pests. "We found that corn and ragweed were the two favorite hosts of corn borer larvae in the lab, at least two times more favored than the other plants," Losey said. The findings confirmed those of the field study.

Results from the study suggest that the size of refuges should not be decreased. "Our evidence does not support a recommendation of reduced refuge planting in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic," Losey said.

As of today, the complete study can be accessed on the Web for free via http://www.entsoc.org/pubs/.

Pilot Program Introduced To Assist Maryland Dairy Farmers

Maryland dairy farmers who want to remain in business in the state's increasingly urban/suburban environment must overcome some serious management challenges. Their profitability and sustainability are threatened by everything from environmental regulations and nuisance suits from neighbors to food safety and animal welfare issues and a growing need for biosecurity controls. Now more than ever, they require direct quality management support and technical assistance.

A new pilot program involving five dairy producers, including Terry Hauser of Oakland, representatives of the dairy industry and the Maryland Department of Agriculture, and faculty of the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension and the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine is designed to provide that support and assistance. Called the Maryland Dairy Quality Assurance Program, its goal is to ensure a healthful and safe food supply by advocating the adoption of best management practices (BMPs) that promote animal health, improve profitability, and encourage environmental stewardship.

The group directly involved with implementing the program met recently to discuss the issues and the program, which is based on a successful New York state cattle health assurance program introduced in 1998. Like the New York program, the Maryland pilot will feature a risk-management approach to dairy production, according to Dr. Bob Peters, an Extension dairy specialist at the University of Maryland College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Teams of dairy farmers, veterinarians, Extension educators, state agency representatives, and private consultants will develop an on-farm risk assessment model for each of the five participating dairy farms. The teams will evaluate the operations, identify areas for improvement, prioritize the issues, and then develop a herd plan using BMPs for three to five of those issues. Recommendations for improvement will be based on the mission and goals of the individual producers. Ideally, the plans will be reviewed quarterly.

"We believe this approach will enable dairy farmers to develop plans for achieving multiple goals, such as reducing food safety risks, improving herd health, protecting the environment, and enhancing profitability," Peters said.

The pilot project is envisioned as a one-year program. Initial on-site assessments at individual farms are in progress. Participants hope the results will demonstrate the validity of the program and encourage state government support for its expansion.

Brenneman Is New Member Of Angus Association

Stephanie Brenneman, Oakland, is a new junior member of the American Angus Association, reports Dick Spader, executive vice president of the national organization with headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo.

Junior members of the association are eligible to register cattle in the American Angus Association and take part in association-sponsored shows and other national and regional events.

The American Angus Association is the largest beef registry association in the world, with more than 35,000 active adult and junior members.

Good Crop Yields Still Won't Compete With 2000 Harvest

Maryland grain farmers won't see the record-setting production levels of last year, but the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service (MASS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicts the amount of corn and soybeans to be harvested this fall will still be above average. The projected corn-for-grain yield of 135 bushels-per-acre would be the third highest on record. However, that yield is down 20 bushels from the 2000 season, totaling 58.1 million bushels. As of July 29, 70% of the corn being grown in Maryland was in good to excellent condition.

"Last season's production was a once-in-a-lifetime experience that no one expected to see repeated," said Maryland secretary of Agriculture Hagner R. Mister. "If these yield projections hold up through the harvest, our farmers should feel real good about their crop."

Similar to corn, soybean production is expected to decline slightly from last year's 43 bushels-per-acre. At 38 bushels-per-acre, MASS projects a total of 19.4 million bushels will be harvested, a 12% decline from the previous year. Eighty percent of soybeans in Maryland are in good to excellent condition.

"This has been a very good year for field crops in most areas of the state, and we anticipate an excellent harvest," said Ray Gariby, director of the Maryland Agriculturai Statistics Service. "While not plentiful, rain has been timely in many areas and crops are generally in good shape."

MASS also projects tobacco production to reflect previously announced reductions as a result of the state's tobacco buyout program. The projected yield of 1,400 pounds-per-acre is just 50 less than a year ago, but acreage has decreased 70% because of the buyout, resulting in a predicted total production of 2.4 million pounds for 2001 compared to 8.3 million pounds in 2000.

GO SAFELY... MIDAS

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Well, here we are on Monday, which is the first day of the fair. So I have not given much thought about this column, with all the chaos we had around here yesterday trying to get all the girls' art pieces matted and framed and ready to enter in the fair. Even though I had stocked up with lots of mats and frames, with four artists in one house you still have mass confusion and competition for the right mat or frame.

I am sad to report we did not have any garden produce, neither vegetables nor flowers, so we don't have the real pleasure of trying to find 10 perfect green beans, pea pods, or five perfect carrots or beets, plus onions. We did have one nice leaf lettuce plant, but we just decided to scrap the whole produce scene. I guess I am not the only one, as Marci Glotfelty couldn't find 10 good beans, and not even sister Carol had much luck in finding vegetables to enter.

As far as I can tell driving around Bittinger, no one has a decent garden this year, except maybe Bill and Thelma Emery. They have a nice size garden with lots of large plants, and she probably has the best floral display in the area, in spite of what she contributed for my dolls. Another pretty good color display is in front of the house of William and Linda Hewitt.

A few households surprised me, as they have no flowers at all. The Benders in downtown Bittinger have a nice flower bed. As always, Mabel Stanton has a great crop of sunflowers. I also have a patch of sunflowers around my birdfeeder. For some reason my day lilies did very poorly this year, although one plant did give me a really lovely triple blossom. That plant was donated to me a few years ago by Gary Mullich on Foy Road. A few days ago I drove by his place to see how his flowers were doing. Although he was not home, I did see running down through his meadow a hefty black bear. At first I thought it was a ghost of Gary's late, wonderful big black dog Fozzie, who sad to say died a few years ago. In spite of his large size and imposing presence, he was as sweet a dog as I ever met.

I am sad to report that the little ball of fluff who was the guard dog at Brenneman's Store passed away in late July, in spite of the very best effort of her heartbroken owner, Susan Brenneman. Susan took her to Virginia-Maryland Veterinary School, which was my brother Scott's, alma mater. She spent two weeks in the ICU with round-the-clock attendance by top vets and students. Susan was impressed by the high level of care there, but sadly it was not enough in this case. Now everyone can go in the store without any fear.

Another animal tragedy struck our household when Caitlin found a baby bunny killed by Claire's cat Tiger. She was just sick with sadness. Especially touching to me was when she sobbed, "Her mother will be worried because she doesn't know what happened to her baby."

My 12-year-old tenderhearted little girl even cares about the suffering people far away in the world. When she saw a report from the war crime trial at the Hague, she was so shocked and appalled to hear about the mass execution in Bosnia that she moped around for hours until we saw an update from the trial and we learned the verdict was guilty. The news was like she just heard that her favorite sport team won the big game. I was so proud of her, and I am glad she can know that groups and people can't get away with genocide without the world holding them accountable for their cruel action. Even if it is too little too late, it is better than nothing, I told her.

Right now, Claire, Caitlin, and Mere and their cousins are busy at the fair with their market livestock 4-H projects. They have been busy with the bathing and the weigh-in of their hogs and lambs. They all need eager bidders with deep pockets at the auction on Saturday night. Even though you might not want the meat for your own family, they make a great donation to your favorite organization for the fund-raising raffles.

Not too long ago a distant relation of mine, one of the Glattfelders of York, Pa., broke the world record for the price for a baby beef raised by a local kid. I forget how much he paid per pound, but I think the net price for the steer was a few thousand dollars. I am sure that helps a bit with the heartbreak the livestock kids experience when they have to sell their beloved animals. The money they receive does put a healthy addition to their college funds. Anyway, it will be high human drama at the FFA and 4-H Livestock Sale on Saturday evening at the fair.

We enjoyed a very quick visit from my Aunt Dorothy Quaintance, as she has made her move from New Mexico to New York state, where her son Jay and family live. She has completed about six years in the Border Servant Corps sponsored by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in both Denver and New Mexico. It is a volunteer service program to provide services for underprivileged women.

During her stop in Bittinger, her first priority was to visit her brother, Dale Glotfelty, in Ruby Memorial Hospital. Also she attended her 45-year class reunion of the class of 1956 of Northern High School. Dinner was held at the Holiday Inn in Grantsville, and she enjoyed visiting with Kenny and Ruth Glotfelty, Gary and Kate Fratz, and Ward Umbel and wife. They all enjoyed reconnecting with a large number of classmates.

This was the largest reunion ever for the class of 1956. A special guest was their biology teacher, Charles Strauss. Although, Mr. Strauss was retired before I entered Northern, his wife Mary was my fourth grade teacher.

Although Dot's time was very limited, she had a brief visit with her nephews and nieces. She checked out Courtney Englar's new house in the Cove and visited Rodney and Marci Glotfelty and kids, and the Bass family, as well as me and my girls. Sunday morning she attended church at Emmanuel with us. It was the first time she saw the new church, and she enjoyed watching my Meredith performing service as the acolyte.

She said Mere was very much comfortable in the spotlight and looks like she is already to walk down the aisle as a bride. Next Sunday she will miss her duty, as Lloyd and our girls start his family's trip to Ocean City after the livestock sale.

According to Lloyd, who is one of the field crop superintendents at the fair, it was a poor year for haymaking, not just in Bittinger, as this year's entries in the highly competitive hay class are both few and not up to the usual high quality. But the tall corn stalks this year are better than usual. I guess that makes good sense since we had both a wet spring and June, with unusually hot weather so far this summer, which is great for corn growing, but not so great for haymaking. I guess the wet spring was to blame for the low turnout in the vegetable entries. Everyone got a late start.

I have a few tiny green tomatoes and no broccoli heads. I know that Marci still has only a couple green tomatoes, as today we discussed the need for tomatoes as a remedy for skunked dogs. Her little "Cowboy" recently had a run-in with a skunk, and one tomato juice bath and two vinegar baths didn't completely eliminate the odor. I suggested she should try a fresh tomato. Whether it will do the trick or not we do not know. But since Rodney said you need a high acid solution, I guess a green tomato would be more acid than a ripe one. She thought she might as well try it. It is better to waste a green tomato than live with skunk odor.

Although we did not get another visit from the skunk who sprayed our dumb Lab, Boo, we had a bold deer munching the few apples we have on our yellow transparent apple tree. This is an off-year. Every other year we get a good crop from it, enough to supply ample applesauce making. This year it looks like there won't be much applesauce making.

I am afraid I missed one big news items from last week about the final game for the Doerr Construction Hot Stove baseball team, which won the championship game, with Torrey Poholsky pitching a complete game.

I am sure that both Torrey and his dad Lenny were delighted about the recent Pittsburgh player inducted into the Hall of Fame. Lynn Swanne made it to the Football Hall of Fame, and Bill Mazeroski, the hero of the World Series of 1960, was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. I can still hear the radio in my mind announcing by Bob Prince that Mazeroski had hit his home run to win the game and series.

Cindy Stanton and Ferne Beachy visited Mel and Steve Presgraves at Fenwick Island, Del., this week.

RT. 40 SCIENCE CLUB INSTALLS BIRD BOXES — The Route 40 School Science Club recently installed bird boxes at the Eastern Garrett Recreation Area as a community service project. The after-school activities club also built bird boxes for the school habitat area and for installing at each member's home. Club members researched information about blue birds and their homes before constructing the bird boxes. The Route 40 Science Club meets weekly and is involved in ongoing studies and projects that enhance the students' knowledge and understanding of science. All students in grades 3-5 are encouraged to participate. In addition to bird study, the students are involved in stream quality analysis and physics activities, and are responsible for maintaining the school habitat area. The club receives funding for its projects through the Maryland After-School Opportunity Program and the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families. In the photo above, kneeling, left to right, are Justin Weaver, Latasha Fresh, Breanna Siegmyer, Gregory Blocher, Haley Chevalier, Emily Kaister, John McGettigan, Brittany Murray, William Powell, and Steven Moon. BITTINGER

Mrs. Freda Dennison and daughter Barbara, Mrs. Grace White, and Sally and Torrey Poholsky were Thursday visitors of Ralph and Ethel Buckel.

The Bittinger Fire Department will hold its monthly chicken barbecue this Saturday, Aug. 18, in conjunction with the annual Bittinger Picnic. Everyone is welcome. A variety of other foods and desserts will be offered for sale.

I can't think of any more news, except something that we do not see very often, which was a stretch limousine on Rock Lodge Road. I assume it was just passing through bound for Deep Creek Lake.

The Grantsville High School class of 1941 held a 60-year class reunion at the Hill Top Inn in Grantsville on Saturday night. Members attending from here were Russell and Dot Buckel Teets. Also attending from Utah were former residents Miriam Detrick Hummel and husband Garland. Deceased members of the class from Bittinger are Richard Buckel and Thelma Glotfelty Klotz. Among those unable to attend were Clark Hetrick and Lucy Brenneman Kelly.

Forever Flowers

"Business is 'blooming'" according to Forever Flowers proprietor Amy Jo Thomas, who opened her Salisbury, Pa., flower shop one year ago. Conveniently located along Route 219, Forever Flowers carries a full line of flowers for all occasions, and delivers to the surrounding Salisbury/ Grantsville areas.

"We offer quality fresh flowers, a full line of wedding flowers, sympathy flowers, custom cemetery flowers, and prom and special occasion flowers, plus live houseplants, silk arrangements, balloons, gift, fruit, and vegetable baskets, stuffed animals, candles, cards, baskets, and collectibles," Thomas stated.

Along with her two employees, Diana Detrick and Lori Maust, Thomas said she "strives to put the clients first by catering to their needs. Quality and freshness is one important feature of our business, and if the clients do not find an arrangement they want, we can custom make one to suit their needs."

Forever Flowers also holds free monthly drawings for items including fresh floral arrangements, silks, candles, and baskets.

"My husband, Jimmy Thomas, and I decided to take a chance on opening our own business, and we are very glad we did," the shop's owner said. "We are glad to be able to give something to the community, and flowers brighten people's day. We're elated to be a part of that."

Thomas and the staff of Forever Flowers may be reached at the shop at 814-662-2377.

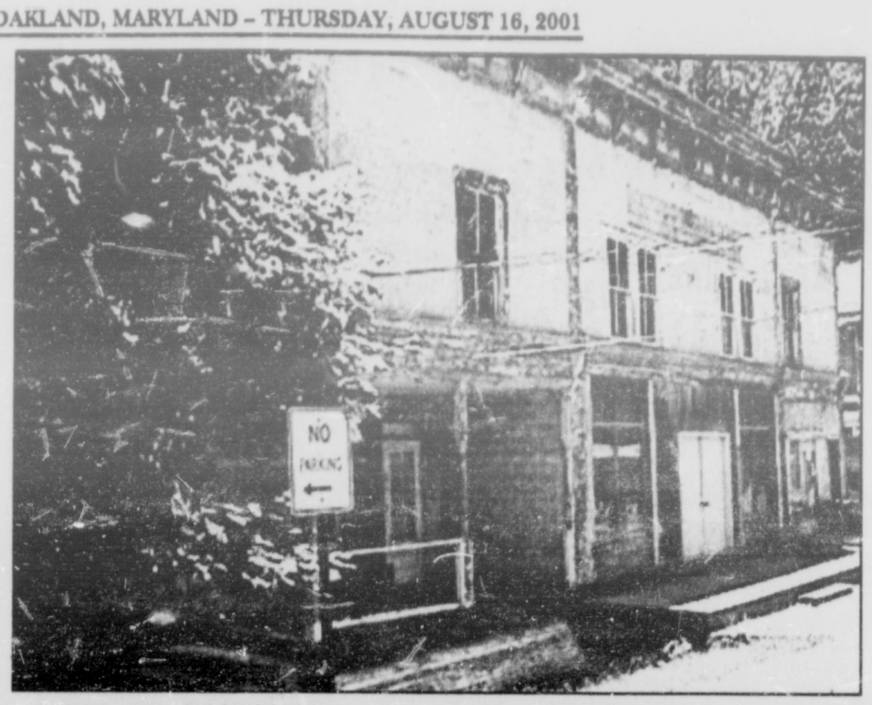
Kitzmiller Co. Store Project Awarded Grant

The Garrett County Community Action Committee has been awarded a grant for Kitzmiller Company Store restoration project by the Maryland Historical Trust (MHT). The $38,000 Capital Historic Preservation program grant is one of 97 MHT grants totaling nearly $3 million recently awarded to museums and nonprofit groups across the state through the Trust's financial assistance programs.

The Kitzmiller project grant will be used for property acquisition, preliminary architectural and engineering design work, and structural rehabilitation projects, according to GCCAC director Duane Yoder, in the first step toward a complete restoration of the town's company store. The building will serve as one of the cornerstones of the town's efforts to revitalize its economy by capitalizing on its historic and cultural heritage to attract tourists and small shopowners.

"The improvements this initial grant makes possible will unfold over the next 12 months in what is going to be a long-term project," said Yoder. "Kitzmiller has some rather unique aspects upon which to build, especially the river and the town's history as a working coal mining and milling community. It can recreate some of its former vitality by drawing on these strengths in promoting itself as a tourist destination."



KITZMILLER STORE PROJECT NETS GRANT — The Kitzmiller Company Store, shown above, was an institution in the Potomac River coal mining and sawmilling town for many decades. The store is now slated for repairs as part of the initial stage of a major rehabilitation project that could make the structure a centerpiece of the town's tourism development efforts. A $38,000 Maryland Historical Trust grant was recently garnered for the project by the Garrett County Community Action Committee, and may help the town operate the restored company store as a visitors center and museum. Photo by Glenn Tolbert.

The Company Store restoration project and the town's tourist promotion development work as a whole are a combined effort of the town of Kitzmiller, especially Mayor Nancy Brady, the Community Action-supported MicroWorks and Main Street programs, directed by Glenn Tolbert, and the Microenterprise Council of Maryland, directed by Mikal McCartney. The Kitzmiller project will hopefully serve as a model for future small-town economic development projects throughout the county, according to GCCAC's Yoder, who said that his agency intends to lay the groundwork for a functioning Kitzmiller Company Store historic facility before turning the property over to the town itself.

"We're also trying to put together a team that can work fulltime with towns across the county in seeking and developing sources of grant funding to promote cultural and historic tourism, among other projects," Yoder stated. "Most small towns don't have the tax base to provide staffing for the work involved in pursuing grants. We'd like to have one representative each from MicroWorks and Main Street, along with the circuit rider and a fourth person, to be dedicated to developing the many sources of funding that are available for small towns."

In addition to the capital grant garnered by the Kitzmiller project, the MHT Grant Fund includes Non-Capital Historic Preservation programs, Museum Development Grants, Museum Operating Grants, and Museum Mini-Grants.

Nonprofit organizations, local governments, businesses and individuals may apply for Capital Historic Preservation grants, which assist in the acquisition, rehabilitation, or restoration of historic property in Maryland. Fifteen such grants totaling $558,000 were awarded in the recently completed fiscal year 2002 grant round.

Nonprofit groups and local governments can apply for Non-Capital Historic Preservation grants for activities such as research and survey work, building condition assessments, development of planning documents, and establishment of educational programs. Twenty-five grants of this type totaling more than $830,000 were awarded during the current funding round.

Museum Development Grants support museum projects to care for historical collections, extend educational programming, and support heritage tourism initiatives. Twenty such grants totaling $429,000 were recently awarded.

General Operating Support (GOS) grants to 20 museums totaling nearly $1 million will support heritage museum operational expenses. The GOS awards reflect the Trust's commitment to promoting excellence within the more than 300 history museums across the state.

The Maryland Association of History Museums (MAHM) administers MHT's Museum Mini-Grants (amounts of less than $5,000) and has awarded 17 grants for a total of $71,640. These grants support all aspects of museum programming, with an emphasis on building professionalism among the state's many small institutions.

The MHT is part of the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development's Division of Historical and Cultural Programs. Formed in 1961, the Trust assists in identifying, studying, evaluating, preserving, protecting, and interpreting the State's significant prehistoric and historic districts, sites, structures, cultural landscapes, heritage areas, cultural objects, and artifacts, as well as less tangible human and community traditions.

The Department of Housing and Community Development works with other agencies and organizations to revitalize communities, encourage home ownership, expand affordable housing opportunities and enhance Maryland's historic sites and traditions.

Special Open House Set At GCC Campus

An open house for those interested in medical transcription will be held at the McHenry campus of Garrett Community College at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 20. The program director, faculty, and students who have completed the Medical Language Specialist curriculum at GCC will meet with prospective students in the Continuing Education Center, Room CE-305, to answer questions and highlight the opportunities of the medical transcription profession.

The curriculum consists of 900 hours of instruction. Topics include anatomy and physiology, computer skills, medical science and terminology, and digital medical transcription lab. The projected start date for the next class is August 27. Classes are scheduled to meet 8:30 a.m. through 3:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday (with an occasional Friday session), and will follow the Garrett County Board of Education schedule to accommodate students who have school-age children.

Tom Kierstead, program director, said, "The course is designed for students to move forward at their own pace, and those with medical backgrounds, as well as highly motivated individuals, may be able to complete and exit in fewer than 900 hours. Financial aid may be available to qualified students, though Pell Grant recipients may be affected in their ability to exit the program early. All prospective students should check with their tax advisors to see about the possible tax advantage of using the Lifetime Learning Tax Credit.

"There is a competitive application process to enter the curriculum. Candidates' English and typing skills will be assessed upon receipt of application materials," Kierstead added.

Those who are unable to attend the open house may obtain additional information from the Continuing Education and Training Office, or by calling 301-387-3069.

Garrett County Memorial Hospital
We're Here For Each Other

Dear Area Residents covered by MAMSI Health Plans,

Recently, subscribers with Mid Atlantic Medical Services Inc (MAMSI) have received notification that as of August 15, 2001, LabCorp, a national clinical reference laboratory, is the designated lab for all outpatient testing for specified MAMSI plan patients in Maryland and West Virginia.

All MAMSI subscribers should be aware that Garrett County Memorial Hospital is a contracted LabCorp drawing station. Patients who want to use specimen collection services at Garrett County Memorial Hospital can continue to do so without being affected by this change. The actual testing will be performed by LabCorp at a regional site.

Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH) has provided the specimen collection as well as performed the actual lab testing on MAMSI subscribers for years. This announcement by MAMSI means the hospital will lose the ability to process some MAMSI lab tests locally, which will mean a loss of volume and/or revenue to the hospital. GCMH has always endeavored to provide timely and efficient lab results to local physicians and this change places this quality control in the hands of outsiders.

While the hospital is concerned about the loss of volume/revenue due to the changes made by MAMSI, our number one concern is our patients.

Yours truly,

GARRETT COUNTY

GA1988G002/04 - Keystone Lime Company Inc., P.O. Box 276, Springs, PA 15562, has applied to increase an existing appropriation and use permit from an annual average of 2,000 gallons of water per day (gpd) and 19,700 gpd during the month of maximum use to 100,000 gpd and 1,600,000 gpd, respectively. The water will be used for dewatering and dust control at a limestone quarry. The change in the permitted amount is being requested so the amount of water appropriated agrees with the amount of water discharged from the site's operation into Hoyes Run. The project is located on the north side of Hoyes Run Road approximately 0.7 miles southwest of Garrett County Route 20, 1.8 miles west of McHenry, Garrett County, Maryland.

Impacts to the resource and nearby users were evaluated using aquifer characteristics derived from previous studies done on the aquifer at another location in the County and were used to model the efforts of the proposed drawdown. Using an average transmissivity of 33,000 gpd/ft and storativity of 0.001, the drawdown from pumping one well at the maximum rate of 1,600,000 gpd for 30 days during the month of maximum use is 27.32 feet at a distance of 500 feet from the well. However, since the requested change to the permitted amount is being done to reflect current and past operations at the quarry, no new impacts to the resource or nearby users are expected.

Hebb Sentenced For Burning Crellin Home

An Oakland woman charged with setting fire to her home has been sentenced to five years in the custody of the Garrett County Department of Corrections. Dinah Hebb, 39, was arrested by state fire marshals on Sept. 16, 2000, and charged with setting the fire, which caused more than $20,000 in damages to the Crellin house. The fire occurred on August 22, 2000.

Hebb pleaded guilty to a charge of arson in the first degree at her trial in May. At sentencing, Judge James Sherbin suspended four years of the sentence, but added a year of probation to begin after her release from the local jail.

MUSIC ON THE MOUNTAIN, a weeklong series of classical and jazz concerts hosted by the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, is under way at Garrett Community College, as well as throughout the county at various locales. GLAF's Deep Creek Symphony is pictured above in rehearsal this week, led by Conductor David Wroe, who is also the series' music director. The group presented a family concert last evening and wowed the youngish crowd with three popular pieces, including part of Vivaldi's Four Seasons concerto which featured 13-year-old Ryu Goto as the violin soloist. The symphony will present two more concerts on Friday, Aug. 24, and Saturday, Aug. 25, at 8 p.m., once again featuring young Goto, as well as jazz violinist Didier Lockwood. The Levine on the Mountain music school is also under way at the college, with 21 students from across the Mid-Atlantic region studying with instructors from the Levine School of Music. The young musicians will present concerts today various locations (see separate photo for details). For ticket information, persons may call the GLAF office at 301-387-3082. Beth Johnson, GLAF executive director, reported this morning that ticket sales are brisk, and persons who wish to purchase them are encouraged to call soon. Photo by John McEwen

Jailed After Traffic Stop

A Jefferson County, W.Va., couple was arrested by Maryland State Police troopers on several drug- and traffic-related charges after a Saturday morning traffic stop along Interstate 68 just east of Friendsville.

Daniel Robert Myers, 23, and Judy Lynn Myers, 25, both of Hedgesville, each face charges of drug and drug paraphernalia possession and a seatbelt violation. Additional charges of driving with a suspended license, speeding, and violating a rental agreement were filed against Daniel Myers.

The couple was stopped shortly after 9 a.m. for the traffic violation, and a computer check revealed the suspended status of Daniel Myers' driver's license. Troopers also determined that the car was a rental vehicle rented to a third person not present at the time of the traffic stop, and that the rental agreement stipulated that no one other than the renter was allowed to be behind the wheel. A vehicle search uncovered suspected crack cocaine and heroin in the car.

Daniel Myers was later released from the Garrett County Detention Center after he posted a $7,000 bond, and Judy Myers was released after posting a $1,000 bond.

DNR Permission Required For DCL Area Tree-Cutting

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources has issued a reminder to Deep Creek Lake area property owners that the cutting of trees located on the buffer strip of land surrounding the lake is allowed only after a permit is obtained from DNR. This notice comes in the wake of a rash of tree-cutting violations cited since Memorial Day, "more than any I can recall" over a similar period since the prohibitions went into effect in 1981, according to DCL Recreation Area manager Paul Durham.

"As of last week we've issued citations to 28 individuals for illegal tree cutting, and we have several more cases under investigation," Durham said. "Many of these are blatant violations; in one instance a landowner had cut 51 trees in a one-acre section of the buffer strip without permission.

DCL Marina Operator Accused Of Mixing Gasoline Grades

Enforcement agents for State Comptroller William Donald Schafer charged a Garrett County man on Friday with committing fuel fraud at S & H Marina in McHenry.

Agents charged Richard Trydahl, 49, the operator of the marina, with unlawfully commingling grades of gasoline with intent to defraud. Trydahl allegedly placed regular and mid-grade gasoline into the premium gasoline.

The arrest is a result of a random inspection and analysis of the gasoline on July 26 by the comptroller's field enforcement agents, which revealed the fuel to be substantially less than the 92 octane advertised at the marina. Further investigation showed that only 87 and 89 octane gasoline were being ordered for the marina, yet the product was continuing to be sold as premium-grade gas, according to the report. This violation is a misdemeanor, which carries a fine up to $5,000, or up to one year's imprisonment, or both.

The comptroller's agents regularly sample and test fuels sold throughout Maryland to make sure the products meet quality standards. In FY 2001, which ended June 30, a total of 13,797 samples of all grades of petroleum products were collected by this agency. These products are regularly tested for their quality and to assure the proper payment of taxes, the report noted.

In addition to administering the state's motor fuel tax laws and collecting motor fuel taxes, the comptroller's office is also responsible for establishing quality standards for all motor fuel sold and used in Maryland. The quality standards are based on requirements sets by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the Internal Revenue Service, and the American Society for Testing and Materials.

Consumers who suspect that they purchased substandard fuel products in Maryland are encouraged to contact the comptroller's field enforcement division free at 1-888-674-0017.

Jeannette Fitzwater, Fran Wishnick To Chair 2001 United Way Drive

by Harry King executive director,
County United Way

Life seems to be growing more hectic for many individuals in today's society, but busy schedules are not stopping two Garrett County residents from making a difference in their community. As if hectic home lives, work schedules, and other activities are not enough, Jeannette Fitzwater and Fran Wishnick have accepted the responsibility of chairing this year's campaign for the United Way of Garrett County.

An annual event, the United Way campaign is a time in which volunteers solicit funds from community entities and organizations to be distributed to affiliated agencies of each county's United Way. This year Fitzwater and Wishnick have made the United Way of Garrett County one of the top priorities in their schedules by volunteering to chair the local campaign.

Fitzwater is no stranger to tackling multiple responsibilities. She earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Ohio University and currently serves as senior vice president/director of human resources at First United Bank and Trust in Oakland, where she has been employed for 15 years.

Even though Fitzwater maintains a busy schedule at the bank, her involvement with the United Way of Garrett County has been going strong since its inception over a year ago. She is currently the vice chair of the executive committee, and it was during one of these committee meetings that she chose to further her commitment by volunteering to chair the campaign.

Perhaps some individuals would ask why Fitzwater is so concerned with the needs of others within the community when she has a career and a family of her own to worry about. The answer is simple. After observing the strength of the United Way in other communities, she concluded that the potential of what a United Way could do for the agencies and charities within the county was tremendous. She strongly believes in the United Way of Garrett County and its mission of extending a helping hand to those in need.

Although she is excited about the increased level of United Way awareness within Garrett County, Fitz-

Linda Buckel New President Of Luth. Women

Linda Buckel, a member of Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Bittinger, was recently elected to a two-year term as president of the West Virginia-Western Maryland Synodical Women's Organization. The organization is part of the Women of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and consists of women who are members of the synod's various congregations.

Buckel, the first Maryland woman to be elected president of the organization, was both elected and installed as president at the 14th Synodical Convention held August 3-4 in Charleston, W.Va. The theme for the event was "Celebrate the Gifts," based on I Corinthians 12:4.

In addition to other duties as president, Buckel will oversee the board meetings and activities of the committees, attend meetings of the four cluster groups, and represent the organization as part of the Synod Council of the West Virginia-Western Maryland Synod.

The organization has three mission committees (Action, Community, and Growth), publishes a news-

Area Men Jailed By MSP On Drug, Weapons Charges

Two southern Garrett County men remain incarcerated this morning after suspected drugs and a large knife were found concealed in their vehicle during a Monday night traffic stop in Friendsville by Maryland State Police troopers.

Don Allen Warren, 45, Oakland, and Thomas Ray Thorne, 20, Mtn. Lake Park, were stopped at the intersection of Maple Street and Blain Frantz Road shortly after 9 p.m. for minor traffic violations. The trooper reportedly observed a large dirk knife on the floor of their Geo Metro, lying between the driver's seat and the door. Ensuing searches revealed that Thorne was carrying a suspected marijuana cigarette and a set of hand-held scales, and Warren was carrying a switchblade knife.

Thorne was charged with possession of marijuana and

Avilton-Coney Bridge To Open

The Avilton-Lonaconing Bridge, which spans the Savage River, is to open to traffic beginning today at about 2 p.m., according to a press release from Fred Polce, general superintendent of the Garrett County Roads Department.

The roads department replaced the deteriorating concrete arch with a 75-foot steel truss. It had been deemed unsafe by Dwight Emory, county engineer. The crews also completed the paving and other related work on the new span.

WORK IS PROGRESSING on the latest major project of the Garrett County Historical Society, which is the recreation of a segment of the front porch of the Deer Park Hotel. The reconstruction is taking place alongside the society's museum along Second Street in downtown Oakland in what is known as Dailey Park, with Keith and Bob Murphy as the contractors. According to Robert Boal, president of the society, just over half of the funding for the project has been received through donations and fundraisers, and others wishing to contribute may send their tax-deductible contributions to the GCHS at P.O. Box 28, Oakland. He said that a major donation in the form of siding boards and batten has been made by Beachy Lumber Company. The proceeds from the society's fall dinner, this year called the B&O Dining Car Dinner and slated for Thursday, Sept. 27, at Will O' the Wisp, are earmarked for the project. It is hoped that the porch will be completed by October. A drawing of the finished project will be published within the next few weeks. At right in the photo above is the Deer Park Hotel gazebo that was relocated to Dailey Park last year.

Potomac Woman Killed, GC Man Hurt In Mishap

A Potomac woman was killed during a Friday afternoon accident along Interstate 68 in Allegany County that seriously injured the Garrett County man who was driving their sport utility vehicle, according to Maryland State Police troopers assigned to the LaVale barrack.

Caitlyn Obannon Fitzgerald, 19, died during the 2:58 p.m. crash, which occurred on eastbound I-68 just west of Rocky Gap State Park, while Chad Lynn Montgomery, 22, McHenry, was flown by medevac helicopter Trooper 5 to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted into the Intensive Care Unit in critical condition. Montgomery has since been discharged from the hospital, according to a Cumberland Memorial spokesperson.

The accident occurred as Montgomery was driving a 1996 Toyota 4-Runner eastbound in the highway's slow lane when, for unknown reasons, he lost control of the SUV and it traveled onto the right shoulder. The vehicle then traveled back onto and across the roadway, rolling several times and ejecting both occupants before coming to rest on its roof in the fast lane.

Fitzgerald was thrown clear of the vehicle and across the median into the westbound lanes, where she was struck by an oncoming tractor-trailer and subsequently pronounced dead at the scene by Allegany County deputy medical examiner Paul Snow. The driver of the tractor-trailer, Brian Bray Sisler, 36, Reedsville, W.Va., was not injured.

The interstate was closed for nearly three hours as emergency personnel including the Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Department and ambulances from both Cumberland and Flintstone

Public Hearing For Right To Farm Ordinance Held; Farmers Approve

A public hearing concerning Garrett County's proposed "right to farm" ordinance was held Tuesday evening by the county commissioners, who helped pen the new edict with John Nelson, director of the county's planning and zoning office.

The commissioners first obtained the right to create the ordinance by directing Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer to secure legislation that allowed them to do so. This legislation passed in the 2001 General Assembly and will become effective on Oct. 1. The record on the ordinance will remain open until Oct. 2, when the commissioners plan to sign it into law.

The ordinance, Nelson explained, basically provides a "layer of protection against nuisance law suits" that are sometimes filed against farmers. While the ordinance does not disallow law suits, it does delineate the farmers' rights in Garrett County, and therefore may provide some protection to them in the event of litigation. Cases across the state have involved such issues as neighbors complaining about noise and/or odors, or about other aspects of farming that they have deemed undesirable.

The "meat of the ordinance," Nelson said, is the section that describes the permitted uses of land. It states that any farm use of land is permitted, and farm use is defined as "any use of land which directly contributes to the production, processing, or storage of agriculture products." Operation at any time of machinery used in farm production or the primary processing of agriculture products is also permitted.

The permitted uses section continues with the following: "Normal agricultural operations performed in accordance with good husbandry practices and generally accepted agricultural management practices which do not cause bodily injury or directly endanger human health are permitted and preferred activities including activities which may produce normal agriculturally related noise and odors."

Finally, the section states that the sale of farm products on the farm where the sales are made is permitted.

Brooks Hamilton, president of the Garrett County Farm Bureau, said his organization is supportive of the ordinance. He said he appreciated the straightforward brevity. "Simplicity is the best route," Hamilton said, adding that he has read other counties' ordinances that are too long and complicated. He said the bureau appreciates the commissioners' interest in the farming community, and that the ordinance will provide some security.

"The Garrett County agricultural community generates $22-24 million to the county's economy," Hamilton said. "It's very important that we work to protect the farmers, especially considering the continuing restrictions they have to deal with."

Hamilton said legislation is now pending that will further restrict farmers who have more than 300 animals on their farms. There are various nutrient management programs that they must already provide, and the new legislation may set noise limits and other controls.

"Now's the time to put a right to farm ordinance in effect, before it's too late," said Commissioner Fred Holliday, chairman. "We need to provide a mechanism that will in some way ward off danger for our

Grantsville School Earns Maryland Green School Environmental Award

Grantsville Elementary School was honored by top state officials during the annual Governor's Green Schools Program awards ceremony at Baltimore's Inner Harbor recently. Grantsville Elementary principal Linda Buckel and the school's Green School committee of students, faculty, and staff were among 15 Maryland Green Schools committees presented with the environmental achievement award by Governor Parris N. Glendening and then-Maryland Department of Natural Resources Secretary Sarah Taylor-Rogers.

The Green Schools program honors public and private elementary, middle, and high schools that demonstrate outstanding use of the environment as an integral part of their instructional program; implement best environmental practices in the school's operation and design; and extend learning into the community through projects that address local environmental issues. The program was initiated by Glendening in 1998 and is administered by the Maryland Association for Environmental and Outdoor Education.

"Today we honor these and other Green Schools as a select group," Taylor-Rogers told the hundreds of students, teachers, and school administrators at the awards ceremony. "And while today you are an exception, we hope that every school in Maryland will ultimately be a Green School. Maryland's students are the future of the Chesapeake Bay, and with your leadership, I feel very hopeful about the Bay's prospects over the coming decades."

GRANTSVILLE ELEMENTARY EARNS GREEN SCHOOL AWARD — Grantsville Elementary was among the 15 schools from across Maryland honored with a Governor's Green Schools award recently. The Green Schools program recognizes outstanding environmental education and practices by public and private elementary, middle, and high schools. Pictured above at the Inner Harbor awards ceremony are representatives of the Green Schools committee of Grantsville Elementary and several dignitaries. In the front row from the left, are fifth grader Zachary Trautwein; fourth grade teacher and committee co-chair Ruby Thompson; fifth grader Tessa Buckel; school principal Linda Buckel; and third grade teacher and committee co-chair Carol Warnick. In the back row are school custodian Tom Stemple; parent Connie Savage; Baltimore National Aquarium executive director Dr. Dave Pittenger; Baltimore Gas and Electric environmental affairs director Gary Fuhrman; and parent Lisa Broadwater (partially obstructed). Not available for the photo were parents and fellow committee members Kelley Feller and JoAnn Maxim. "Our students and staff are committed to gaining a better understanding of the challenges we face, and of how our personal efforts of today will impact the future of the environment in which we live," commented Buckel.

Grantsville Elementary, which has focused on environmental issues in its curriculum for several years, uses its school campus as a "real-world, hands-on learning laboratory — one that intentionally integrates itself into the ecosystem that surrounds it," Buckel remarked on behalf of her school. "It is here that one takes an aggressive, pro-active approach in recognizing the responsibility that we each have as to the care, conservation, and preservation of the environment in which we live."

Among the many recent environmental projects carried out by Grantsville Elementary are: the design and planting of native plant garden plots by each grade; the creation of a wildflower garden, cared for by students; the planting of 75 trees by students in the school arboretum; the creation of a wetland area with the assistance of parents, community members, and outside agencies; the initiation of a bird sanctuary by students who planted trees and shrubs that provide natural habitats and food sources; and a community-wide effort to redesign the school's front entrance with a nature-friendly appearance.

Grantsville Elementary and each of the other Green Schools honorees received a Green Schools flag and banner to display at their school. This year's group joins 47 other public and private schools that have received the recognition over the past two years.

GCSO Jails Six After MLP Melee Early Saturday

Sheriff's deputies called to a disturbance at a Mtn. Lake Park residence twice within the span of two hours quelled the early Saturday morning fracas by arresting six individuals at the home located at 785 Oakland Drive, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The second set of complaints were phoned into the 911 dispatcher's desk at 2:30 a.m., as nearby residents reported a large fight outside the home. Four deputies secured the situation that involved over a dozen people, who were in and out of the residence when the officers arrived for the second time.

Arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and failure to obey a lawful order were: Jack Alfred Kight and Alfred Jay Kight, both 23, of Oakland; William Andrew Kerr, 40, and Kelly Marie Kerr, 36, both of Riverdale; and Patrick Daniel Kerr, 41, of Laurel. A sixth individual, Cynthia Marie Uphole, 22, Oakland, was jailed on a disorderly conduct charge. At least one person required transport for a minor injury to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where the patient was treated and released.

Each of the six accused has been released from jail. Jack Kight was released on a $1,000 bond; Kelly Kerr and Cynthia Uphole were both released after posting $500 bonds; and Alfred Kight and William and Patrick Kerr were each released on their own recognizance.

Leads Sought In Burglaries Of Area Businesses

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI) is seeking leads in its investigations of a number of burglaries of southern Garrett County businesses spanning the last five months. It is not yet known if the incidents are linked, according to detectives.

The most recent burglary occurred Sunday night at the Lucas Service Station, located along Kitzmiller Road. Two males, one with a very large build and the other with a very slight build, were reportedly observed breaking into the store through a front window and fleeing the scene shortly afterward in a light colored compact car. The car was last seen traveling across the Potomac River bridge into West Virginia.

Taken from the service station were a TEC electronic cash register and a quantity of cash. The total loss stemming from the theft and property damage was estimated at $1,350. Found inside the store, just underneath a second broken window, was a black and gold Pittsburgh Steelers cap that may belong to the perpetrator(s).

The other victimized businesses and the date of the incidents are as follows: Red House Country School Mall, April 9; Valley View Store, May 2; the Junk Drawer, July 16; Suburban Propane, July 18; Old Mill Restaurant, July 26; and Arnold Brothers Equipment, Aug. 10.

Each of the businesses were broken into and cash was stolen. A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered through Garrett County Crime Solvers for information leading to the arrest of the individual(s) involved. Persons with information may call Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975.

The GBI is also seeking information pertaining to a rash of church office burglaries in the Mtn. Lake Park and Oakland areas over recent months. One of these, Mtn. Lake Independent Baptist, has been struck three separate times.

What Better Legacy?...

My Neighbor's Son is the name of a writing by the famous author/West Virginian Pearl S. Buck, a reading of which was presented yesterday at Our Town Theatre as part of a rather unique "back-to-school" rally day for the teachers of Southern High School. The day was planned by fellow teacher and OTT director Jane Avery, and the entire faculty, numbering around 70, was present to hear this thought-provoking work written by Ms. Buck in the late 1960s. As the title suggests, the piece centers on the teenage son of a couple next door, a young man who is struggling with the various issues that all teens face, and his parents, who are basically confused and somewhat clueless as to how to deal with him.

Though slightly dated, the work nonetheless remains loaded with messages and wisdom applicable to today's world. One of the most profound is the assertion that all adults have a responsibility to support, encourage, teach, respect, and set an example for the youngest members of society. This includes not only the adult relatives of children, but also friends, neighbors, and all other unrelated adults.

Parenting has never been easy, and no child has, to our knowledge, ever been born with parenting instructions included. Despite the numerous and varied conveniences of today, parenting is in many ways even more difficult than ever before in our history. So is being a child. Both parents working outside the home is the norm. The family dinner, with each member seated at the table and communicating with each other, is now the rare exception. Parents today certainly don't love their children any less than their predecessors did, but because of the current, exhausting pace of life, they really need the aforementioned help.

This was a good reminder for the teachers, who are by the nature of their job in a position to make a significant positive, or negative, impact on a child. But Buck's work is also a message to the rest of us adults, and there are almost countless ways for us to get involved and be proactive in helping parents rear the children of our community. Specific programs include the Big Brothers Big Sisters organization, which also sponsors the Lunch Buddy program. There are Scouting and 4-H programs that always need adult leadership. There are scores of volunteer coaching positions in a wide range of youth sports available practically year-round. Just about every church in the county can always use additional Sunday school teachers and youth leaders.

Then there are many other less structured, less time-consuming ways to help: e.g., treating the kids of a next-door single mother to a game of miniature golf or a trip to the custard stand; or just taking time to sit and talk with, and listen to, a troubled teen who lives down the street.

What better legacy could anyone leave than having made a positive difference in the life of a child?

To the Editor:

It is with an indescribable sadness that I write this letter, hoping to make a difference to anyone who is about to read the following story.

Late last week I was sickened to find an innocent young pup heartlessly thrown in a semitransparent white garbage bag on the shoreline of Deep Creek Lake near the dam. At first, I had thought someone had carelessly dumped garbage in the water and it had washed to shore, but as I approached the lifeless outline of this sweet little pup, I was struck with a gut-wrenching horror that words cannot ever describe.

As I looked down at the outline of an approximately 4-month-young little pup lying lifeless and stiff, my heart sank to its lowest depths. I could not shake the images of an innocent and once playful little pup struggling for his last breaths of life in complete anguish, fear, and confusion for however many minutes or maybe even hours it must have been before the suffering tragically ended. I could only ask myself, Who could have possibly possessed the enormous disregard for the life of a completely innocent creature to commit such a horrifying act of cruelty?

I am hoping that someone reading this story might just know the answer and have the courage to step forward and bring that heartless person to face some justice. I am certain that this is not the first, nor will it be the last, time this person will commit such a senseless and heartless act of violence, as this is not a one-time type of action.

It is such a simple thing to take an unwanted or unloved pet to a local shelter and give it a chance at a loving home, or at the very last resort, a painless death. I am sure this cute little pup would have made a lonely person or an eager child a wonderful companion for many years. There is not one ounce of reason that justifies drowning an animal when loving, humane, and painless solutions are freely provided by caring individuals at local shelters, and even at your next-door neighbors. I would have gladly spent the little bit of time and effort it would have taken to find this little pup a home, or assured its safety at the local shelter if this person would have just dumped him on my doorstep or bravely admitted he could not care for it or did not want it.

It gives me empty gratification that this sweet pup I named Magic was at least given a proper burial under a bushy set of pines where God's light will now shine on his fluffy little soul. I can now only plead to those in the community to come forward if they have any information on this crime, and to report abuse, neglect, or mistreatment of any animal to local authorities, animal shelters, or humane officers. One person always makes a difference when he or she does the right thing.

Ari Allen

Editor's note: The writers of the following letter to Delegate George Edwards requested that it be published in this column.

Dear Delegate Edwards;

I am contacting you in hopes of being able to recruit your help in a very important matter in Garrett County.

I am aware of the adventure sports complex project for Deep Creek Lake. I am also aware of the amount of money being poured into it. Quite frankly, I am appalled. I can't help but wonder why Garrett County won't invest just as much money for a youth center, such as a YMCA in the Oakland area.

You and everyone else involved in this project will probably say something to the effect that the adventure sports complex is for everyone in the area. But you know just as well as I do that the only ones who will benefit and take advantage of it will be vacationers, the lake residents, and the well-to-do. The average Oakland resident will not be able to take advantage of this complex.

Everyone is looking for ways to reduce and eliminate teen drug abuse, alcohol abuse, and teen pregnancy. I invite you to come to Oakland and sit anywhere between Browning's Foodland and Southern High School and watch how many teenagers drive back and forth from the Treasure Island complex to the high school. Watch how many of them congregate in any one of the above-mentioned parking lots. Then, sir, tell me Oakland doesn't need a teen center.

The Treasure Island complex is a wonderful site for just such a center. The possibilities are unlimited. An indoor pool, a game room, a community room, basketball court, volleyball, an outdoor skateboard ramp, a bike trail... I encourage you and implore you to take this matter up with your fellow leaders and please come up with the funding for a much needed teen center for Oakland.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Concerned Parents for Teens in Oakland:
Yvette Nutter, Oakland
Carol Newman, Oakland

P.S. My son does not believe that this will come about, much less anytime during his teen years. What a challenge! I hope you will prove him wrong.

letter three times annually, offers scholarships to women who have been called to prepare for church vocations, sends representatives to the convention, and participates in numerous service projects.

Buckel, who is the principal at Grantsville Elementary School, is also active in the Grantsville Rotary, her local church activities, Woodmen of the World, Business and Professional Women, Garrett Reading Council, and Bittinger VFD Ladies Auxiliary. She resides in Bittinger with her husband Joseph (Pete) Buckel. She is the mother of two grown daughters, and has three grandchildren.

Tree-Cutting

Reports are coming in to us from eyewitnesses, and we've found evidence of fresh cutting, including fresh sawdust around stumps. We also found one instance where the stumps had been painted and covered over with brush. We suspect that some of these violations occurred in the off-season, as if those doing the cutting thought no one would take notice of the missing trees."

The Recreation Area manager added that all landowners whose property adjoined the buffer strip had been informed of the permit requirement by letter at the time it went into effect, or at the time they purchased their property.

The buffer strip around the lake, which can range from several feet in width to over 100 yards, depending on the slope of the land, is owned by the state of Maryland rather than any adjacent private landowner. DNR regulation 08.07.06.13 states, in part, that an individual may not "cut down, remove, or destroy a tree," or remove, disturb, damage, or destroy a plant, rock, or animal" on publicly owned state land monitored by the agency. Trees and plants are noted by scientists for their ability to protect a watershed from excessive rainwater and silt runoff.

"We take our enforcement duty in regard to these violations very seriously, and Garrett County District Court has set a possible fine of $300 per citation and/or one year in jail," Durham stated. "Violators are also required to mitigate the damage they cause by planting replacement trees in the areas they cut as a condition of renewing their dock permit."

Persons who witness or suspect illegal tree cutting in the DCL buffer strip are encouraged to report incidents to DNR by calling Deep Creek Lake State Park at 301-387-4111 and speaking to a park ranger. DNR permits allowing legal cutting may be obtained by calling the same number.

FAREWELL TO FRANCE!

Leaving France, I feel puzzled. Is France a friendly country? Well, yes and no. It certainly is not friendly in the superficial way that the United States is, where total strangers call each other by their first names.

France is a more formal country than the United States, and Americans often mistake formality for unfriendliness. I, however, like the French formality. I like it that I can bow to someone without that person thinking me weird. I also like the French cheek-kissing (as many as four times on each side), though I have had only one experience of it myself.

When a foreigner makes the attempt to speak French — which I deem absolutely essential for anyone who expects to have a happy trip here — the French are enormously helpful. I can say that without exception. When they are asked something they do not know (where a particular road is, for example), they are apologetic and will often go out of their way to find someone who has the needed information.

Such people cannot be called unfriendly.

On the other hand, the French are extraordinarily adept at ignoring people. My son Nick and I had the experience of being in a village church where the people were very friendly to each other. Because they knew each other, they also had to know that we were strangers. Not one spoke to us. I attended another weekday service alone, at which there were fewer than 20 people. I had the same experience. No one spoke to me, including the priest.

Nick and I also had the experience, on more than one occasion, of being mocked by the French. Perhaps they were sure we knew no French, but that does not excuse such rudeness. And yet, perhaps it does not seem rude to them. One couple, who were staying at the same monastery as I was, were very kind and helpful to me and yet mocked me as well. What was I to make of that?

Such people cannot be called friendly, at least not as Americans understand friendliness.

A Frenchman, who speaks English and who has visited the United States, suggested to me that the French are friendly when the other person takes the initiative, but that the French person will almost never take the initiative. He suggested that his countrymen take a longer-term view of relationships. They are not interested in the casual encounter. If someone is only passing through, why take the trouble of getting to know that person? It is a waste of time and energy. Once the relationship is formed, however, it is taken more seriously.

That explains everything but the mocking. Perhaps what we perceived as mockery is only a form of acceptable banter. Whatever it is to the French, Nick and I both found it unsettling.

There are other puzzles here. Traditional French culture is under severe pressure. That is evident very clearly in the realm of food.

In 1983 I wrote, "France is the country for the man who lives to eat, and I am that man." Eighteen years ago it was impossible to get a bad meal in France. That is no longer true. Even more troubling is that much of the good food is rather odd. A generation ago the core of French cooking was a dressed up version of what mama made at home — and mama was a splendid cook.

Today the food in French restaurants often looks like the imitation of a painting of food. A further blow to the French culture of food is the astounding number of pizza take-out restaurants. Eighteen years ago I do not remember ever seeing even one. Nick and I ate one of our best meals in the French version of an Italian restaurant. That would have been heresy 18 years ago.

So what is going on here? In general, France is experiencing the same cultural degeneration as everywhere else. Over time there is less and less of what makes any place different and special and lovely. That is what is going on the world over.

There is a movement to fight back here with the designation of "artisan" for any traditionally made product. At the same time, the supermarket movement is gaining ground. I shopped in some of them, and the best of them offer a splendid array of every kind of food. The supermarket trend will be extremely difficult to resist.

I wonder if the world is becoming a place in which the lovely things are progressively rubbed out, leaving us in the end with little more than our bad habits.

I have enjoyed France, and I hope to return. On this trip, though, I tried to savor every French thing that delighted me, partly in fear that I shall never find it again.

THE 2-YEAR-OLD'S FAIR FRENZY

by Beth L. Bowers

I think the fair was more fun when I was younger. I remember going to the fair in my own town every day, hanging out with my friends, eating junk, and loving every minute of it. I never understood why my parents never went more than once for a brief visit, and we lived only one block from the fair. Now I understand. It can be just a little too tiring.

Our 2-year-old was excited all day because he was going to the fair to ride rides. He couldn't wait to get there. It didn't bother him that we were tired before we even left, from all the packing and loading of the stroller, bag of paraphernalia, and the like. Finally we load in the car and off we go. He exclaims "oohs" and "aahs" as we approach the fairgrounds. I am sure this will be an enjoyable experience, and it looks like the rain may hold off until evening.

More time elapses, as we have to unload the car and assemble the stroller for the 3-week-old. He was a real sport about the whole experience. I was afraid he would be puking after bouncing around in the stroller over the rough gravel, but we never heard a peep out of him. But we heard more than peeps from his older brother.

He tried the rides first. He was so excited for the first one, as I proudly took pictures of him smiling ear to ear. The second ride seemed to be almost as enjoyable, but that was where it ended. We stopped at each ride numerous times to see if he would ride and each time he replied, "No!" Okay, let's try a few barn exhibits and some animals for awhile.

Meanwhile, my already bad headache is getting increasingly worse, and I can see we aren't going to be here long. I feel bad because my husband took some vacation time so we could take the boys to the fair. Oh well, at least he can enjoy some sunshine until the rain clouds hide the sun every two minutes.

I am sure the exhibits were nice, but they were all a blur to me as I was dragged by the hand as if we were escaping from a fire. I am still not sure what his hurry was. It wasn't like he was anxious to see the animals, because we only made a dashing pass through one of those barns. We attempted the rides one more time with still no luck. So we opted for Rotary fries, which are always a big hit, and we struck gold. He was happy and content with fries and a whole lot of ketchup, which ended up more on our shorts and his clothes. But still he seemed quite happy until he reached the bottom of the cup.

So we decided after two very long and tiring hours to head to the car. After reloading all the traveling essentials, we wearily started home. The ketchup-stained tired 2-year-old was sound asleep by the time we got to Route 219. Once we got home and he woke from his power nap he was ready to go back to the fair to ride some rides. No thanks. Maybe next year, but maybe not, since by then his brother will be 1.

Change Maryland's Bear Policy?

by Rick Bisseli, Ph.D., Avilton
Professor of Emergency Health Services
University of Maryland Baltimore Campus

Far western Maryland's largest circulation newspaper, the Cumberland Times-News on May 29 of this year titled its lead editorial "Black Bears: State Should Manage Population with Hunt." The article went on to claim that the state's growing black bear population is endangering human safety, and suggested that the state open a limited bear hunting season as the solution. A later issue of the same paper used prominent front page space to inform readers that bears are raiding honey from bee keepers. Again, on July 31, the Times-News devoted front page space to report that (former Maryland Secretary of Natural Resources Sarah) "Taylor-Rogers gets earful on bears." Recently, western Maryland Delegate Casper Taylor has come out in favor of opening up a limited bear hunt as a method of diminishing residents' fears, a proposal which has been soundly endorsed by the Maryland Sportsmen's Association.

The purpose of this short article is to examine the proposed change in Maryland's bear protection policy, and

Garrett Co. Partnership For Children, Families Celebrates Decade Of Service

The Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc. (GC PCF), formerly the Office for Children, Youth, and Families, recently celebrated its 10th year of existence, having been initiated in the county in April 1991. The partnership is the administrative arm of the Local Management Board (LMB), serving as the governing body that unites child-serving agencies, child providers, consumers, and community representatives to improve and maintain the well-being of local children and families.

Each county in Maryland has an LMB that is responsible for coordination, planning, resource allocation, and evaluation and monitoring of the local service delivery system for children and families, according to Susan Athey-Oxford, the director of the partnership.

The partnership has engaged in numerous services to local families over the past 10 years, and holds a record of high success in nearly every area. Often the organization is the "behind-the-scenes" sponsor or coordinating agency of programs that benefit the families of the county.

The board of directors for the partnership consists of 13 members appointed by the Garrett County commissioners. The permanent members include Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County Public Schools; Rodney Glotfelty, county health officer; Henry Brown, the local director of Social Services; Harry Grove, the county supervisor of the Department of Juvenile Justice; Duane Yoder, president of Garrett County Community Action; and one county commissioner or his designated representative.

At large, community members currently represented on the LMB are parents, the Garrett County Extension Service, the faith community, and the business community.

The partnership oversees the Prevention Policy Board and is involved in the coordination of other community prevention groups. The organization is represented on numerous advisory boards, including the Perinatal Project, the Transportation Advisory Board, the After-School Advisory Board, and the Addictions Advisory Council.

The partnership has negotiated a 5-year Community Partnership Agreement with the state and county to improve conditions for children and families. Athey-Oxford said this agreement encompasses a broad range of projects, including Healthy Families Garrett County, Interagency Family Preservation, Garrett information technology planning (including the Garrett Data Warehouse), and after-school programs.

Examples of projects that were directly born from the agreement and/or GC PCF funding recipients include the Garrett MicroWorks Program, the Individual Development Accounts Program, Alternative High School, Big Brothers Big Sisters Lunch Buddy Program, and early Head Start.

Athey-Oxford said some primary roles of the GC PCF are evaluation and monitoring of various programs. The organization tracks indicators in eight areas defined by the Maryland Partnership for Children and Families. Local baselines for determining success have been established by the partnership.

Each program funded by the LMB is required to report its progress. Technical assistance for providers is available from the partnership, Athey-Oxford said, to help with their reporting methods. Some tracking methods are still being developed, she said.

GC PCF has provided more than $2 million to the local economy each year, Athey-Oxford reported. Some of this funding goes to interagency employment for 25 full-time staff and 6 part-time staff members. GC PCF initiatives also provide funds to local and regional consultants. During 2001, GC PCF has doubled its services budget through grant awards, she reported.

Projects and vision for GC PCF for the next year will include aggressively locating funding through grant writing and resource alignment, continued expansion of primary prevention services, and diligence in data collection coordination and project sustainability, the director said.

GC PCF has provided funding for a core team of interagency staff to become proficient in research-based data collection and analysis, and the utilization of information technology in health and human services. The partnership is currently working with other local partners to develop the county's wireless infrastructure.

To celebrate 10 successful years, a luncheon was held for the partnership staff recently. Nancy Thomas, finance specialist for the partnership, was recognized by the LMB for her 10 years of service. The board has accepted a new slate of officers recently, with Ann Sherrard chosen by vote to serve as LMB chair for fiscal year 2002.

Oakland Man Handed Jail Term For DUI

An Oakland area resident received four one-year jail sentences, to be served concurrently, for driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) and several associated charges yesterday during a session of Garrett County District Court.

Christopher Scott Hintz, 38, was handed the sentence by visiting judge Timothy Finan during a sentencing hearing in traffic court. Hintz, who had originally pleaded not guilty to all charges, had earlier been convicted of two counts of DUI, and one count each of driving with a revoked license and driving with a suspended license.

Finan imposed a one-year jail term on each of the four charges, ruling that they be served concurrently and recommending work release for the defendant. Court costs of $266 were also imposed.

The charges stemmed from a pair of July 2000 arrests by Maryland State Police troopers, both of which took place on the same night. According to the charging statement, at approximately 2:30 a.m. on July 23 Hintz was stopped in his 1991 Jaguar by Tfc. G. Becker for a traffic violation on Garrett Highway near the Point View Inn. After processing the defendant on charges of DUI and driving while revoked, the trooper took Hintz to his Paradise Point Road residence and released him there, advising him not to return to his vehicle.

Two hours later Tfc. B. Bittinger responded along with other officers to Hintz's home after a 9-1-1 phone call reported an altercation at the residence. Upon arriving, police learned that Hintz had fled on foot after allegedly threatening to kill his girlfriend at the home.

After another two hours passed, Bittinger reportedly observed Hintz driving his Jaguar and stopped the car along Bittinger Road near New Germany Road. Noting in his report that Hintz appeared intoxicated and failed field sobriety tests, the trooper placed him under arrest for the second time that day.

Man Accused Of VOP Sentenced In Circuit Crt.

A probation violation case against a Hagerstown man was tried in Garrett County Circuit Court last week, with Judge James Sherbin presiding. Jamieson Egan, 43, was originally convicted of DWI (driving while intoxicated) in 1999 following his arrest in 1998.

Egan was accused of probation violation earlier this year after he apparently was found guilty of DWI again. This violated the probation condition of "obeying all laws."

The defendant pleaded guilty to violation of probation, and Sherbin accepted the plea. The judge reimposed a one-year jail term, but suspended it upon the conditions that Egan pay all fines related to his case and that he continue to participate in rehabilitation classes.

Photographer Overlooked In Photo Caption

In last week's issue of The Republican, several photographs of the Garrett County Fair's equestrian competitions were published, including one on the front page of Jessica Simpson. Readers should note that while the pictures were indeed provided by Sandra Zakaluzny, they were actually taken by Holly Huxford of Oakland.

Another clarification about the front page photograph concerns the horse named Squeak. The horse is actually owned by Jessica Upole, not Miss Simpson. The information about both of these clarifications was received by the newsroom after publication of last week's issue.

Preston Co. Man Faces Possession Of PCP Charge

A Rowlesburg, W.Va., man was arrested early yesterday morning by Garrett County sheriff's deputies on several charges, including possession of PCP with the intent to distribute.

Steven Calvin Barrett Sr., 43, was apprehended shortly after midnight by deputies responding to a report of a motorcycle accident along Maryland Highway at Swanton Hill Road. Although there was no accident to be found, Barrett was located at the scene leaning against his 1998 Harley Davidson motorcycle. After failing field sobriety tests, he was arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI).

A search following the DWI arrest located a glass vial in the motorcycle's front saddlebag, allegedly containing suspected PCP. Additional charges of possession of PCP and possession with intent to distribute were then filed. Barrett was subsequently released from the Garrett County Detention Center after he posted a $20,000 bond.

In other sheriff's news, a Bloomington woman was arrested for violating an ex parte order Sunday evening.

Eva Catherine Sweitzer, 45, was located shortly after 7 p.m. seated in a vehicle with David L. Sweitzer, 51, Oakland. A computer check revealed that a protective order was in effect banning the woman from contacting the man. Eva Sweitzer was arrested and later released after posting a $1,000 bond.

An Oakland man was charged with DWI after a single vehicle accident early Sunday morning along Pleasant Valley Road.

Michael Paul Liller, 24, was reportedly traveling east along the roadway at a high rate of speed when he lost control of his 1997 Chevrolet at 2 a.m. The car ran off the road, struck a telephone tree and came to rest in a field. Miller, who was not injured, was charged with DWI and operating at a speed greater than reasonable.

Other DWI charges were filed this week against Ronald Scott Kragnes, 21, Bethal Park, Pa., and Judy Ann Nugent, 37, Friendsville.

WAL-MART TEACHER OF THE YEAR — The students of Rhonda Savage recently honored her through an event at the Oakland Wal-Mart, during which a number of students voted for their favorite teacher. Savage, a fourth grade teacher at Broad Ford Elementary School, won the honor and received flowers and a party at the store last week. In recognition of the achievement, the school will be given a $500 donation. Along with many of her students, Savage is pictured center (holding the flowers) and beside her is Tracey Baier of Wal-Mart.

Bittinger Man Charged With DWI After Crash

A 19-year-old Bittinger man was charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) after a single-vehicle accident early Sunday morning just east of Accident, according to the Maryland State Police. Four of the seven occupants of the truck were treated at Garrett County Memorial Hospital for minor injuries.

At approximately 12:25 a.m. Joshua F. Gilpin, 19, was driving a 1991 Ford truck south on Fratz Road, just off Accident Bittinger Road, when his vehicle ran off the left side of the road and struck a tree head-on. Four of his passengers, Jody L. Emerick, 23, Grantsville, and Accident residents Garrett K. Barclay, 20, Ashley J. Elliott, 17, and Justin M. Fontaine, 16, were each transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial, where each was treated and released. The Accident Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the crash scene.

In addition to the DWI charge, Gilpin was charged with possession of alcohol under the age of 21 and failure to control speed to avoid a collision.

In other recent MSP accident investigations, an Accident woman was charged in the wake of a Wednesday, Aug. 15, McHenry collision that resulted in minor injuries to her and the other driver.

The 2:45 p.m. mishap occurred when Irma Hull, 50, left the Lakeview Exxon parking lot in her 1999 Plymouth Voyager and allegedly pulled onto Garrett Highway into the path of a southbound 2001 Jeep Cherokee operated by Julie Bolyard, 31, Oakland. Both women were transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Hull was charged with failure to yield right of way.

MDE Reports Recycling Rate In State Rising

The efforts of Marylanders to produce less waste and reuse materials has made a significant contribution to recycling efforts already in wide practice, according to a press release from the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE). Maryland's 2000 recycling rate rose to 37.75 percent, up from 36 percent in '99, as a result of a joint resolution enacted during the 2000 legislative session of the Maryland General Assembly, the MDE reported.

The assembly's joint resolution created a voluntary statewide waste diversion goal of 40 percent by 2005. This goal consists of a 35 percent recycling goal and up to a 5 percent credit for source reduction activities.

"Marylanders have worked hard to make recycling a part of their daily lives," said Governor Parris N. Glendening. "Recycling helps conserve our natural resources and creates a safer, cleaner environment for our children. This new voluntary goal will motivate us to continue to look for additional opportunities to reduce waste statewide."

Seven Maryland counties, representing 54 percent of all Marylanders, reported source reduction activities by local citizens and businesses. These counties emphasized reducing waste at the source and were able to add 2 to 5 percent to their recycling rate to report their waste diversion rate. In the report, Garrett County's rate was noted at 25%.

"Recycling has become a way of life in Maryland," said MDE Secretary Jane T. Nishida. "We are now ready to take the next step and look for ways to make better use of what we buy and, therefore, throw away less."

A variety of source reduction activities are taking place throughout Maryland. Counties are providing easy access to resources via the Internet so that citizens know where they can take materials to be reused instead of discarded. Marylanders can also learn how to compost grass, leaves, and twigs in their own backyard. Additionally, counties have shown citizens that healthy lawns can be realized without bagging grass clippings.

MDE expects to see even more counties implementing source reduction programs next year as more is learned from successful colleagues. Non-profit groups are partnering with the government to increase awareness of the opportunities for source reduction and reuse of materials such as linens, pet supplies, medical equipment, clothing and computers.

Businesses are getting free consultations from county and state officials on improving their bottom line through recycling and source reduction, the MDE reported. To take advantage of all the benefits the program has to offer, interested companies should visit the MDE web site at www.mde.state.md.us/was/recycle/lookfortheloop/index.htm and download an application, or contact the Prince George's County Waste Reduction Section via e-mail at merybak@co.pg.md.us, or call 301-883-5045.

For general information on recycling and source reduction in Maryland, persons may go to MDE's website at www.mdc.state.md.us and click on the "Recycling in Maryland" link in the Choose Topic list.

water believes that this year's campaign efforts are critical to the future of the organization. Pleased with last year's success, Fitzwater says that the infrastructure that will guarantee future successes must be established today.

"Having a strong co-chair like Fran Wishnick made me more comfortable taking on this responsibility," Fitzwater said.

Jeannette Fitzwater resides in Mtn. Lake Park with her husband Gary and children Adam, Paige, and Megan.

In addition to her involvement with the United Way of Garrett County, Fitzwater volunteers for the Garrett County Board of Education and Partnership for Children and Families, is a Cub Scout leader, and is active in St. Paul's United Methodist Church.

Working toward the betterment of the community is nothing new for Fran Wishnick. A community activist, she earned a graduate degree in urban planning from Texas A&M and currently serves on the boards of Spruce Forest Artisan Village and Mountaintop Mental Health.

Wishnick's involvement with the United Way of Garrett County began with her service on the Community Response Committee. During this time she became aware of affiliated agencies' services and their need for funding. Observing the large variety of needs that the United Way has been able to meet greatly encouraged Wishnick and prompted her to become a part of the organization, she said. From feeding the hungry to granting the wishes of children with life-threatening illnesses, the United Way of Garrett County is responding to a host of different needs, and Wishnick is proud to be participating in that effort.

Wishnick is thrilled with the enthusiastic community response toward the United Way of Garrett County, but feels that there is much work to be completed through this year's campaign.

"If we can continue to expand the support that the United Way of Garrett County receives, the people of Garrett County will be the ultimate beneficiaries," said Wishnick.

She said she gladly accepted the offer to co-chair this year's campaign because of her confidence in the United Way's opportunity to further the betterment of the community.

In addition to her community schedule, Wishnick also has family responsibilities to which she must tend. She resides in the Accident area with her husband Ken and children Lindsay and Craig.

Although they are chairing the campaign, Fitzwater and Wishnick will be sharing the multitude of responsibilities with other volunteers. These women are currently in the process of organizing a campaign cabinet, of which each member will be responsible for raising funds from a specific entity or organization within the community, such as automotive, business, and civil service divisions within the county.

So far, Fitzwater and Wishnick have recruited 10 volunteers to serve on the campaign cabinet. These individuals are Bob Stuck, Charlie Shahan, Bea Crosco, Lisa Thayer Welch, Ernest Gregg, Ken Witte, Darrin Green, Helen Earles, Eric Whytsell, and Linda Fike. Fitzwater and Wishnick are currently looking for more volunteers who are willing to be members of the cabinet.

This year's goal is $85,866 for the United Way of Garrett County's affiliated agencies. These include Big Brothers Big Sisters, Boy Scouts of America/Potomac Council, Burlington United Methodist Family Services, the Dove Center, Christian Crossing Thrift Shop, Garrett County Community Action Committee, Garrett County Lighthouse, Garrett County Literacy Council, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, Habitat for Humanity, Maryland Salem Children's Trust, Mountain Glade Adult Day Care Services, the Salvation Army, Western Maryland Catholic Charities, Western Potomac Red Cross, and Western Maryland Make-A-Wish.

A campaign cabinet meeting will be held Monday, Aug. 27, from 10 a.m. to noon in the Community Services Center of Garrett Memorial Hospital.

"I'm Doing Just Fine Without It"
"Can't Afford It." "Don't Need It."
"Not For Me."

Sure times are tough. And cutting your advertising budget may seem like a good way to deal with the economic crunch you're experiencing.

But there's one important thing you should keep in mind: The 'hide-your-head-in-the-sand' approach only succeeds in hiding your business from customers and potential customers...until you're soon forgotten! (And wouldn't your competition love that!)

The fact is, when you cut your newspaper advertising budget thinking you'll save money, you end up cutting your best opportunity to:

- Generate customer traffic
- Improve customer awareness
- Increase sales
- And most importantly...MAKE MONEY!

Newspaper advertising helps keep your business going, no matter what the economy.

Mtn. Maryland Hosts Venture Capital Firm

The Mountain Maryland Entrepreneurial Development Center (MMEDC), in partnership with Speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates Cas Taylor recently hosted Adena Ventures, an economic development venture capital fund, at Rocky Gap Lodge near Cumberland. Managers of the Adena Fund met with potential institutional investors and state government entities to present an opportunity for local investment.

Adena Ventures is one of seven venture capital companies in the nation to be designated as a "New Markets Venture Capital Company." Adena officials say that the company is committed to investing in businesses located throughout the central Appalachian region, including western Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, and Kentucky. The fund expects to generate competitive financial returns for its investors and to create new jobs in the region.

Investors have an option to earmark their investment dollars for a specific geographical region. For example, the West Virginia Economic Development Authority has committed $4 million into the fund and has specified that those dollars be invested in West Virginia.

"Through investment on the part of local banks, state entities, and other institutions, we can increase the dollars earmarked for western Maryland's growing businesses," said Lynn Gellermann, president and COO of Adena Ventures.

"It is important that Maryland investors participate in the Adena Fund," said Speaker Taylor.

The MMEDC has partnered with Adena to provide technical assistance for the fund's potential investment targets by sourcing appropriate opportunities and offering training and specialized business consulting to regional companies. Companies interested in learning more about these resources may contact the MMEDC at 301-777-9301.

drug paraphernalia, and carrying a concealed deadly weapon. Warren was charged with two counts of carrying a concealed deadly weapon. Both men are being held in the Garrett County Detention Center, each on a $5,000 bond.

In other state police news, a 64-year-old Friendsville man was arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI) Tuesday afternoon after being stopped while driving his lawn tractor along Park Avenue.

Robert Stanley House was stopped at 4:43 p.m. near the intersection of Park and Second streets for driving an unregistered and uninsured vehicle on the road. After reportedly noting the strong odor of alcohol, the trooper administered a battery of field sobriety tests and arrested House for DWI. A computer check also revealed that his driver's license had been revoked. He was later released to his son.

Heather Umbel, 19, Friendsville, was arrested for DWI last Thursday, Aug. 16, after a traffic stop along Garrett Highway at Rock Lodge Road. Additional charges of negligent driving, violating a license restriction, and underage possession of alcohol were also filed.

SALEM EQUESTRIAN CENTRE OPEN TO PUBLIC — The Salem Equestrian Centre, a subsidiary of the Maryland Salem Children's Trust, opened its doors to the public for horseback riding and lessons earlier this year. Located near Avilton on 380 forested acres that include the Wolf Swamp, Salem provides residential, educational, and shelter care services to children in need. The Centre's public program was founded by Salem residents, who continue to gain work experience as they manage the business, care for the horses, and greet visitors. The Centre has slated an Equine Fair for Saturday, Sept. 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., which will feature a variety of equestrian activities for all ages, including a drill team performance by the SaddleUp Ministry, composed of riders from across the tri-state area; a miniature horse presentation by Windy Bray Stables of Cumberland; and a vaulting demonstration by members of the Crystal Valley Ranch 4-H Club of Romney, W.Va. There will also be door prize drawings and games. A $5 admission fee per car has been set, and admission proceeds and any additional donations will help finance the construction of an indoor riding arena for Salem residents and clients of the Salem Equestrian Centre. For further information about this event or Salem Equestrian Centre's services to the public, persons may call 301-689-1554. Violin-Piano Duo Will Perform Latin American Music at Penn Alps

Returning to the Great Hall of Penn Alps after an appearance in 1998, pianist Nancy Roldán and violinist José Cueto will perform a program reflecting their Latin American roots this Saturday, Aug. 25, as part of the Music at Penn Alps series in Grantsville. Their performances as a duo have won critical praise, such as the following from Alex Ross of the New York Times: "The evening was an impressive display of full blooded music making."

Born in Argentina, Roldán, now a member of the Peabody Conservatory faculty, maintains an active solo and ensemble performance schedule in the United States, Latin America, and Europe. Recent appearances include the Library of Congress, Ravello Music Festival in Italy, International 2000 Festival in Buenos Aires, and Romantic Festival in Hamilton, Canada.

After graduating from the Universidad Nacional de Cuyo in Argentina, she earned master's and doctoral degrees at Peabody. She has also taught at the University and Conservatory of Puerto Rico, Hood College, and the University of Maryland at Baltimore County, where she was artist-in-residence and piano department chair. She chairs the MSMTA Chamber Music Festival and its competitions, and is on the board of directors of the American Liszt Society's Baltimore-Washington chapter.

A native of Puerto Rico, Cueto is artist-in-residence at St. Mary's College and a faculty member of the Elderhostel Program at Peabody. As a chamber musician, he performs with the Kennedy Center Chamber Players, the Washington Chamber Society, and the Casals Festival Chamber Music Series. He is at home with both traditional and contemporary repertoire.

After graduating from the Conservatory of Music of Puerto Rico with degrees in music education and a diploma in violin performance, he accepted a scholarship to study at the Peabody Conservatory, where he completed his bachelor's and master's of music under the tutelage of laureate violinist Berl Senofsky. While at Peabody, he served as concertmaster of the orchestra and was chosen to perform the Vivaldi Triple Violin concerto with his teacher and violinist, Ruggiero Ricci, in the "Masters of Today and Tomorrow" concert series. MAJOR CHANGES are afoot for the GCC Pipes and Drums, as long-serving pipe major Fred Thayer, one of the band's founders, and pipe sergeant John Grant, are stepping down from their posts. Shown from the left are Thayer, Grant, new pipe major Gerald McGee, and new pipe sergeant Paul Browning.

Long-Time Leaders Of GCC Pipes And Drums Band Changing Guard

by Joan Crawford

A changing of the guard will occur with the Garrett Community College Pipes and Drums in September when the Hon. Fred Thayer retires as pipe major and the Rev. John Grant retires as pipe sergeant. Stepping into those leadership roles will be Gerald McGee as pipe major and Paul Browning as pipe sergeant. The change will mark a milestone in the history of the band that has become a colorful tradition at regional ceremonies with its pipes, drums, and bright tartans.

Thayer has been pipe major since 1979 when he and Charles "Chip" Evans first organized the band as the Garrett Highlanders and the same year started a class for people who wanted to learn to play the bagpipes. Among the eight students in that first class was John Grant. Thayer remembers that their small group would join with the pipe band from the Ali Ghan Shrine for performances and parades.

The band affiliated with the college in 1982 and changed its name to the Garrett Community College Pipes and Drums. Since that time the band has performed in public an average of 20 times each year, including appearances during Autumn Glory at a morning concert and at the parade, at Rocky Gap State Park to introduce then-governor William Donald Schaefer before the Baltimore Symphony concert, at the annual Christmas Walk in Alexandria, Va., at the McHenry Highland Festival, and at numerous parades and ceremonies.

The band has performed at every GCC commencement since 1980, as each year the pipers lead the graduates and faculty in the academic processional to the strains of "Scotland the Brave" and close the ceremony with "Auld Lang Syne." Beyond Garrett County the GCC Pipes and Drums has also appeared on CNN.

Over the past decade the band has grown to 18 regular members, including several from other states. A number of its members have attended the annual North American Academy of Piping conducted by Sandy Jones at Camp Hickory.

Another class for beginning bagpipers has been scheduled this fall at St. John's Episcopal Church beginning at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 5, with McGee serving as lead instructor. McGee brings vast musical experience and educational background to the role of pipe major. He is currently conductor of the Garrett Community Band and will be teaching applied music courses and a music theory course at GCC in the fall. He is also organist for St. John's and St. Matthew's Episcopal churches.

Browning, who works for TCI Computer Systems, began piping at the age of 10 when his father was a drummer in the pipe band.

Both Thayer and Grant plan to continue piping with the band, which any interested person is invited to join. The pipes and drums course is open to beginners and to those who have some experience. Further information may be obtained by calling Thayer at 301-387-9439.

U.S. Navy Band To Give Free Concert At DCL

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival and Westvaco will continue their tradition of presenting a free concert by a United States military band at Deep Creek Lake State Park over the Labor Day weekend. This year the Cruisers, the U.S. Navy's premier rock ensemble, will take the stage at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 2.

In keeping with the free concert, park admission fees will not be collected at the park entrance booth between 3:30 and 4 p.m. If the weather is inclement, the concert will be moved to the Garrett Community College auditorium in McHenry.

The Cruisers feature five of the Navy's most dynamic performers, according to a spokesperson for the group. The band takes it name from the Navy's multi-missioned ship Cruiser. They will present a variety of music, including classic rock, rhythm and blues, and "top 40" hits.

Under the direction of Master Chief Musician Gerard J. Ascione, the Cruisers rock ensemble is the newest specialty unit of the United States Navy Band in Washington, D.C. The group includes Musicians First Class Kenneth H. Carr, guitarist; John L. Fisher, vocalist; Benjamin L. Grant, bassist; and John T. Parsons, drummer.

Ascione, a pianist, performed George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" with the U.S. Navy Band in 1996 at the 300th anniversary of the certmaster of Concert Artists of Baltimore, and previously served as concertmaster of the Baltimore Opera Orchestra and acting concertmaster of the Washington Opera Orchestra.

He and Roldán are founding members of CYGNUS, an international chamber ensemble dedicated to the performance of traditional and novel repertory.

This performance is sponsored by Allegany College of Maryland. The audience is invited to a post-concert reception with refreshments provided by Penn Alps Restaurant.

Music at Penn Alps is sponsored by Sincell Publishing Inc., Penn Alps Restaurant and Crafts Shop, and the support of individuals. Penn Alps is located along Old Route 40 between exits 19 and 22 of Interstate 68.

For information on Music at Penn Alps, reservations, ticket prices, and locations for advance ticket sales, persons may contact Penn Alps Restaurant and Crafts Shop at 301-895-5985. Tickets will be available at the door. There are no reserved seats. Ticket holders should arrive no later than 7:20 p.m. to guarantee seating.

FRIEDMAN AND FRIENDS POISED TO PLAY — The tickets are taken for two chamber concerts at Our Town Theatre on Sunday and Monday, Aug. 26 and 27, by Erick Friedman and four colleagues, Ian Hobson, Lu Sun, Jesse Levine, and Sophie Shao. Kathryn Sincell-Corwell is the executive director of the new series, and Friedman, who has become a familiar performer in Garrett County over the past 14 years, serves as music director, conductor, and performer. All five of the musicians are renowned in their fields, having played with the world's best-known orchestras and symphonies. They will be presenting music by Mozart, Brahms, Schubert, and many others. Pictured above from left are Friedman, Sun, and Hobson. Shown below are Levine and Shao. Former Husky Named Coach At Frostburg State

Gene Cutter, former player and coach at Northern High School, has been named head coach of the Frostburg State men's and women's tennis programs, Bobcat athletic director Ralph Brewer announced recently.

Cutter brings an extensive background as both a player and coach to the Bobcat programs. He has served as the head tennis professional at the Rawlings Racquet Club since 1990, the United States Tennis Association high school player development coordinator for the state of Maryland since 1995, and an instructor with West Virginia University player development since 1996.

Cutter also served as head men's tennis coach at Northern High School from 1994 to 1995 and led the Huskies to a 14-14 record. Northern hadn't won a single match in the previous seven seasons. Additionally, Cutter was the head tennis professional at the Cumberland Country Club from 1998 to 1999.

"I am very excited about the opportunity to coach both programs here at Frostburg State," said Cutter. "We have some very talented athletes on each team, and I'm looking forward to challenging the Allegheny Mountain Collegiate Conference titles, as well as postseason berths."

In addition to his achievements as a coach, Cutter has also enjoyed great success as a player. A member of the Frostburg State men's tennis team the last two seasons, he compiled a 53-5 overall record (27-2 in singles and 26-3 in doubles) and claimed back-to-back Allegheny Mountain Collegiate Conference Most Valuable Player honors. In 2000, Cutter posted a 34-0 record (17-0 in both singles and doubles play) and helped lead the Bobcats to their first-ever perfect season (15-0) as well as their first AMCC championship.

"Gene will certainly be an asset to our programs," said Brewer. "Having been our number one player, he knows our program and our opponents. He has great tennis knowledge, and I'm confident he'll be able to lead us to the NCAA tournament."

Cutter, who holds USPTR certification, is currently pursuing his bachelor's degree in athletic training from Frostburg State.

Maddawgs Open Gridiron Season With Victories

The Northern Maddawgs of the Pee Wee youth football league opened the 2001 campaign Saturday with two victories over the visiting Cresaptown Eagles at Northern High School. The Maddawg C team took a 13-2 win, while the Maddawg A and B squads cruised to a combined 32-12 triumph.

As the score indicated, the C team utilized an outstanding defensive effort, especially along its front line, to pummel the Cresaptown offense into submission. The Maddawg defenders forced two fumbles on the day, recovering both, and allowed only two first downs and no points. The Maddawgs' offense was highlighted by a 64-yard, two-touchdown rushing performance by quarterback Jesse Lapp and a 28-yard rushing tally by Kameron Kamp, who scored an extra point. Matthew Grady accounted for 26 yards on the ground, and Austin Tombley rushed for 7 yards.

The Maddawg A and B units both got off to quick starts in their combined contest. The B team played the first quarter and scored a touchdown on a Josh Duckworth run. The A team got in the endzone early in the second quarter when Ryan Winebrenner rushed for a touchdown and Garrett Gulledge followed with an extra point run. On the ensuing Cresaptown possession, the Maddawgs' defense shut the Eagles down deep in their own territory and forced a punt. The A team's offensive linemen hammered away at their counterparts across the line to open a number of holes during the Maddawgs' second straight touchdown drive of the stanza, and Andrew Ganoe capped the march by carrying the ball across the goal line for the score.

The B team scored a third quarter touchdown on an Aaron Lapp run. The A team got its final licks in during the fourth quarter, when the defense held the Eagles at mid-field to give the A squad offense great field position. Ganoe eventually scored another touchdown on the ground, and Lapp carried in the extra point score as the Maddawgs rumbled to their 20-point triumph.

"We were very pleased with our opening performance," Maddawg head coach Jamie Rodeheaver commented. The three Northern-based squads will travel to Cumberland on Saturday to battle the Raiders. Opening kickoff is scheduled for 9:30 a.m.

Internationals Soccer Camp Is Attended By 128

The Internationals Soccer Camp, hosted by Mountaintop Soccer Association and Arsenal Football Associates last week, saw 128 youth from ages 3 to 18 participate in the instructional camp, which was conducted by professional coaches from the Cleveland metropolitan area. The coaches, led by brothers George and Louie Nanchoff, along with Zdravco Popovic, one of the coaches of the United States Women's National B Team and the United States Olympic Team, provided age-graded instruction to the participants.

"It was amazing to see the skill work that could be accomplished by the younger children while still having great fun," stated Mel Menker, president of Arsenal Football, who explained that the reason for contracting with Internationals Soccer Club was to assist in raising the level of play in each individual, as well as in the recreational play, the travel program, and the high school teams.

"The format provided by Internationals builds upon previous learning, which means that the skills learned this year will set the stage for the instruction to follow next year," he said.

The current contract calls for Internationals to return next year the week of August 5-9, so parents are encouraged to mark those dates on their calendars now to prepare. For more information, persons may contact Ron Petrella, president of MSA, at 301-334-1174, or Menker at 301-334-5906.

Sailboat Racing
On Deep Creek Lake

LIGHT AIR CHALLENGES RACERS
by Dan Muss

The weather forecast for last weekend was for partly sunny both Saturday and Sunday, with thundershowers arriving Sunday evening. They were right on. Saturday we had light wind out of the west, but a really nice sailing day.

Keith Spinnenweber is recovering from broken bones in his foot and wrist after being run down by a speeding motorboat about a month ago. The light air enabled Keith to race his brother's Laser in both races on Saturday ... and he placed in the first race. All this with a cast on his arm.

As I sailed up and back along the starting line in the first race, the wind was switching back and forth, favoring first one end and then the other. I decided to start at the pin, while most of the fleet was at the committee boat. But as the clock wound down to the start, the other seven boats at the committee boat end of the line had a nice breeze and started briskly on the starboard tack. But I could not weather the line and had to tack onto port to cross ... dead last.

We then got knocked on port, so I tacked onto starboard only to find myself following the fleet in toward Zepp's point on the Turkey Neck shore. So I bit the bullet and tacked back onto port, taking the unfavorable course in order to get away from the other sailboats. When we tacked back onto starboard we had clean air, good boat speed, and, as we rounded the first windward mark, we had worked our way up to fourth.

At the leeward mark our spinnaker came down, and we rounded and hardened up just behind Barbara Elster and slightly to windward. It turns out that crew Julie Elster had to fend us off to avoid a bump (we were all traveling slowly in the light air). That means we had committed a foul, as she had right-of-way. But neither I nor my crew saw that maneuver, as we were both very busy getting onto the new course, and Elster did not tell us we had fouled her, so we had no way of knowing and no opportunity to do our penalty turns.

We passed her on the last windward leg to finish third. It turned out that a bit later she lost her outhaul when the line broke. Julie climbed up on the aft deck while Barbara kept the boat moving and rigged a jury line. They finished fourth.

As I brought the boat into the dock, my fearless crew, Marilyn Filemyr, hopped off the boat and her ankle twisted as she fell. We had to take her into the ER at Garrett Memorial; she broke a bone in her foot. She'll be out for about six weeks.

On Sunday, my son son Andrew agreed to crew for me, but at race time there was practically no breeze at all so our fleet decided not to go. The race commander, John Meredith, did manage to get a short race off ... without us.

SHS CHEERLEADER IS ALL-AMERICAN — Brandi Arnett, a sophomore at Southern High School, earned top honors at the West Virginia University Cheerleading Camp held earlier this month. She was named an All-American Cheerleader for the second consecutive year. The recipients of this award must score 23 points or higher out of a possible 30, and Arnett earned the highest score of about 15 girls competing. She was named the Top All American Cheerleader in the entire camp of approximately 100 participants. She trains weekly at the West Virginia Gymnastics Training Center and is also a private student of Coach Brian Bennett. She will be vying for a spot on a Morgantown, W.Va., based all-star squad in March. Arnett will also be a JV cheerleader at SHS for the second year. In addition to these activities, she assists her sister, Wendy Craver, in coaching the Oakland Youth League Jets cheerleaders. ROARING KNOB
by Donna Butler

Jeff Ferguson, the "Brownfield Bullet," took his eighth of the season on Stepping Stones Support Night at Roaring Knob Raceway Park.

Polesitter Gary Tonkery took control of the Ken Nicholson and Sons Late Model feature at the drop of the green. Tonkery would build a third of a straightaway lead before Ferguson could shake free of the pack. Once in sole possession of the second spot, Ferguson began to chip away at Tonkery's advantage. At the halfway point, Tonkery held the point with Ferguson close behind, followed by Dave Yowler, Mel Minnick, and Bobby Neratka. A lap 15 caution for the spun car of Billy Eash tightened the field, and on the restart, Ferguson used one of his trademark tight-to-the-inside moves through turns 3 and 4 to take over the helm. Ferguson was not challenged the rest of the way. Following Ferguson were Tonkery, Yowler, Neratka, and D.J. Cline in second through fifth. Eash, Minnick, Jim Stangry, and Danny Pugh completed the finishing order. The event was nearly flawless, with only one caution.

Lynn Knepper, of Somerset, Pa., took the lead on lap 1, and held off charges by the entire top five en route to his second consecutive VitaLink-QCOL Classic Lite win. Another fine show in this division saw Bob Bolin come from seventh on the grid to finish second, followed by points leader Mike Hay, John Cogar, and Eric Hay. There were two cautions thrown, and a red on lap 1 as a three-car melee in turn 1 saw John Witkowski's machine end up on its side.

The "Farmington Fireball," John Redshaw, padded his points lead with win number four in the Country Charm Hot Stock division. Redshaw took the helm from Marty Anker on the 4th trip around the mountaintop oval, only to lose it to Scott Spade at the halfway point. On the 17th circuit, under caution for Fred Spiker's spin, Spade's machine came to a stop in the 4th turn. Spade retired from the event, and Redshaw inherited the top spot once more. Redshaw held off Jim Byers for the win, followed by Joe Thomas, Joe Malarich, and Bob Nelson. Seven cautions marred an otherwise action-packed event.

Jason Boncoski of Stoystown, Pa., led flag to flag in the Fort Necessity Garage 4-Cylinder Modified event. Following Boncoski to the stripe were Chad Livingston, Dave Gabbert, Sonny Crayton, and Ray Wright. The event was caution free.

Hopwood, Pa.'s Dave Friend led one-fourth of a lap. He passed Floyd Carey on the final turn of the final lap, taking his first in the Fort Necessity Garage 4-Cylinder Stock division. Carey took the runner-up spot, followed by Martin Spade Jr., Bob Miller, and Dane Burnworth. Two cautions were thrown.

Tom Goodman of Luvettsville, Va., took the Sportsman Sprint feature, followed by Craig Shaw and Nicole Miller.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park will return to action this Saturday, Aug. 25, as Green Acres Contracting presents another edition of Mountain Thunder 2001. Appalachian Timber Products will hold activities for the Junior Pit Crew.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park is located two miles west of the Youghiogheny Lake, just off Route 40 along Fearer Road. For more information, please call the raceway office at 724-329-0306 or 724-329-8196, or visit www.roaringknob.com on the Web.

INTERSTATE 79 SPEEDWAY
by Cheryl Baker-Stasiak

The 2001 four-cylinder special was picked up by Dave Summers. The win was the Grafton, W.Va., driver's ninth of the season. Summers was the fastest qualifier with a time of 19.431, and he also picked up the dash win. Summers started from the pole and never faltered for the 15-lap event. D. Jay Miller was second and Tom Simpson was third. Sonny Crayton, Wyatt Pifer, Kevin Pifer, Joe Frye, Skip Raupach, Michelle Shaw, David Gabbert, and Shawn Phillips rounded out the field.

In the Late Models, it was win number two for Beverly, W.Va.'s, Chuck Harper, who took the lead on lap two from polesitter Gary Dalton and never looked back. Paul Wilmoth was able to pull to Harper's bumper, but could not get around. Wilmoth was second and Butch McGill was third. Robbie Scott, Tim Dohm, Bobby Hill, Frank Wilson, Gary Dalton, Tommy Pennington, and Tim Senic placed fourth through 10th.

M.T. Hall picked up feature win number seven in a caution-filled Semi Late feature. Hall led wire to wire. L.C. Powers finished second after coming from the tail after an early race accident. David Brown was third in his first visit to the oval in 2001. Steve Wilmoth, Eugene Towson, Travis Brookover, Jeff Kesling, Billy Holbert, and Danny Pugh rounded out the top 10.

Vic Vandergrift and Ron Parrish traded the lead twice before Vandergrift was able to pull ahead and pick up win number two in the AMRA Modifieds. Parrish settled for second. Rick Smith advanced from his eighth starting spot to finish third, while Steve Cook finished fourth. Charles Cochran came across the line in fifth, but failed to go to the scales and was disqualified. This moved Brent Trimble to the fifth spot. Louie Krushansky, Dave Defibaugh, Shawn Davis, Wayne Jordan, and Dana McIntyre filled out the top 10.

Uniontown, Pa.'s, Jim Bendishaw made it two in a row and win number three in the Pure Stocks. Point leader Jim Byers was second and Randy Bohan was third. Punky Conrad, Dusty Hamrick, Chad Green, Jay Martin, Roger Coffman, Chuck Bloom, and Troy Frazier filled out the top 10.

Fox Proposes 30-Day Canada Goose Season

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary Designee J. Charles Fox, in conjunction with Acting Secretary Stanley K. Arthur, announced this week that the state is proposing a 30-day hunting season for Atlantic Population (AP) migratory Canada geese.

"This is a classic conservation success story," Fox said. "Today's action rests on a foundation of sound scientific survey and research data, and we are committed to ensuring the continued recovery of the AP goose population.

"In 1995, after a 75 percent decline in population levels, Maryland was the leader in suspending migratory Canada goose hunting in the Atlantic flyway," he added. "Our conservative stance has paid off, as we now see breeding population numbers at historic levels. The time has come to resume the tradition of migratory Canada goose hunting in Maryland."

The timing of the proposed migratory goose season is also intended to provide relief to farmers experiencing agricultural damage caused by Canada geese.

The proposed season dates are Nov. 19 to Nov. 23, and Dec. 22 to Jan. 19. The daily bag limit will be one goose.

In addition to proposing the migratory goose season, DNR outlined the proposed waterfowl seasons for ducks, resident Canada geese, sea ducks, snow geese, and brant. A full list of species, proposed seasons, and bag limits follows is available at http://www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/lwfonlineforumintro.html.

DNR will hold a public hearing on the proposed waterfowl hunting seasons Aug. 27 at 7 p.m. at Annapolis Senior High School, 2700 Riva Rd., Annapolis. Written comments regarding the proposals can be sent to: Waterfowl Regulations, Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife and Heritage Division, Tawes State Office Building, 580 Taylor Avenue, Annapolis, MD 21401. Comments may also be e-mailed to: customerservice@dnr.state.md.us.

Public comments will be accepted through the close of business on August 28. Final announcements of the 2001 seasons selected by the DNR will be made by the end of August.

DNR Announces Migratory Bird Hunting Seasons

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has announced the 2001-2002 early migratory game bird seasons.

The dove season and seasons for other migratory game birds, including a statewide early resident Canada goose season, were contained in a package of Maryland selections forwarded to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

In addition, Maryland and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service have designated a Junior Waterfowl Hunting Day for Saturday, Sept. 29, for junior hunters accompanied by an unarmed adult. Junior license holders can participate and can take one Canada goose in addition to the five-duck daily bag limit. An adult who possesses a valid Maryland hunting license or is license exempt must accompany junior hunters. The person accompanying the junior hunter may assist in calling, waterfowl identification, and other aspects of the hunt, but may not be in possession of a firearm or other hunting device.

The dove season, which marks the traditional start of hunting activity each year in Maryland, will open Saturday, Sept. 1, and continue through Oct. 21. The second and third split seasons will be Nov. 13-18 and Dec. 18-30.

The state's woodcock season will open Oct. 20 and continue through Nov. 10, and will reopen Jan. 12-19, allowing hunters to take advantage of the late migration of woodcock that takes place along the coast.

The rail bird hunting season opens Sept. 1 and continues through Nov. 9.

The early resident Canada goose season will open Sept. 1 and continue statewide through Sept. 15. In the western zone (which includes Garrett County), the season will continue through Sept. 25. The daily bag limit is five geese per day.

All migratory game bird hunters, including those not required to have a hunting license, are required to obtain and carry a HIP (Harvest Information Program) permit. All waterfowl hunters over 16 years of age, including landowners who are exempt when hunting on their own property, are also required to carry a Federal Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp. All waterfowl hunters who are required to purchase a hunting license, except state residents over 64 years old, must have a Maryland Migratory Waterfowl Stamp.

HIP permits and Maryland Waterfowl Stamps are available at Maryland DNR sport license agents and DNR regional service centers. Hunters may obtain federal duck stamps at U.S. post offices, national wildlife refuges, and certain Maryland DNR sport license agents.

Hunters are reminded that nontoxic shot is required for hunting waterfowl and coots. Approved nontoxic shot includes steel, bismuth-tin, tungsten-polymer, tungsten-iron, and tungsten matrix. Hunters may not possess or use nontoxic shot larger than size No. 1 or use or possess any lead shot while waterfowl hunting.

Shooting hours for migratory game birds are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset, except for: (1) mourning dove during the first season segment, when shooting hours are from noon to sunset; and (2) teal during the Sept. teal season when shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset.

Hunters are encouraged to report banded migratory game birds by calling toll free 1-800-327-BAND (2263).

A listing of DNR wildlife management areas can be found at www.dnr.state.md.us/wmamap.html. General information about hunting in Maryland can be found at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/hntgp.html and the 2001-2002 Hunting and Trapping Guide can be found at http://www.dnr.state.md.us/huntersguide/.

SHS Politics Class Travels To Washington

With school beginning once again next week, agendas will be created, and several will include a variety of class trips. One such trip last May was that of Dave Bender's advanced placement (AP) government and politics class, which traveled to Washington, D.C.

While in the nation's capital last spring, Bender's students received a tour of the Capital Building from members of Senator Paul Sarbanes's staff. Sarbanes then met with the students on the steps of the Capital. The senator discussed various issues, including the controversy of that month of how political power was shifting as a result of Senator Jeffords of Connecticut's departure from the U.S. Congress.

Students also saw former Senator Robert Dole on the steps of the U.S. Senate Building. They toured the White House and Supreme Court Building.

The group ate dinner at Jeffries Restaurant in the infamous Watergate Hotel before they visited the Kennedy Center to see "Shear Madness." Students ate lunch at the Old Post Office and concluded their tour with a visit to the Holocaust Museum.

"These kind of experiences are a great reward for our students' superior academic effort," said Bender. "I can't be more proud of this group. Out of nine students taking this year's national government and politics test, all nine received a grade of '3' or more (out of a possible 5). These students took advantage of an opportunity to challenge their academic ability. They worked hard and it paid off. They have been rewarded with the pride and self-esteem that comes with academic achievement, as well as saving their parents a nice sum of money by earning college credits while they were still in high school."

Also taking part in the trip where two award winners from the Electoral College Map Contest, held during the election in November. They were Robbie Stemple and Willie Davis. Both students came within one vote of predicting the final electoral college tally of the Bush-Gore contest, one of the closest elections in American history. The cost of their trip was sponsored by both the Garrett County Democratic and Republican Central Committee, as well as First United Bank of Oakland.

LOCAL STUDENTS GO TO WASHINGTON — A class trip last May taken by government and politics students at Southern High School was deemed a successful journey by all in attendance. The students had the opportunity to see and talk with Senator Paul Sarbanes, former Senator Robert Dole, and other political figures. They also visited a number of historic sites, including the Holocaust Museum. See story. (While the trip was several months ago, the picture was not received from Sarbanes's office until this month.) In the front row, left to right, are Sarbanes, teacher Lu Ann Watson, Maylei Skeweris, Nick Walthall, and Suzanne Gilbert. Second row, same order: chaperone Jeff Gilbert, LaWanda Harvey, Laura Hollingsworth, Katelin Moomau, and Haley Gillespie. Third row: chaperone Matt Dugan, Tom Crozier, Kate Dugan, teacher Dave Bender, and Willie Davis.

Maryland Schools To Break New Ground In 2001-02 School Year

As schools open for more than 853,000 students statewide this fall, over 8,000 new teachers and principals will enter the profession while increasing numbers of baby-boom era teachers face retirement. At the same time, the state this year will sharpen its focus on the early learning years with measures of school readiness and will begin putting the results of tougher new state high school end-of-course exams on the records of incoming freshmen. Technology will be in the spotlight as the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) prepares to begin taking teacher certification applications via the internet and readies both teacher and student courses to be taught on-line for the first time statewide.

By early 2002, the Visionary Panel for Better Schools will have completed its nine-month study of decade-old state education reforms, making recommendations on ways to accelerate the state's progress over the next ten years. Meanwhile, three Baltimore schools open their second year under state-mandated management by Edison Schools, while a fourth Baltimore school, Westport, begins operation under Victory Schools as part of the state's reconstitution programs for low-performing schools.

Nancy S. Grasmick, beginning her 11th year as state superintendent of schools, said, "By most measures, Maryland schools are, on the whole, far better than they were a decade ago. However, we have miles to go." Despite a decade of work, large gaps separate the performance of Maryland's males and females, white students and African American and Hispanic students, and wealthy and poor students. She pointed out that, "the 2001-2002 school year is an important year when we will be building the foundations for an aggressive effort to improve in the decade ahead. This is the beginning of our next phase of reforms."

Opening Dates

The first school bell for Maryland students will sound on Monday, August 27, for 16 school systems - Allegany, Anne Arundel, Carroll, Cecil, Charles, Dorchester, Frederick, Garrett, Howard, Kent, Prince George's, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's, Somerset, Talbot, and Washington. Six school systems will begin on Tuesday, September 4 - Baltimore City, Baltimore County, Harford, Montgomery, Wicomico, and Worcester. Calvert

In Loving Memory of My Husband
Harold C. Lipscomb
on His 66th Birthday
August 29, 1935

Beautiful memories woven in gold,
This is the picture I tenderly hold.
Deep in my heart your memory is kept,
To love and cherish and never forget.
The depths of sorrow I cannot tell,
Of the loss of the one I loved so well.
They say that time will heal all sorrow.
Time will make the wound less sore.
But time can never stop the longing,
For the loved one gone before.
You are still loved and missed very much.
So I will say "Happy Birthday Sweetheart" and send all my love and kisses to Heaven above to the one I love.

CAPTAIN CORELLI'S MANDOLIN

Rated R - Running Time: 2:07 - Released 8/17/01

I guess it's something about the turn of the millennium that has instigated a rash of novels and movies about World War II, arguably the most important global event of the 20th century. Taking its place among the greatest of such films is John Madden's war-torn romance Captain Corelli's Mandolin, based on the book by Louis de Bernières and adapted for the screen by award-winning South African writer Shawn Slovo (A World Apart). History-loving director Madden, who helmed 1997's powerful but underappreciated Mrs. Brown and then won the Best Director Oscar for 1998's Shakespeare In Love, does not fail to live up to the tradition for excellence he has established; Captain Corelli's Mandolin is a deeply moving film sprinkled with romance and humor which he folds expertly into the mix of violence and tragedy that was the rule of the day in WWII-era Europe. It provides yet another opportunity for actors Nicolas Cage, Penélope Cruz, and John Hurt to show off their considerable technique, and allows us to witness the beauty of the Greek landscape through the eyes of Oscar-winning cinematographer John Toll (Braveheart).

The action begins in an Italian-occupied Greek village in 1940, a very small, earthquake-plagued island named Cephallonia. Although the visiting soldiers, led by Capt. Antonio Corelli (Cage), are more interested in wine, women, and especially song, than they are in ruling the Greek population, local physician Dr. Iannis (Hurt) and his beautiful daughter Pelagia (Cruz) do not welcome the intruders. However, when Dr. Iannis realizes that housing an Italian officer may mean better access to medical supplies, he grudgingly invites Capt. Corelli to stay at his home. Soon the affable captain has won the hearts of practically everyone in town, not only with his friendly demeanor and his aversion to violence, but by playing his cherished mandolin, which he does with grace and eloquence. Pelagia, whose fiancé Mandras (Christian Bale) has gone to fight with the Partisans, is the last to fall to Corelli's charms, but fall she does, soon finding herself in love with the enemy. The sticky situation that develops when Mandras returns from the front is made much more difficult when Mussolini relinquishes power to Hitler and the Germans take over the town, forcibly disarming the incredulous Italian army.

The epic quality of this movie is surprising given its small cast of principal characters. Featuring romantic imagery and savage war footage that rivals any of the recent similarly-themed films, Madden's essay is touching and at the same time brutal, brimming with the emotional conflict that surges within its characters. Antonio is a peaceful man forced to play by the rules of a violent contest; his attempts to win over the reticent Pelagia, and his frustration at her unwillingness to concede, is shown in Cage's stormy looks and desperate overtures. Moreover, the sweetly romantic mandolin ballads (penned by Stephen Warbeck), which Cage appears to be actually playing live, are a stirring counterpoint to the uncomfortable situation in which he finds himself.

Cruz is strong and yet eminently delicate as the conflicted woman engaged in her own struggle between the richly felt emotions of her heart and the equally strong feelings she has for family and country. Finally, Hurt reasserts his position as one of the great actors of our time with a touching turn as Pelagia's loving but deeply patriotic father. The production is richly layered with the colors of the emotional spectrum, brought out with finesse by this talented director and his team. ★★★★★

THE OTHERS

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:45 - Released 8/17/01

The Others starts auspiciously enough with a blood-curdling scream by its star, Nicole Kidman. Unfortunately, this the most interesting thing that happens for the next 45 minutes. Spanish writer/director Alejandro Amenábar, who helmed the film, definitely does not fall into the trap of overstating the horror in his horror film (I have often complained that scary movies undermine their own effectiveness by overdoing their effects), but he almost goes too far in the opposite direction, keeping the action at a slow, plodding pace that provokes more yawns than gasps from his audience. Kidman, who is onscreen during practically every scene, is suitably affected, but one can only witness so many minutes of wandering tensely around a darkened mansion looking for ghosts before one thinks, "Okay, show me something scary, or I'm going to go watch Rush Hour 2 again." The final reel of The Others is reasonably captivating, but the 85 minutes that come before it are mostly just dull and atmospheric.

Kidman's character, Grace, is a mother of two who is still waiting in her huge and unneccessarily scary house in the Channel Islands for the return of her husband from World War II. The trouble is, it's fall 1945, the war ended several months ago, and she still hasn't heard a word. (My theory is he's too scared to come back to the house.) Anyway, while she waits for him, she has other problems. Her children, Anne (Alakina Mann) and Nicholas (James Bentley), suffer from an allergy to light which makes it neccessary to keep the curtains closed at all times lest they break out in hives, and her entire staff of servants has recently tendered their resignation, no doubt because Grace has been grumpy lately for lack of sex.

While Grace alternates between catching up on her embroidery and psychologically torturing her kids with scary Bible lessons, her new staff of three begins to learn the rules of the house. Mrs. Mills (Fionnula Flanagan), whose soft but frumpy exterior and Dublin accent give her a starling resemblance to Robin Williams in Mrs. Doubtfire, serves as the house's mysterious cook/nanny, Mr. Tuttle (Eric Sykes) is the mysterious gardener, and Lydia (Elaine Cassidy) is the mysterious young mute girl whose purpose seems mainly to be mysterious. They learn that any open door must be closed before another is opened, the curtains must always be closed, and the children must be kept on the edge of terror at all times.

As usual in this type of movie, the house is just as much a character as anyone in the film. The place is ridiculously huge, with stone walls on the outside and dark wood interiors, ancient furniture and fixtures, and no electricity. The weather seems to be in a permanent foggy morning state, during the few times we actually see outside. This oppressive atmosphere would be good for horror if there were any horror to speak of in the film. But as it turns out, it's just oppressive. Though Kidman plays her red-eyed lunatic/migraine sufferer character like a woman possessed, the anemic-looking kids and the unsettlingly quiet nanny add equal parts of understated eerieness. As Mrs. Mills, Flanagan projects an air of grandmotherly affection mixed with self-confident menace; the children are not quite so effective. Mann is in conflict about whether she's supposed to be scared or supportive of the ghosts in the house, and Bentley, who seems to have a permanent scowl etched on his forehead, just reads his lines. The result is all atmosphere with no substance, and though the ominous line "Stop breathing!" is uttered more than once, there is precious little in this story to scare anybody. ★★★

RAT RACE

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:50 - Released 8/17/01

Writing a review of Jerry Zucker's Rat Race without mentioning It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World would be a gross oversight, since this movie is so obviously patterned after it. However, calling Zucker's film a remake of Stanley Kramer's classic 1963 screwball comedy would be giving it too much credit. I would think a better term would be "pathetic attempt to emulate" the earlier film. Rat Race has its funny moments (which would undoubtedly be funnier if it were more original), but its clear similarities to Mad, Mad serve to underscore its flaws, giving it a built-in handicap from the proverbial get-go. However, judged on its own merits it's a passable comedy about a dozen or so people who race across the country (or at least 563 miles) to win a $2 million treasure, getting themselves in all sorts of wacky situations along the way. It features moments of inanity from virtually all its participants, but only scores the occasional chuckle for its effort. Writer/producer/director Zucker, whose directorial credits include comedies like Airplane! and Ruthless People, and romances like Ghost and First Knight, manages to pull off his version of the old-fashioned celebrity romp in just under 2 hours.

The story begins in a Las Vegas casino, where a number of random people are selected to engage in a race for the aforementioned $2 mil, hidden in a railroad station locker in Silver City, New Mexico, by the casino's owner, the very wealthy and oily Donald Sinclair (John Cleese, sporting a ridiculously large and ill-fitting set of false teeth). Unbeknownst to the largely selfish and common-sense-challenged group, Sinclair's real reason for the caper is to allow a collection of international high-rollers to bet on which of the schmucks will make it first.

The principal participants are aspiring attorney and self-admitted "most gullible person on Earth" Nick Shaffer (Breckin Meyer), who first decides not to participate but changes his mind when he meets fresh-faced helicopter pilot Tracy Faucet (Amy Smart); middle-aged nice lady Vera Baker (Whoopi Goldberg) and her long-lost daughter, edgy businesswoman Merrill Jennings (Lanei Chapman), who met each other for the first time right before becoming involved in the race; doofy con artist brothers Duane and Blaine Cody (Seth Green and Vince Vieluf), whose only reason for being in Vegas was to rip someone off; NFL ref Owen Templeton (Cuba Gooding Jr.), enjoying recent notoriety for a bad call at a Dallas game (which nearly everyone in Vegas had money riding on); vacationing family Randy and Bev Pear (Jon Lovitz, Kathy Najimy) and their kids (Brody Smith, Jillian Marie); and finally, narcoleptic Italian Enrico Pollini (Rowan Atkinson), whose grasp of the situation seems almost as tenuous as his ability to stay awake.

As in the 1963 film, this group breaks off, mostly in pairs, and gets in all sorts of ridiculous situations, traveling in every kind of vehicle imaginable (except an airplane), including various cars and trucks, a taxicab, helicopter, hot air balloon, rocket car, tour bus, mental hospital bus, a chartered bus en route to an I Love Lucy convention, and Adolph Hitler's Rolls Royce. Meanwhile, Sinclair and his assistant (Dave Thomas) keep their guests busy by letting them bet on everything from what a Vegas hooker will charge for a butt shave to who'll throw up first on the flight to New Mexico. The film ends at a Silver City Smash Mouth concert, with the actors all gleefully moshing over the end credits. It's almost worth the ticket price alone to see Kathy Najimy dive off the stage into the audience; at any rate Rat Race, while nowhere near the level of its mad, mad predecessor, is adequate fun and merits at least a passing grade. ★★★½

County Schools open on Tuesday, August 28, and Caroline County Schools begin on Thursday, August 30.

Visionary Panel for Better Schools

Over the past few months, the Visionary Panel for Better Schools comprised of a variety of Marylanders, has been evaluating public education in Maryland and crafting a vision for the next decade. In addition to the main panel there are seven work groups. Accountability, Assessment, Achievement Gaps, Leadership, Learning, Public Support, and Teacher Quality. Final recommendations are to come out in January 2002.

Teacher Shortage Concerns

Teacher recruitment has paid off across the state. Efforts by Governor Parris Glendening, State Superintendent Nancy Grasmick and the State Legislature have had a positive impact on the hiring of new teachers this year. Some local systems had a very large number of teacher vacancies for the coming school year and their diligence in filling those positions with qualified individuals coupled with the Teacher incentive Program contributed to their success. The Retired/Rehired Teacher Program has been well received in many counties and has helped greatly with the recruitment effort. However, school systems must continue to aggressively recruit qualified teachers for the classroom as more teachers are eligible to retire. Maryland's initiative for New Teachers (MINT) will help ease the transition into the classroom for some 8,000 new teachers in the state this year.

Maryland Focuses on High School Standards . Improvement

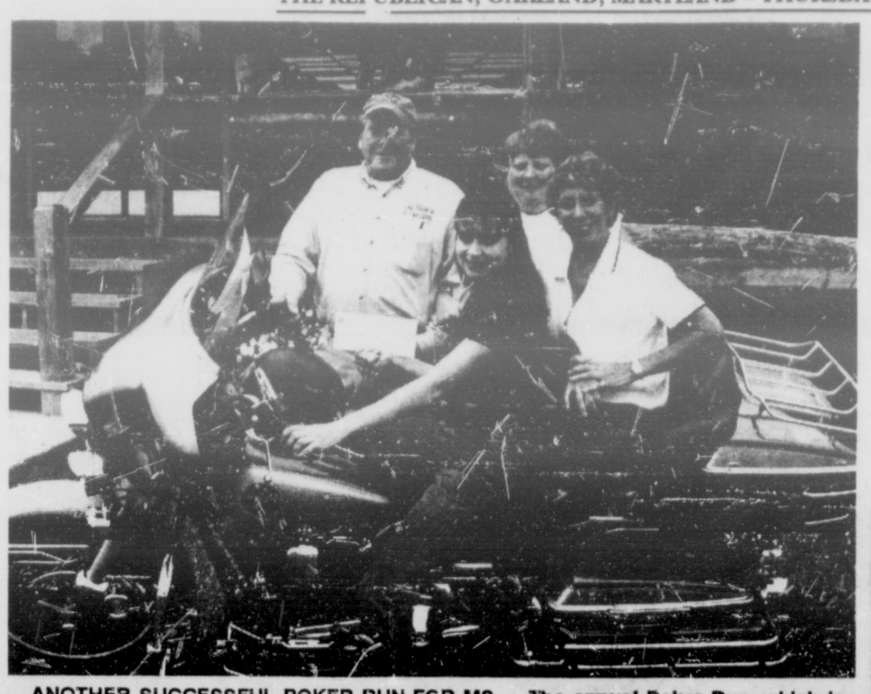
Maryland continues to raise standards for high school students with the Maryland High School Assessments (HSA). This school year, all students will be required to take the HSA as they complete the appropriate coursework. Students entering grade 9 will have their English, government, biology, and algebra/data analysis test scores reported on their high school transcripts as a percentile rank. Passing the test is not scheduled to be graduation requirement until 2003-2004

Maryland Establishes Baseline information for Entering Kindergartners

In response to legislation, MSDE implemented a pilot project as part of the Maryland Model for School Readiness, to assess entering kindergartners skills and abilities in seven curricular domains. The results, based on 23,000 kindergarten students, indicates that 40% were rated by teachers as fully ready to do kindergarten work, and 60% need targeted or considerable support to do kindergarten work successfully. The assessment of kindergarten students will be fully implemented across the state in school 2001-02. The information will be used to plan for improving the quality of early care and education, modify instruction in kindergarten, and provide targeted instructional support to students before they move to primary level grades. The report for school year 2000-01 is available on the MSDE website.

MSDE Spearheads School Readiness initiative

As a remedy to provide adequate and equitable learning opportunities for young children prior to school entry, MSDE began to implement the Judith P. Hoyer Early Care and Education Enhancement Program in school year 2000-01. The JPH Program is designed to improve the school readiness skills of young children. The program includes establishing comprehensive early childhood education centers, Judy Centers, and the Early Childhood Accreditation Project. Grant funding is available to providers of early care services to improve their program and obtain national or state program accreditation. The program is named after the late Judith Hoyer, Early Learning Supervisor in Prince George's County Public Schools.



ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL POKER RUN FOR MS — The annual Poker Run, which involves hundreds of motorcyclists from several surrounding states who travel to and all around the mountaintop, garnered a significant contribution for the Multiple Sclerosis Society this year. Approximately $1,145 was raised for the organization in the event, which took place on July 14 in Garrett County. The money will be used to the benefit of local persons with MS and their families. Pictured are the sponsors of the event. In the back are Dick and Becky Williams, owners of the Long Branch Saloon in Mtn. Lake Park. On the motorcycle are Michelle Shahan (left), bar manager at Long Branch, and Cathy Lohr of Lohr Distributors.

State-Reconstitution

Edison Schools Enter Year Two. During the 2000-2001 school year, three Baltimore City schools that had failed to show sufficient progress under local reconstitution were reconstituted by the State. Serving 1650 students in Pre-K through Grade 5, Montebello, Furman L. Templeton, and Gilmor were placed under the management of Edison Schools inc., a New York--based education management organization. First year test results on the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills across the three schools found that gains were made in 11 of 15 grade level indicators on math and 12 of 15 indicators on reading. This year, when schools open on August 27, the three Edison schools will include 6th graders. The expansion to 6th grade was prompted by requests from more than 700 parents of students attending the schools. Students have a longer school day, use Success for All and Wilson Reading, have extended reading and math instructional blocks, and take classes in Spanish art, music and physical education.

Victory Schools Begin Year One. This past year the Maryland State Board of Education identified a fourth school for state reconstitution and granted the request of the Baltimore City Public School System (BCPSS) to contract with an education management company to operate the school. Westport K-8 will re-open this fall under the management of Victory Schools, inc., a New York--based company that specializes in the use of Direct Instruction, a scripted reading and math program. The contract will be overseen by BCPSS with regular reporting of progress to the State Board.

Better Trained Principals, Teachers

Since its inception in the summer of 2000, the Division of Professional and Strategic Development has created the Maryland Educational Leadership initiative designed to deliver quality professional development to school principals to assist them in their role as instructional leader. The signature program of that initiative, the Summer Principals Academy, recently concluded its first residential session for 148 principals to be followed by other related sessions throughout the year. Other components of the Leadership initiative which have been implemented this past year include the High School Principals' Forum and targeted workshops for middle and elementary school principals. The division looks forward to designing and implementing 20/20

Certification Process to be Simplified Through Use of Technology

The Certification Branch of MSDE is in the first phase of a two-stage project designed to streamline the certification process. On August 15, 2001, MSDE will launch a redesigned website which will contain general information, application procedures, details about renewal/reinstatements and test requirements. In phase two of the project, applicants will be able to apply on-line, pay via credit card, and update personal information.

MSDE Begins to Build Virtual Learning Community

The Web-based Learning Project has been moving forward in laying the foundation for the Maryland virtual learning community. MSDE is reviewing on-line student courses, developing the RFP's needed, collaborating with the Maryland Distance Learning Association, working with others to develop and offer on-line professional development courses, and serving as a resource to interested educators in Maryland. Teachers from nine school districts are working with staff from the Maryland State Department of Education to review seven on-line courses designed for high school students. A website is under development which includes background information, standards for reviewing courses, the course reviews, and planning, implementation, and evaluation considerations.

Garrett AAUW Branch Honors Local Students

Three Garrett County students, Jacquelyn Rodeheaver of McHenry, Tracy Bowman of Accident, and Haley Gillespie of Oakland, were honored as Women of Tomorrow at the Garrett branch of the American Association of University Women picnic held at the home of Marilyn Moors recently. The students were selected by their teachers and by AAUW members for their outstanding contributions to their community, academic achievement, and participation in school and community activities.

Rodeheaver, a student at Northern Middle School, was recognized for her services to the community, high academic standing, and creative activities. She participated in the Relay for Life, the Dance for Hope, and the Kaleidoscope Show Choir, and is a member of the Junior Dance Team at Brenda's Body Shop. She plans to serve on the yearbook staff next year.

Bowman, a student at Northern High School, was recognized for her outstanding academic record, exemplary character traits, and supportive actions toward peers. She is an officer of the yearbook staff, is a member of the honors chorus and 4-H, and is active on her family's farm. She plans to major in agriculture in college and tentatively plans to study veterinary science.

Gillespie, a senior at Southern High School, is ranked in the top 5 percent of her class. She is a member of the National Honor Society and was a finalist in the Distinguished Scholar Program. She was assistant editor of the yearbook, active in school athletics, and a volunteer for various organizations. She has won many ribbons and trophies for her horseback riding skills.

Each of the Women of Tomorrow honorees received a certificate from Garrett Community College president Dr. Steve Herman and a gift from the college bookstore. Also nominated for the award were Chelsea Stuck and Lyndsie Rush from Southern High and Sara Cavalier from Southern Middle School.

NAMED WOMEN OF TOMORROW — The Garrett County branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) has selected these three young women as Women of Tomorrow. Northern High School's Tracy Bowman, left, Southern High's Haley Gillespie, and Northern Middle's Jacquelyn Rodeheaver were honored at an AAUW picnic recently for their community service, academic achievement, and participation in community and school activities. Each honoree was presented with a certificate by Garrett Community College president Dr. Steve Herman and a gift from the college bookstore.

New Student Orientation Set At GCC

Orientation for new students at Garrett Community College this fall semester is set for Tuesday, Sept. 4, beginning at 9 a.m. in the auditorium. A variety of activities are being planned to help new students get acquainted with one another and feel comfortable in the campus environment.

A brief welcome by GCC president Dr. Steve Herman and Dean of Academic and Student Affairs Dr. Lillian Mitchell will be followed by skits presented by GCC theatre students under the direction of Ben Sincell that will depict various aspects of life at GCC.

Information will be presented on financial aid, college work programs, student government association, clubs, and activities. New students will have a tour of the campus, a demonstration of library on-line services, and information resources, and a scheduled session with their academic advisors. They will also have the opportunity to get their student identification cards made and to socialize with faculty and peers. At noon, a picnic cookout will be held on the college green. Special attractions during the day will be "balloons with enchantment" by Steve Brown.

Volleyball and frisbee activities will be available during the afternoon hours, according to Margaret Mahood, coordinator of student services. Mahood encouraged all new students to attend orientation so that they will become familiar with campus locations and college procedures. For further information, persons may call the Student Assistance Center at 301-387-3044.

GCEA Offers Tips To Begin New School Year

The beginning of a new school year is the start of a journey for educators, students, and parents, according to the Garrett County Education Association. In order to make this a successful year, GCEA encourages an active partnership between parents, educators, and students.

"Parents should make time to get to know their child's teacher," said Irene Sigel, GCEA president. "Teachers appreciate knowing parents are open to hearing feedback on how the student is progressing."

Public schools in Garrett County will sponsor open houses and back-to-school nights within the first few weeks of the school year to give parents an opportunity to meet teachers and administrators, and hear specifics on the curriculum and student expectations. GCEA says parents should also make it a point to meet other school personnel, such as instructional assistants, nursing staff, cafeteria staff, school bus drivers, and school secretaries. "It is important to build relationships within the total school system," Sigel remarked.

"To learn, children must believe they can learn. Encouraging feedback from parents will go a long way in ensuring student achievement. Students should be praised for putting forth their best efforts," Siegel said.

She added, "To make this school year successful, emphasize reading, homework, and regular teacher conferences."

For more information on Parent Tips for the School Year, persons may visit the Maryland State Teacher Association's web site at www.msta.nea.org.

Local Attorneys Donate Services

In the past 12 months, two Garrett County lawyers have provided free or reduced fee legal services to Garrett County residents through Maryland Volunteer Lawyers Service. They are Craig Ingram and Linda Sherbin.

MVLS is a nonprofit organization that provides free and low-cost legal assistance to low-income people throughout Maryland. MVLS handles cases involving income tax disputes, landlord/tenant disputes, consumer rights, denial of public benefits, wills, deed changes, and name changes. To apply for representation in these cases, persons may call MVLS at 410-547-6537 or 800-510-0050, Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to noon.

Since its creation in 1981, 2,500 private attorneys have taken more than 15,000 pro bono cases, donating legal services valued at more than $15 million.

SHS Open House Set For Tonight

Southern High School has slated an open house for tonight, Thursday, Aug. 23, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. to provide incoming ninth graders and all other new students entering the school with an orientation to the school building. Parents are encouraged to attend with their children.

SHS principal Lynn Bell will greet participants in the school cafeteria, where the open house will get under way with a program to introduce students and parents to the school. Maps of the Southern campus will be distributed, and students will have the opportunity to locate their classrooms as well as the adminstrative office, guidance office, and media center. Lockers will be assigned so students can familiarize themselves with their locker location and combination.

A number of SHS teachers and staff members will be working in their classrooms and offices this evening, and will be available to meet students and parents attending the open house. Refreshments will be provided by the Garrett County Board of Education Food Service.

There will be representatives from the Women's Business Institute, SBDC, F&M Bank, Rodeheaver & Associates, Garrett Chamber of Commerce, and the MicroWorks program, and a new business owner will be on hand to share his/her perspective. This round-table will serve as a springboard for new fall classes.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I seriously doubt that much has happened last week in Bittinger, as most people I know were pretty busy with the biggest county event of the year, the Garrett County Fair. Of course, the Bittinger picnic that was held on Saturday was also a crowd pleaser, where many old and young friends gathered to see their relatives and friends.

The fair is the very best showcase for showing the way of life in our rural county. The amount of time, work, and effort that the fair takes is enough to run most businesses for several years. Bittinger lends its share of work and talent to make it happen. Besides the many 4-H kids who fill up the livestock barns and with their many exhibits in the exhibit buildings, the makings of the fair take place. Of course, there are many other youth in the county who also show their finest exhibits. Even the board of directors list is filled with 245 numbers. They spend many months planning, doing administration work, and taking care of the grounds, buildings, gate and ticket sales, publicity, entertainment, and special events.

It did not feel quite right at the fair without the presence of Dale Glotfelty, who served several years as board president. Even though he is still stuck in Morgantown in the hospital, he was there for the 4-H livestock auction via a cell phone link to bid on his grand nephews' champion and reserve champion poultry. He and the boys bought both sets of two birds for $200 each. Plus, Dale and the boys donated the chickens back to Elliott and Darryl Glotfelty. Lucky for them to get them back because 4-H'ers get very close to even their chickens.

I wish I could buy my little Caitlin's market hog for her because she is too tenderhearted and is now brokenhearted. It was so hard for her to stand to sell her darling pet for meat, even for a big check.

I have a plan for next year for her. I hope to buy her a female baby pig from our local feeder pig salesman, Lynn Brenneman. Among the eight hogs competing for grand champion and reserve champion were six litter mates from his DuRock sows. That is a pretty good record out of over a hundred market hogs.

Then Caitlin can sell her baby piglets to other 4-H'ers and keep the sow to grow old and fat in our barn with love from her. I told the girls that their hogs lived the best possible lives with their care and love, which is one good reason to buy 4-H project livestock to stock your freezer with. I am sure that meat raised on love is better than meat from a stockyard or factory farmer.

I happened to see a doodle by Caitlin when she was on the phone of a picture of a pig with heart shapes above it. I bet if you did a taste test between a 4-H project meat and the average supermarket fare, the 4-H meat would win hands down. I bet you could taste the love.

Emma Bass got the biggest pay day for her hog. Her pig was reserve grand champion and brought over $3 a pound. That is the magic line that turns from profitable to jackpot.

Several other hard workers at the fair were the many superintendents who checked in thousands of entries and made sure the ribbons were attached to the right entries. Bittinger also had its share of these. Many Glotfeltys are still very active in the fair.

When I was young and until his death, my father, Robert O., served as superintendent of the dairy barn, and we always took our champion cows to show at the fair. I remember that Claude Wagner Jr. and Bob were always in hot competition for the top dairy cow.

Many others helped serve food at numerous booths, such as the Northern Athletic Booster Food Booth and the Northern Band Booster Booth, which kept many of our locals busy. Think about the amount of fast food served at the fair by the many non-profit groups which depend on the income from their booth for a large part of their budget. So don't feel too bad that you busted your diets on funnel cakes, Rotary french fries, pizzas, burgers, hot dogs, ice cream, etc., as you also funded a lot of good works being done around Garrett County.

I couldn't list all of the many super workers at the fair, but if you were there, you know who they were and can appreciate their fine work.

Another grim reminder that we are not as young as we used to be is that Bill Buckel underwent back surgery last week. He is now home and already notices a very positive improvement. Get well soon, Bill.

Then I got a real jolt when Sally noted that Cindy and Sam Stanton are celebrating their 25th (silver) wedding anniversary for several days this week, where else but in Atlantic City. I always thought that when you reached that anniversary you were getting old, but not true when she is still able to handle her four-wheeler and give some healthy shouts.

Other news from the Beachy clan is that Ferne Beachy enjoyed a visit from Emma Bowser of Waynesburg, Pa. Torrey Poholsky has switched gears from baseball to soccer as a member of the Northern High boys' soccer team, along with Brent Housley, who played a scrimmage game in Riversville, W.Va.

Sad to say, Claire had to end her soccer career because of the demands of the Northern Marching Band. It is more than enough to manage for a 15-year-old. In fact, just last Friday she turned 15. She had a small party with just her cousins and the Avis girls — just pizza, cake, and ice cream. That seemed to be plenty, especially after the busy week at the fair.

Anne Robinson no weak link herself

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Anne Robinson

Q: What can you tell me about Anne Robinson, host of Weakest Link? –Joan M. Janeshefskie, Coal Township, Pa. (and many other readers).

A: A distinguished journalist in her native England, the 56-year-old Robinson is proud of her humble roots in Liverpool, where she says she received most of her "formative education" from working in her mother's market stall.

A former newspaper executive, Robinson has written columns for the Daily Mirror, Today, The Sun, The Times of London and the Express. It was her work as host of the BBC consumer affairs TV show Watchdog that made her a national icon, as she took delight in skewering organizations and executives who shortchanged their customers. Her popularity, plus her well-known confrontational style, made her a perfect host for Weakest Link. She also hosts the original version of the show in England, where she is far rougher on the contestants.

In private life, Robinson is married to fellow journalist John Penrose, who also acts as her personal manager. Emma, her 30-year-old daughter from a previous marriage, lives and works in New York and London. Robinson herself shuttles among London, Los Angeles and her home in the Cotswolds of England, where she enjoys time with her two English setters, Sebastian and Maudie.

Q: Who sang "Movin' On Up," the theme song to The Jeffersons? –Maxine Gorman, Columbus, Ohio.

A: Ja'net DuBois, best known for playing Willona Woods on Good Times, sang that famous theme song, which she co-wrote with Jeff Barry.

Q: Please tell me the full name of the man who hosts Holiywood Squares. I am 87 and hard of hearing, so I never have been able to make out Tom's last name. –I.M.S., Bryan, Ohio.

A: The host's name is Tom Bergeron, pronounced BER-zher-ahn.

Q: I recognized an actor named Richard Burgi in a recent episode of The District, but I cannot recall what show he used to be in. Can you help me? –Mrs. Robert J. Ragan, Conowingo, Md.

A: Burgi, who has the recurring role of Capt. Hunter on The District, has been a regular cast member in a number of shows over the years, but most viewers may remember him from the title role of The Sentinel (United Paramount Network, 1996-99).

Previously, he played Detective Mack Wolfe in One West Waikiki, Phillip Collier on Days of Our Lives, Glenn Harrington on As the World Turns and Chad Rollo on Another World. He also had a recurring role on the syndicated action series Viper.

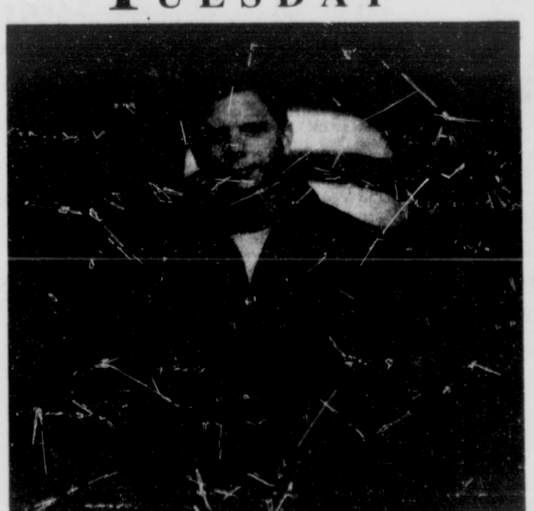
In Focus

Spenser (Joe Mantegna), the tough private eye who's also great in the kitchen, returns in Walking Shadow, premiering Sunday, Aug. 26, on A&E Network.

As a favor for his girlfriend, Dr. Susan Silverman (Marcia Gay Harden), Spenser investigates the stalking of a theater company director. Before he can figure out anything, an actor is killed.

Spenser and partner Hawk (Ernie Hudson) dig in on the case. But the local police chief (Eric Roberts) bans them.

Tuesday



Gary Fredo guides participants through a large-scale murder mystery in Murder in Small Town X, airing Tuesdays on Fox.

Flockhart Among Who's Who Again

Christie Flockhart has been recently notified that she is a multiple-year Who's Who Among American High School Students, 2000-2001, inductee. Fewer than 1% of all high school students are honored in consecutive editions of Who's Who.

Flockhart is a senior at Northern High School, where she plays varsity volleyball, varsity basketball, and tennis. She is a member of the Girls' Varsity Club. This summer, she participated in the World Scholar-Athlete Games held at the University of Rhode Island. Flockhart is a blind-skier guide and assists with the Special Olympics ski program.

She plans to attend Davis & Elkins College, where she will major in forensic psychology. She will also play volleyball for the D&E Senators.

The same went for her littlest cousin, Emma Bass, who turned 10 on Sunday, Aug. 19. Now that the two August birthdays are over and the fair is finished means to me that summer is almost over.

The hot summer already has turned quite cool in Bittinger. Our maple tree has already dropped some colored leaves. I know it is too late to get many more flowers for my dolls for the long winter months when color is not common. Today I was busy collecting some red clover blossoms and Queen Anne's lace, rescued my scarlet gladiolus that fell over in my flower bed, and also looked for some big floppy green leaves. Don't forget to save any dead and half-dead flowers for my doll project. I scored some excellent hollyhock from Paula Seaman of McHenry.

We hope that "Pappy" Dale can come home sometime this week to enjoy the last part of summer. I just learned today about the tragic accident of Chad Montgomery of McHenry. His family members were longtime members of my church in Bittinger, but have recently joined at Cherry Glade Mennonite. Of course, you always ask why something like this happens to such nice kids. Chad has improved from critical to stable, but his passenger did not survive the wreck on I-68 near Rocky Gap. Our prayers are with Chad for a fast recovery.

I ask the same thing many times about why I had to experience the aneurysm that disabled me. Today I thought I had a glimmer of an answer — If God must pass out hard times, maybe he gives it to the people who have the most resources to deal with them. Both Chad and I have a supportive family, friends, and community. Although things will never be the same for both Chad and me, we can survive. I know I felt a terrible wrench when I heard about it from Pastor Pat. My heart goes out to Jeff, Chris, and Chad, as everyone in Bittinger feels. I just thought about the scene at the Housley Christmas party several years ago when Michele Geis, Lea Stanton, Allison, Leslie, Candy Buckel, and also Chad were home after being away at college and were reminiscing. They are a close-knit group of nice kids.

Of course, as I mentioned before, the Bittinger picnic was held as always on the third Saturday in August, in spite of it being very inconvenient for the people busy with the fair. In any case, according to Sally, it was a beautiful day, with lots of people and great food. I was shocked that I did not win the handmade muzzleloader gun made by Bob Brenneman. I was certain I would win it, but no, someone from McHenry was the winner.

It was hard to get this column done today since I was also busy killing flies. You've often heard of the phase "one day at a time." Well, today it was "one fly at a time." I believe I killed at least two dozen, including a few with one blow as in the fairy tale. It seems another appears as one gets killed.

Rodney and Marci Glotfelty are enjoying a quick visit from Marci's sister, Lynn Smith, of Baltimore. Most of the family will be going to Pittsburgh tomorrow to see the Pirates game. The Woodmen of the World is sponsoring the trip. My brother Barry is planning on coming up from Frederick to go along with the Bass family, Glotfelty family, and my mother, Ruth DiPaolo.

Ida Reckner accompanied Lillian Reckner of McHenry to their annual Oakland High School class reunion held recently in Oakland. Ida graduated from there in 1923, and Lillian was a teacher there in the early years of her teaching career.

Visitors of Ida Reckner several days last week were Olis Fader and daughter Carol of Sarasota, Fla., and Ruth Stinchcomb of Canton, Ohio. Ruth and Olis are daughters of Charles and Mary Wiley, and are former residents of Bittinger. Other recent callers of Ida were Norma Bernard, Canton, Ohio, Tom Glotfelty, and Olive Bender. Sunday carry-in lunch guests were Karl and Cathy DeBoeser, Kara and Marc, Allentown, Pa.; Lillian and Charee Reckner, and Michaele Puliti, McHenry; William and Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; and Jim and Donna Glotfelty.

Adam and Amanda Platter spent several days with their grandparents, Jim and Donna Glotfelty, and attended the Garrett County Fair. Weekend guests were Dwaine and Lisa Platter, and Adam and Amanda returned with them to their home near Smithsburg.

DCL LIONS DRAWING WINNER — The Big Boy Toy drawing took place at the Garrett County Fair last week, as the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club sold tickets to raise funds for its Blind Skiers and Campers Program. The drawing winner was Southern High School teacher Harry Biggs, who was given the choice of a Big Boy Toy — a Polaris four-wheeler, personal watercraft, or snowmobile — or $4,000 cash. Biggs is shown above at right accepting the congratulations of DCL Lions vice president Richard Buckingham. DCL Lions club president Bill Thoman noted the club's gratitude for the support of Bill and Ken Sisler of Bill's Marine Service, which provided a location for the Lions to sell the drawing tickets at the fair.

NEVER SHARE YOUR MEDICINE

Do not share you medicine with someone else, and do not take medicine prescribed for another person. Your prescription fits you as precisely as good eyeglasses or bridgework. It was written for you on the basis of age, weight, sex, and physical condition.

Never allow someone else to take your medicine, even if his symptoms seem to be the same as yours. "Prescribing" for another person can have damaging results. For the same reasons, do not let anyone else "prescribe" for you.

The Strength that Binds

What a beautiful family! Alive with love and dreaming of the future, they are, as God planned, the foundation of our society, establishing order and the basis for the procreation of humankind. Yet, how does the family maintain itself in a modern society that seems to be so conducive to the interruption and destruction of marriage?

It was the great artist Vincent Van Gogh who said... "Two persons must believe in each other, and feel that it can be done and must be done; in that way they are enormously strong. They must keep up each other's courage."

Yet, the most remarkable source of strength and courage is an unfaltering faith in the Creator. To be close to one another, we must be close to God. Won't you worship as a family this week at your local church or synagogue?

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

STILL TIME!

August 26, 2001

Background Scripture:
2 Kings 17:1-23.
Devotional Read:
Exodus 20:1-16

Many years ago, while I was teaching a confirmation class, a teenager told me he was confused about sin and forgiveness. There were times when he sought God's forgiveness, he told me, but he didn't feel forgiven because he still was paying the consequences of his sin.

Lots of people, I believe, share this young man's consternation. Confessing and repenting our sins does give God the opportunity to give us the most important gift we can seek of him: forgiveness, the restoration of our relationship with our Creator. But that doesn't mean that because we are forgiven the situation is magically repaired. Sin causes other consequences: the damage to ourselves and others. God does not promise to cancel the consequences.

If we have sinned against another person, God will forgive us if we repent, but we may end up with a ruptured relationship that may never be healed. If we drive too fast and have an accident that cripples another person for life, God's forgiveness does not automatically set aside the tragic result of our carelessness. Sin costs dearly!

Natural Consequences

That is what the people of Israel found—too late and the hardest of ways. Their humiliation and virtual extinction at the hands of the Assyrians were the natural consequences of the willful, arrogant lives they had been living. The writer of 2 Kings tells us of Hoshea, the King of Israel, that "he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, yet not as the kings of Israel who were before him" (17:2). It is a curious passage, because the writer says that he was sinful, but not as sinful as most of the kings who had preceded him. I don't know if Hoshea would have taken comfort in knowing that he was not the most evil king of Israel, but it was a dubious distinction.

The bottom line is that Hoshea, while not the most evil king, was evil enough to bring terrible consequences upon the northern kingdom. Sargon II, the King of Assyria says that he carried away into captivity 27,290 inhabitants of Israel who were scattered in far away places. History lost track of these people and the ten tribes are often referred to as "the ten lost tribes of Israel." The name of the land changed from 'Israel' to 'Samaria' and Israel disappeared from world history from that moment on, 722 B.C.

We can feel sorry for them and regret the final outcome, but we can see that they brought these terrible consequences on themselves by arrogantly living and worshipping in the customs of the pagans whom God had subdued. Again and again, God had sent them prophets and the plainest possible warnings: "Turn from your evil ways and keep my commandments and my statutes..." (17:13,).

Time To Repent

God was giving them an opportunity, not only for forgiveness, but to escape the terrible consequences that lay in wait for them. "But they would not listen, but were stubborn, as their fathers had been...They went after false idols, and became false, and they followed the nations that were round about them" (17:14, 15). Worst of all, they indulged in the sacrifice of their own children—with the best of intentions, of course.

It is hard to believe that a people could be so headstrong and rebellious. Of course, they didn't seem themselves that way, just as today people would be shocked to see themselves categorized that way. "Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them out of his sight; none was left but the tribe of Judah only" (17:18).

So, at least there was Judah. The southern kingdom of David could profit by the intransigence of Israel. They could—but they didn't: "Judah also did not keep the commandments of the Lord their God, but walked in the customs which Israel had introduced." It would take another 136 years for Judah to go the same way as Israel, but in 586 B.C. Judah also was humiliated and carried into captivity.

Why didn't these people ever learn? Why don't we—while there is still time?

• If you ever had to read the "Iliad" and the "Odyssey" in school, you are well aware of how very, very long they are. Just be glad you're not from India, though; the "Mahabhrata," an Indian epic poem, is eight times longer than both of Homer's works put together.

Our 19th-century ancestors played games to pass the time. There was no television or radio, few organized sporting events, and even books were scarce outside of cities. Many types of games were popular: card games, backgammon, checkers, whist and many gambling games.

A well-furnished city home had a game table. The table was usually in the style that was popular for the best living-room furniture. The top of the table could swivel or slide to reveal a game-board surface. Sometimes the top was covered in felt or needlepoint to make a quiet surface for chips or playing pieces. The top was often inlaid or painted with a favorite game board. Most game tables also had a drawer for storage of cards, chips or game pieces.

Country furniture makers also had customers who wanted game tables that would blend in with their other furniture. So simple tables with straight, undecorated legs were made. The top was designed as a suitable game surface. The country tables are harder to find than the sophisticated city designs. Perhaps the farmers worked harder and had less time for leisure.

Q. I found an old, light-green bottle in upstate New York several years ago. It has a long neck and is 9 inches tall. It's embossed on the side: "Florida Water, Murray & Lanman, Druggists, New York." I live in Florida now and would like to learn the history of the bottle.

A. In the late 1890s, druggists in New York City and San Francisco bottled and sold mineral water they called "Florida Water." At the time, mineral water was thought to have medicinal benefits. Your bottle is worth $15 to $25.

Removing a Tick

Q: I recently noticed a tick beneath my dog's fur. How can I remove it?

A. Removing a tick from a squirming dog's skin can be difficult, but it must be done. Ticks often carry diseases that can endanger the health of both dogs and humans, including Lyme disease, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, a bacterial infection called ehrlichiosis, and a blood disorder called babesiosis.

So, grab your dog and, if needed, have a friend or family member hold him or her in place until the ordeal is over. Remember to give plenty of treats and affection after the procedure.

• Swab the tick and the surrounding skin with rubbing alcohol. Wait about 10 minutes; the alcohol should kill the tick.

• Use tweezers to grab the tick near the surface of the skin. Rotate the tweezers slowly to loosen the tick's grip. Don't pull straight back, as the tick has burrowed beneath the skin's surface, and a quick tug may separate the head from its body. The part beneath the skin is extremely difficult to pull out and could cause an infection.

• When the head and body come loose, quickly place the tick on a tissue and transfer it to a saucer filled with rubbing alcohol to make sure it is dead. Don't squeeze the tick with your bare hands, as its fluids may contain diseases.

• Swab the area around the bite with a disinfectant.

• Wash your hands thoroughly.

Watch your pet closely for a few days afterward. If he or she becomes lame with swollen joints, runs a fever or seems depressed with little or no appetite, take him or her to the veterinarian immediately. Prompt treatment will help your dog recover quickly and minimize any long-term effects from tick-borne illness.

Randolph Lake Activities Set For Labor Day

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers announces a variety of activities planned for the Labor Day weekend at Jennings Randolph Lake.

Nature movies will be shown Saturday, Sept. 1, and Sunday, Sept. 2, at the amphitheater located in the Robert W. Craig Campground, beginning at 8:30 p.m. The general public is welcome.

For the campers' daytime enjoyment, the campground also features a playground for the children, basketball court, horseshoe pits, a one-mile long tree identification trail, and the two-mile long Sunset Trail, which offers a panoramic view of the back of the dam. It is also a place to spot deer, turkey, and an occasional black bear in a natural setting, according to a corps spokesperson.

In addition to the evening programs in the campground, tours of the intake control tower will be conducted on Sunday, Sept. 2, from 2 to 4 p.m. Those people who are interested in how the project operates to improve water quality along the North Branch Potomac River, supplies water downstream, and prevents downstream flooding, are invited to meet the rangers at the West Virginia Overlook.

There will also be a whitewater release on Saturday, Sept. 1, Sunday, Sept. 2, and again on Monday, Sept. 3. The release will be 1,000 cfs and will provide Class I, II and III rapids in close succession, comprised of waves and rollers up to three feet high. Trip length is seven miles, and parking and restrooms are available at the launching site in Barnum, W.Va. For whitewater information and cabin rental, persons may contact Rex Riffle, Mineral County Parks & Recreation at 304-788-5732.

For additional information concerning the lake or camping, persons may call 304-355-2346 or 301-359-3861, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

HELPING TO BUILD HOUSES for Garrett County Habitat for Humanity for the 11th straight year is this group of youth and adults from Rockville. The visitors not only donate a week of their time, sweat, and energy each summer, but also conduct various fund-raising events throughout the year and then donate the proceeds to the local housing ministry. See story for details.

Rockville Youth Back Again To Help Build Habitat Houses

by Marilyn Regentin

Lee Fisher watched as 40 bodies, half dazed from sleep, began moving about inside the Amish community center. People reached for sweatshirts in the cool of the morning, then gathered in groups to begin breakfast chores and make lunches for the day ahead. This was the middle of the week of the 11th summer that members of the Rockville United Church (a union of Presbyterian and Church of Christ congregations) and friends have been coming to Garrett County to help build houses for Habitat for Humanity, and this year, like the others before it, work seemed to be going like "clockwork."

"The biggest problem we ever had," Lee said later that morning as she welcomed me to a work site in Oakland, "occurred one summer when building materials didn't arrive on time, and we didn't have enough to do." She and Diane Silhanek are adamant when they talk about youth. "We have a mentoring program, a ratio of 1-to-4, with only 10 youth in our group of 40, a waiting list, and a mandatory age requirement of 13," Lee said.

Diane, who led the group for seven years, has now turned the reigns back over to Lee and her husband Ken, the original organizers, and part of a three-generation family group this year. "Youth need a one-on-one set up with adults, and they need to learn high-level skills," she said. "We are all achieving a high level of competency with skills."

This equal sharing of the work was evident as I looked around the building site to see adults from Voice of America and Department of Energy working side by side with 15-year-olds. Inside, Ken and Lee Fisher's grandson, Danny Bennett, installed wood trim and hung doors, while three mothers across the hall sanded drywall and painted.

"Our work seems to represent one week of effort," said Diane, "but we actually work all year sponsoring fund-raisers, dinners, yard sales, and promotional activities. One 90-year-old church member provides crochet items to sell. The highlight of all our efforts is a dinner held in April each year, which is attended by members of Garrett County Habitat. Before leaving in the summer, our group is commissioned at church to carry out this work in a spirit of reverence and diligence, and, of course, we always have fun."

Each person who comes to Garrett County for a summer work camp is assessed a fee for the privilege. That money, used by Habitat to purchase building materials, is essential for the ongoing work. This summer the Rockville group raised enough money to cover the cost of each participant and enough extra to equal one-fourth the cost of a single house. Two houses are being constructed.

"We keep coming to Garrett County," Diane said, "because the people here are so incredibly nice, hosting us night after night in their churches and parks. And, of course, we often stay at the Amish community center, where we are treated to a dinner each year. We really look forward to showing newcomers the houses we've built in previous years."

"The fun is why I come," said Danny, "and because I'm doing something permanent, 'What you do in life echoes through eternity,'" quoting from the movie Gladiator.

Karen Sisler may be working for eternity, but she is working for the "here and now," putting in the required "sweat hours" to become owner of this new house. Karen likes to quote her young son, who said one day, "We are not getting a house, we are getting a home."

As others hurry tasks to break for lunch, Karen puts down her paint brush to collect signatures that will be decoupaged with a picture and hung with four other plaques of other work camp groups that helped build her family home this summer. "I wanted a reminder of all the love that went into our home," she said.

Unlike those who come here for rest and relaxation, members of the Rockville group never spend a day of sun on the lake, sleep on a good mattress, or curl up by a warm fire when it rains and turns cool. They come to work among us. They are helping to build our community.

FOR YOUR SAFETY—Just a reminder.

Lightning is among the deadliest weather hazards in the nation.

About 30 million bolts of lightning touch down in the Unites States each year, with 90-100 people killed each year nationwide. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration publishes a list of safe practices to reduce the risk of harm from lightning.

Among the suggestions are:

- Large enclosed structures (substantially constructed buildings) tend to be much safer than smaller or open structures.
- In general, fully enclosed metal vehicles such as cars, trucks, buses, vans, fully enclosed farm vehicles, etc. with the windows rolled up provide good shelter from lightning. Avoid contact with metal or conducting surfaces outside or inside the vehicle.
- AVOID being in or near high places and open fields, isolated trees, unprotected gazebos, rain or picnic shelters, baseball dugouts, communications towers, flagpoles, light poles, bleachers (metal or wood), metal fences, convertibles, golf carts, water (ocean, lakes, swimming pools, rivers, etc.).
- When inside a building AVOID use of the telephone, taking a shower, washing your hands, doing dishes, or any contact with conductive surfaces with exposure to the outside such as metal door or window frames, electrical wiring, telephone wiring, cable TV wiring, plumbing, etc.

Amendment Rejected

The U.S. House Agriculture Committee has rejected an amendment to the Farm Bill that would require mandatory country-of-origin labeling for meat, fruits, vegetables, and farm-raised fish, identifying the country in which the product was born, raised and processed.

GCHA HOSTS STATE EVENT - The Garrett County Holstein Association recently hosted the Maryland State Holstein Association's annual picnic at Grantsville Park. Approximately 215 persons from all parts of the state were in attendance. Families were invited to arrive early for milk (donated by local dairies) and donuts. The noon meal was catered, with desserts provided by Garrett County farm families. Among the special guests was Johnny Morris, pictured above center, who is retired from the Frederick County Extension Service of the University of Maryland. He is shown receiving a plaque from Art Rhoderick, president of the state association. At left is Ezra Yoder, Garrett County association president. The plaque was presented to Morris for his many years of working with the youth of the association, judging, and assisting with fitting and showing divisions. Pictured at right are the winners of the pedal-tractor pull, Carl Bender in the adult division and Seth Mast in the junior division. Below is Josh Schrock, Oakland, who was the winner of a calf that was purchased from the Kenneth Yoder farm in Grantsville and raffled by the association. Various activities were held throughout the day, with many door prizes, donated by local businesses. The winner of the Bonnie Mohr print was Donna Meyers, New Windsor. Windy Ridge, a local band, along with local musicians Alan and Alta Birkby, provided musical entertainment.

KRISTIN LANDER

Two Garrett County residents, Marianne A. Peracchio of Oakland and Kristin Lander of Accident, have been awarded $1,000 college scholarships by the Garrett Organization for the Handicapped (GOH) for the coming academic year.

Peracchio's award is a renewal of the GOH scholarship she received last year. A sophomore majoring in English and political science at Grove City College (Pa.), Peracchio was named to the dean's list last year after she earned a 3.84 grade point average. The 2000 Southern High School graduate is the daughter of Dorian and Carol Peracchio.

Lander, who graduated from Northern High School last spring, will enter Elizabethtown College (Pa.) this fall to study occupational therapy. She is the daughter of George and Joyce Lander.

GOH also offers the Dorothy R. Leuba Scholarship to Garrett County residents with disabilities and those pursuing training in the provision of services to persons with disabilities. Inquiries may be addressed to the GOH Scholarship Committee, P.O. Box 223, Oakland, MD 21550.

Change Bear Policy?

ask the question of whether the proposed solution to people's fear of bears, hunting, is, in fact, more dangerous to humans than leaving the bears alone. Unless otherwise noted, all data in this essay are public information from Maryland's Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Historically, Maryland had a large black bear population into the 19th century. At that time there were so many bears the state encouraged hunting to reduce the population. Over time the deterioration of the bear's habitat and the unlimited hunting caused the bear population to dwindle. Bear hunting was eventually banned in 1953, and by 1956 there were only 12 bears in Maryland.

Over the last 25 years the quality of the forests and wetlands in western Maryland and surrounding states has steadily improved. This has lead to a new growth in the bear population. Bear relocation and management programs in Pennsylvania and West Virginia led to a spill-over of black bears in Maryland, presumably adding to the growth of Maryland's bear population, primarily in Garrett and Allegany counties. In the early 1980s DNR estimated that 150 bears lived in Maryland. Until recently the DNR estimated that there were about 350 bears living in Maryland; however, research conducted last year using modern DNA identification methods has caused the agency to revise the number downward.

As the bear population has grown, people have had to decide how to manage human/bear contact. When bears and humans live close together the potential for conflict arises. In 1992, the Department of Natural Resources developed the Black Bear Management Plan. DNR carefully monitors the bear population and considers ways of protecting both humans and bears. DNR Wildlife staff work closely with local communities to educate them on bear behavior. They also teach ways of maintaining a bear's natural fear of humans.

The DNR receives and responds to bear-related complaints. From 1996 to 2000 the wildlife staff received 1,623 nuisance complaints about bears — about 400 per year. Each year the major complaint has been about bears getting into trash. Bear nuisance complaints are often related to the availability of natural food sources. Typically the complaints increase when there is a natural food shortage and decrease when natural food is plentiful.

Farmland crops also provide food sources for bears. Western Maryland farmers grow corn, oats, and fruit, and maintain beehives, all of which bears love to eat. As the bear population has grown, farmers have had to contend with crop damage. In 1996 DNR started the Black Bear Conserva-tion Program as a way of reimbursing farmers for agricultural and beehive damage caused by the bears. In 1996-1999, the bears caused an average of $26,131.25 worth of damage per year. Since the program began DNR has been able to reimburse 43.7% of the total damage eligible for reimbursement.

Many people think of bears as fierce wild animals. Anytime bears and humans live together, human safety becomes a concern. A bear's way of communicating (grunting, snorting, and standing on hind legs) is often misinterpreted as aggressive behavior. Since 1997, the complaints regarding human safety have decreased 8%, at the same time that press coverage drumming up support for a bear hunt has increased. While an encounter with a bear may be frightening, according to DNR statistics no one in Maryland has been injured or killed by a bear in the last century (1900-2001).

Today in Maryland bear management relies on two techniques — community education and aversive conditioning. DNR educates community members on proper food and trash storage, how to best handle encounters with bears, and conducts field investigations into bear problems an average of 58 times per year.

DNR uses aversive conditioning if a bear problem continues. Wildlife biologists trap and release the problem bear and, as they release it, shoot the bear with rubber bullets and buckshot and spray it with pepper spray. The goal is to retrain the bear to fear and avoid people. DNR also uses specially trained dogs to chase bears from certain farms and crops, minimizing agricultural damage. DNR reports using these techniques on two to five bears each year.

Some people are dissatisfied with the current bear management techniques. As mentioned earlier, the Maryland Sportsmen's Association has proposed a bear hunting season. A hunting season would undoubtedly decrease the bear population, but at what cost? In 1990-1999, there were 289 hunting injuries in Maryland, and 18 people died from hunting accidents. This is approximately two fatalities and 30 injuries each year. Hunting injuries and fatalities would likely increase if Maryland added a bear hunting season.

Most hunting injuries occur from gunshot wounds. The cost of treating a gunshot wound and the loss of income resulting from the wound are substantial. According to the Calverton-based Pacific Institute for Research and Analysis, a typical unintentional gunshot-related fatality of any type in Maryland costs $3,621,940, a figure obtained by compiling the "overall cost to society" (victim, family, and social systems) of medical and mental health care, insurance administration, future earnings lost, and "quality of life" issues. (Since 1989 the U.S. Office of Management and Budget has required all federal regulatory benefit-cost analyses to include quality of life costs if they place a dollar value on saving lives.)

This $3.6 million figure per unintentional gunshot-related fatality, which includes hunting fatalities stemming from gunshots, is significantly greater than any money a hunting application fee would generate or the damage caused by the black bear population. If we consider the cost of two fatalities, plus the cost of non-fatal accidents, hunting becomes a very expensive option. Even one additional fatality or non-fatal injury added each year to Maryland's hunting-related losses would far outweigh the costs of managing the damage caused by bears.

As people consider human safety around bears it is equally important to consider the public safety of the community around hunters. As a Garrett County resident, I have had encounters with both hunters and bears. I live in a development occupied by many children and adults who enjoy the forest hiking trails. We clearly post "Private Property—No Hunting Allowed" signs on our land, and yet every year deer hunters ignore the signs and hunt on our land. In fact, for the last several years, hunters have removed the signs we have posted, some as high as 10 feet off the ground. Bear hunters use large-bore high powered weapons that could easily penetrate the walls of the average wooden home. If bear hunters act with the same disregard for private property as deer hunters, innocent bystanders could be added to those injured in a hunting accident. While Maryland has an excellent Emergency Medical System, the area is so remote that it would be impossible to get the help a victim would need in the "golden hour" thought to provide a reasonable chance of survival from a gunshot wound. Given the fact that bears have not caused any human injuries or deaths in Maryland in the last 100 years, and that hunters kill or injure around 30 humans per year, it is clearly safer for people to be exposed to bears rather than to hunters.

The increasing bear population presents considerable challenge to DNR and communities surrounding bear habitat. While bears have not caused any physical harm to people, they have caused damage and inconvenience. A bear hunting season would decrease the bear population, but any potential benefit from bear hunting is far outweighed by the costs resulting from hunting injuries and fatalities. Aversive conditioning techniques have had some success in the bear management program. A closer look at non-violent management methods may uncover other techniques that pose a lesser threat to public safety and result in lower cost than would be the case of a bear hunting season.

This month comes with sad regret
It brings days we will never forget.
Though you left us without goodbye
Our memories of you will never die.

We miss you more than anyone knows.
As each day passes, our emptiness grows.
Tears we shed, we wipe away
But the ache in our hearts will never go away.

No one knows the grief we bear
When the family meets and you're not there.
You left us so suddenly, your thoughts unknown
But the memories you left us
We are proud to own.

The Cherry Glade Mennonite Church will sponsor a special Older Youth Bible School, not at the church, but at the Country Acre Strawberry Farm, between 6:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. It is for youth entering 7th through 12th grades. The theme is "Breakaway 2001." For more information persons may call 301-895-2001. I only received this item on Tuesday late, but the school runs through this Friday evening so maybe some can still catch a couple evenings. Each evening will feature group singing, ice-breaking games, and a speaker with group discussions. For more information contact Chris Graber at 301-245-4016.

The local Woodmen of the World members took a bus to see the Pirates play the Arizona Diamondbacks baseball team. About 40 fans from around Bittinger watched the Pirates score a 4-2 victory over Arizona, who is the league leader. It was a perfect, beautiful day for baseball — sunny, warm, but not too hot.

RuthElla Resh (Pooch) celebrated her 88th birthday last week with a quiet family celebration.

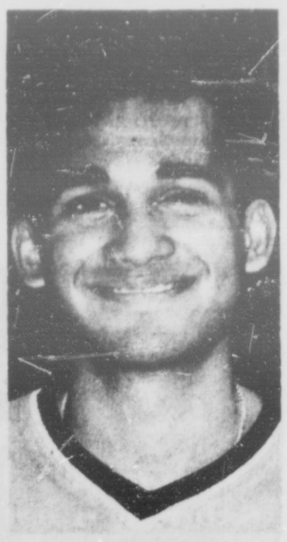
ANGELA SESSA



PRANOV PATEL

The 2001 Health Careers Opportunity Program (HCOP) was held May 22-June 29 at West Virginia University's Robert C. Byrd Health Sciences Center. Two local students participated in the program, Angela Sessa and Pranov Patel.

Sessa, the daughter of Mary Ellen and Joseph Sessa, Friendsville, is a predentistry student at West Virginia University.

Patel, son of Kalpana and Hemant Patel, Grantsville, is a pre-medicine student at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County.

HCOP is designed to assist 35 West Virginia and Maryland students who are applying to schools of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, and allied health programs. Students are given academic and social support to enhance their knowledge, skills, and abilities to enter and to graduate from health profession schools.

The program is funded in part by the West Virginia State Legislature, and federally by the United States Department of Health and Human Services' Health Resources and Services Administration, Bureau of Health Professions, and Division of Health Professions Diversity. HCOP is a collaborative effort between West Virginia University and the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center.

Local Lutheran Women Attend Synod Convention

The 14th Synodical Convention of the West Virginia-Western Maryland Synodical Women's Organization of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America was held August 3 and 4. It was held at John XXIII Pastoral Center, Charleston, W.Va., and was attended by Ferne Beachy and Linda Buckel of Emmanuel, Bittinger, and Barbara Flinn of St. John's, Red House.

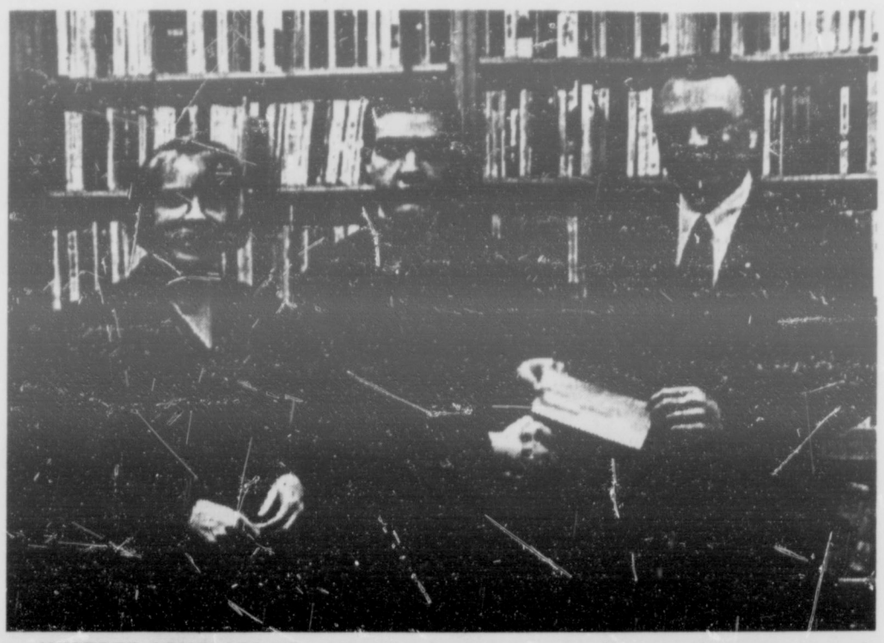
The theme was "Celebrate the Gifts," derived from I Corinthians 12:4, which is "There are different kinds of spiritual gifts, but the same Spirit gives them."

Carolyn Cook, Portland, Ore., brought greetings from the Churchwide Board of Directors, and Catherine Marquis, the director of Planned Giving for the Women of the ELCA, gave a presentation on planned giving. A discussion of funds being needed for the scholarship account led to additional contributions, and two $500 scholarships were awarded to two female seminarians. A donation of $600, plus gifts of towels, washcloths, books, games, and art supplies, was made to Sojourners, an area residential facility for families in need.

Pastor Wanda Childs, Beckley, W.Va., served as chaplain and was the presiding minister for the Saturday Communion Service, with assistance from Bishop Ralph Duncan.

Election of officers was held, with Linda Buckel of Bittinger being elected to serve as the new president of the synod's women's organization. (See separate story.) Marjorie Wolf of Wheeling will serve as vice president. New board members include Norma Boyer, Clarksburg, W.Va., and Evelyn Weirick, Ravenswood, W.Va. Peggy Rogers, Vienna, W.Va., and Rosemary Speaker, Wheeling, were elected delegates to the triennial convention next July in Philadelphia. Shirley Griffith, Fairmont, W.Va., was elected the differently abled delegate to the 2002 triennial gathering.

The next synod convention will be held August 2 and 3, 2002, at Huttonsville, W.Va.



AWARDED SCHOLARSHIP - "What the American Dream Means to Me" was the topic for an essay contest sponsored by the American Bankers' Association, and Mark Zimmerman, a 2001 graduate of Northern High School, was the winner. For his efforts he was awarded a scholarship to further his education. Zimmerman is pictured above with his mother, Patricia Zimmerman, and C. Joseph Cunningham III, president of Fidelity Bank.

The WVFA represents the state's forestry community with over 1,000 member foresters, loggers, and private forest landowners, plus producers of furniture, lumber, flooring, building supplies, fencing and paper. Pictured above at the 2001 Outstanding Logger Award presentation, from the left, are Freddy Whitt of Bryan Equipment Sales; Danny Moats, Dwight Bolyard, and Doug Bolyard of Triple D Logging; Kirby Stanforth of Bryan Equipment Sales; and Steven Bolyard of Triple D Logging. The gates will now open at 2 p.m., and all entries must be at the track and signed in by 4 p.m. to be eligible to take part in the event.

TERRA ALTA

Terra Alta Public Library held its "READ" Summer Reading Program party recently. Twenty students participated, seven of whom completed the program and earned a white T-shirt emblazoned with the letters "R E A D" in different colors. To complete the program a participant were required to read 20 books and fill out a brief report form for each book. The Junie B. Jones series was the favorite books this year, with NASCAR material the second favorite.

This year's top reader was Alecia Hart, who read and reported on 64 books. She was presented a trophy with her name and her achievement engraved on the plates. Hart, who will be a sixth grade student at Terra Alta/East Preston Junior High this year, said that reading is her favorite hobby. She has participated in the library's summer reading program for the past three years, earning honors as the top reader her first year in the program and placing second last year.

The other six students who completed the READ program were Kambra Dawn Lantz, Nicole Loughry, Chelsie Fultz, Stephanie Metheny, Nikki Cramer, and Michelle Kelly. Other participants were Chantel Calhoun, Lydia DeLauder, Josh Dodge, Kori Haught, Veronica Hovatter, Colten Kisner, Brittany Lewis, Willie Lewis, Kayla Metheny, Kristi Moats, and Jason Syruws.

Games at the party were individuals teaming up to pass the egg, hot potato water balloons, passing water balloons under their chins without using their hands, Reado/Bingo, and a Chinese gift giveaway. Refreshments were served, and the readers on hand for the party — Hart, Metheny, Kelly, Cramer, Fultz, Syruws, DeLauder, and Haught — were recognized for their participation in the summer reading program.

Local Resident Survives Sunday Lightning Strike

A Garrett County man continues to recuperate at his Deep Creek Lake area home from burns sustained when he was struck by lightning Sunday afternoon at a Bedford County, Pa., campground.

Curtis Hutson, 39, was transported by the Flintstone Volunteer Fire Department ambulance to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for a number of second degree burns and several small third degree burns and was released later that same night.

The Garrett Highway resident and his wife Paula were tent camping at a remote, private campground near Artemus when a thunderstorm traveled through the area. "Shortly after 3 p.m. the weather began to develop from cloudy conditions into a full-blown thunderstorm, with lots of lightning bolts. Usually lightning strikes along the top of the surrounding hills in that area, but this storm was so violent it was also striking down into the valley where we were camping."

A heavy downpour was falling outside the couple's large canopy tent as Hutson tried to keep water from flowing into the structure. He was working on a small ditch he had dug around the tent when the bolt struck shortly before 4 p.m. "I was crouching, trying to repair a portion of the ditch, and had just jammed my shovel into the ground and hit a tree root when I saw a rotating ball of blue light in my peripheral vision. It immediately came toward me from the left,

WATCH FOR THOSE FLASHING LIGHTS — The backpacks, lunch boxes, and pencils were dusted off again this week as the Garrett County public schools opened for the 2001-2002 year. All motorists are implored to readjust to the busy roadways and to keep their eyes open for the flashing lights of school buses. It is illegal to drive past a bus when the boarding lights are flashing and persons will be arrested for doing so. The reason is obvious — the buses are loading some precious cargo in the form of smallish human beings who trust that all drivers will wait for them to get on or off. The schools opened Monday with no reported problems. As school commences, life shifts into high gear for many. Along with homework and projects comes football, soccer, golf, cheerleading, volleyball, cross country, and other activities for all ages. May all have a good year, and be safe. Photo by John McEwen

Grantsville Man Drowns Near Rehoboth Beach

Grantsville resident Timothy A. Alvarado, 34, drowned Saturday near the popular ocean resort of Rehoboth Beach, according to the Delaware State Police. His body was found at approximately 6 p.m. in the Atlantic surf near North Shores, just north of the resort beach, after he had gone swimming in Gordon's Pond at Cape Henlopen State Park at about 4:30 p.m. The pond has an outlet to the ocean, DSP Lt. Timothy Winstead said.

Resuscitation efforts failed and Alvarado was pronounced dead at the scene where his body was found, said Winstead. The Delaware Medical Examiner has determined that drowning was the cause of death. See obituary on page A-6.

POA RECOGNIZES LIFE-SAVING ACTION — Local resident Ed King was recognized during Saturday's meeting of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association for rescuing a 9-year-old New York boy from the lake after a boating tragedy. King was the first boater on the scene of a July 7 mishap that occurred when a sailboat's aluminum mast made contact with a live power line in the Paradise Heights area, killing the boy's father and rendering the youngster unconscious in the water. King pulled the boy into his boat and worked to resuscitate him, and the boy survived. Outgoing DCLPOA president Roger Titus, left, is shown presenting a plaque from the association to King, who resides along State Park Road with his wife Jean. The electric line involved in the accident has been de-electrified by Allegheny Power Company, Titus told the POA gathering.

Illegal Trash Dumping In SRSF Noted

Trash dumping in the Savage River State Forest is reaching alarming levels, according to the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, which will consider barring access to some particularly hard-hit forest roads should the problem continue unabated. Piles of construction debris, including discarded lumber, old shingles and window glass, and empty buckets, are posing a potential hazard to forest users and wildlife, said SRSF manager Mike Gregory.

"Just about every week, new piles of trash are dumped in the forest," Gregory stated. "People cleaning out their homes or someone in the construction field will just bring a pickup load in. A lot of the bigger problem areas are on the border between Garrett and Allegany counties along Big Savage Mountain, with additional trouble spots on Negro and Meadow mountains.

"Specific dumping sites that we're watching closely include some along Red Dog Road, Bowman Hill Road, Blue Lick Road, Westernport Road, and some of the hollows off Avilton Lonaconing Road. We've received numerous tips from concerned citizens, and we have tag numbers of possible violators that we're following up on."

Illegal dumping on public land is punishable by a $70 fine for the first offense, which could be increased to $1,000 with the addition of

Officials Discuss Need For New Jail; Study Committee Forming

The Garrett County commissioners, circuit and district court judges, sheriff, state's attorney, and other officials gathered Tuesday to open discussions about the possible need for a new jail. The present facility, located in front of the Garrett County Courthouse, is deemed by many of the officials to be inadequate, even though it is less than 30 years old.

The commissioners decided Tuesday to appoint a study committee to explore the issue. The committee, which is to be officially appointed within a week, will examine the need, the feasibility, the site, and the funding options available.

"This is a very large project we have in the wings, if we proceed with it," said Fred Holliday, commissioner chairman. Commissioner Wendell Beitzel said the officials' viewpoints on the issue are important.

"We want to approach this thing with as much input as possible from the people who are directly affected by it," Beitzel said.

Ralph Burnett, district court judge, praised the sheriff's office staff for their work with defendants, but said the jail facility is "becoming antiquated." He said there are problems that will only get worse as time passes, and that the judicial system in Garrett County must adapt to changes as the county continues to grow.

"We are dealing with crime in a different manner," Burnett said. "With more people, we have more potential for problems." He said the case load in both district and circuit courts is growing, and that overcrowding in the jail does occur. "We have the potential for some real problems there. We need to do something about it before it's too late."

Burnett also stated that he and Judge James Sherbin of the circuit court both try to avoid sending Garrett County defendants to the Maryland Department of Corrections. In order to do that, they must not sentence a person to more than 18 months, as that is the maximum term allowed in the local jail.

"We really try not to send native Garrett Countians downstate. It's a bad place," Burnett said.

Sherbin agreed and suggested that the county make a significant move to construct a multi-purpose facility that could house a new jail, Social Services offices, and, ideally, a facility similar to the Finan Center in

Variety Of Lake Issues Discussed By DCLPOA, Policy Review Board

Over 100 Members of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association gathered Saturday morning at Garrett 8 Cinemas for their final general membership meeting of the year, while the DCL Policy and Review Board met shortly afterward at the same location to solicit public input and comment on the proposed Deep Creek Lake Land Use and Recreation Plan.

Discussion during the DCLPOA membership portion of the morning touched on safety issues both on the lake and on the land surrounding it. This summer's boating season has been marred by one fatal accident and a near-fatal collision, and persons in attendance at the meeting discussed possible causes and ways to prevent such tragedies from occurring again.

The first incident occurred July 7, when a New York man was electrocuted and his son injured when the aluminum mast of their sailboat came in contact with live overhead power lines while attempting to dock their boat in the Para-

Mead And Westvaco Agree To Combine In $10 Billion Merger

Officials of the Mead Corporation and Westvaco Corporation announced this week that they have agreed to a merger of equals, creating a global company with leading positions in packaging, coated and specialty papers, consumer and office products, and specialty chemicals. The enterprise value of the combined organization is in excess of $10 billion.

The new company, which will be called MeadWestvaco Corporation, will have $8 billion in annual revenues, profitable growth platforms in the company's four core businesses, and a strong balance sheet with substantial financial capacity. In addition to significantly enhanced growth opportunities, the companies together expect to achieve annual operating synergies of more than $325 million, in full effect by the end of the second year.

Under the terms of the transaction, Mead shareholders will receive one share of MeadWestvaco stock for each share of Mead stock, and Westvaco shareholders will receive 0.97 shares of MeadWestvaco stock for each share of Westvaco stock. Mead shareholders will also receive a special payment of $1.20 per share at closing. The merger is structured as a stock-for-stock tax-free exchange, and will be accounted for as a purchase transaction under the recent guidelines for business combinations. The transaction has been approved by both boards of directors.

Jerry Tatar, Mead's chairman, president, and

Sincell Is Recipient Of GCAC's 2001 Friend Of The Arts Award

Ben Sincell, a Garrett County native and longtime theatre professional, is the recipient of the seventh annual Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) Friend of the Arts Award. Carol Perez, president of the arts council, is pictured above as she presents Sincell with the honor at Our Town Theatre Monday evening following the Friedman and Friends chamber music concert.

"Ben Sincell is to Garrett County arts what water is to life — for all practical purposes, indispensable," said Steve Schlosnagle, GCAC executive director. "In terms of what he's made possible and what he does here, the term 'friend' doesn't even begin to convey his role in the development of the local performing arts community."

Sincell has been involved in the performing arts for over 30 years, having established himself early on as a stage performer in magic. He obtained his bachelor of arts degree in theatre from West Virginia Wesleyan College, and then a master of fine arts degree in theatrical design from West Virginia University. He was among the founding mem-

AIRPORT DEDICATION REMEMBERS RON DOLAN — County native and former Garrett County Airport manager Ron Dolan, who was killed when his small plane crashed in North Carolina last winter, was remembered by friends and family in a ceremony at the airport Saturday. A plaque was unveiled by Dolan's father Joe (with cane) and Dolan's grandchildren, while a flag was raised on the memorial's flag pole by his daughters as bagpiper Paul Browning played Amazing Grace. After the dedication the group shared food and memories in an airport hangar while viewing slides of Dolan's life. Rick Dolan, Ron's brother, noted that the memorial construction was a community volunteer effort, sparked by current airport managers John and Carolyn Hill, labor and materials supplied by Skeeter Bowman and Russell Sines, the plaque donation by John and Louise Luke, financial donations by Tim Yommer and a number of others, and spiritual support provided to the family by Elmer Maust. "I know Ron would have been very embarrassed but very proud of the dedication," commented his grateful brother Rick.

Garage Sustains Major Damages In Sunday Blaze

A two-story wood-frame garage in Accident sustained major damages as a result of fire Sunday evening. Volunteers from the Accident, Deep Creek, Bittinger, and Friendsville fire departments were summoned to 186 Distillery Lane off Aiken Miller Road south of Accident at 8:42 p.m., and found the structure fully involved in flames. The 911 call for assistance was made by Accident firefighter Aaron Close, who happened to be driving by the property.

The unoccupied garage is owned by John Williams III, who was out of town at the time of the fire. The cause of the fire remains under investigation by Jamie Rodeheaver and Bruce Shafer, deputy state fire marshals, who estimated the loss to be $15,000.

The fire was brought under control by the approximately 50 firefighters in about 30 minutes. Also responding to the scene were the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the county air cascade unit, which is housed at the Deep Creek station. There were no injuries reported.

GBI Jails Terra Alta Woman For Sales Scheme

Detectives with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation arrested a Terra Alta, W.Va, woman this week for allegedly defrauding the customers of a clothing business she was representing.

Sandra Kay Murphy, 30, was arrested and charged Tuesday with six counts of theft and theft scheme before being released on her own recognizance by a district court commissioner.

Murphy is accused of taking orders and payments while acting as a sales consultant for the Petra Fashions Company, a legitimate business, and failing to forward the merchandise orders to the company. She reportedly kept the payments made by some of her customers, several of whom were Garrett County residents.

COLLEGE INTERN RECOGNIZED — Christel Savage, McHenry, was wished well by the Garrett County commissioners Tuesday as she heads back to Frostburg State University for her senior year. Savage has been an intern in the commissioners' office throughout the summer, and has received "hands-on" experience in county government. She said it has been a worthwhile endeavor. "I learned so much," Savage said. "It was a far better experience than I ever expected." In addition to attending the regular Tuesday public meetings every week, the student also worked in several county offices and even helped pen some new ordinances for the county. She is pursuing her teaching degree and hopes to return to the county to live, and perhaps someday become involved in local government. The interest could be genetic, as she is the granddaughter of former commissioner Les Hunter, who served with present Commissioner Ernest Gregg in Gregg's first term several years ago. The commissioners and staff said they enjoyed having the student on board, and noted that other interested students are invited to inquire about interning. She was presented with a Garrett County shirt and plaque Tuesday. Pictured from left are Commissioner Wendell Beitzel, County Administrator Monty Pagenhardt, Commissioner Fred Holliday, Savage, and Gregg.

Frostburg Man Arrested For Theft Of TVs

A 24-year-old Frostburg man was arrested Sunday by Oakland City Police Chief John Sines on charges of first degree burglary and theft over $500.

Austin (Chuckie) Huffman Gardner reportedly admitted in a signed statement that he entered the summer home of Regis Kerins of Conn., which is located along Coolidge Ave. in Oakland, on or about June 5 at approximately 8:30 p.m.

Gardner allegedly removed two televisions from the dwelling and later sold them for $600.

He was found by Sines at a restaurant near McHenry Sunday afternoon and arrested, according to the report.

Gardner later posted $1,000 in bail and was released pending a hearing.

Deputies Arrest Oakland Man On Possession Charge

An Oakland man remains incarcerated on a $10,000 bond this morning after he was found to be carrying suspected drugs during the course of a traffic stop by Garrett County sheriff's deputies last night.

Todd William Riley, 26, was stopped along Oakland Drive for an equipment violation shortly before 9 p.m. When a K-9 scan of the vehicle indicated that drugs may have been present, the Ford Ranger pickup was searched and a quantity of suspected marijuana was located on Riley's person. He was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana.

In other sheriff's news, a West Virginia man was jailed on drug charges last Thursday night, Aug. 23, when deputies found him carrying smoking pipes near Swanton, one of which contained suspected marijuana residue.

Roy Allen Runner, 30, Tunnelton, was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia by deputies summoned to a reported disturbance in the 400 block of Mellinger Road at approximately 8 p.m. Runner was located on the scene, and as he was speaking with the deputies they noted that he appeared to be attempting to conceal something from view. When asked if he was hiding something, Runner produced two metal smoking pipes from his pocket. He was later released from jail on his own recognizance.

A case of reported "road rage" led to the arrest of Brian Lee Moats, 18, Eglon, W.Va., on a charge of second degree assault early Friday afternoon in Oakland. The alleged victim told deputies that he had been driving in the Pleasant Valley area when a vehicle passed him in a no-passing zone, nearly running him off the road.

A short time later the alleged victim noticed the same vehicle at the Laundry Tub laundromat across from Southern High School, and approached the driver to confront him over the incident. Moats reportedly grew irate and produced a billyclub-type police baton and threatened the victim with it.

Moats was subsequently released from jail after he posted a $1,500 bond.

DWI Arrests

Several individuals were charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) or driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) by sheriff's deputies this week. They were: William Henry Gelbach, 40, Waynesboro, Pa.; Joseph William Keller Jr., 45, Terra Alta, W.Va.; and Tex Lloyd Gordon, 53, Swanton.

Sleeping Driver Crashes Truck Into Auto Sales

An Oakland area man apparently fell asleep while driving his vehicle early Tuesday morning on Rt. 135 near Whitacre's Auto Sales. Richard Lee Butts's 2001 Toyota truck was traveling east when it crossed the highway and struck four parked vehicles at the auto sales, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Butts was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue following the 5:21 a.m. accident. He was admitted to the intensive care unit, where he was listed in serious condition. As of this morning, however, he was in stable condition, according to a spokesperson for the hospital.

The accident remains under investigation by the sheriff's office.

Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the accident.

GBI Seeks Leads In Flowers By Webers Burglary

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation is seeking leads into last night's burglary of Flowers By Webers, located at 110 Weber Road. At this point it is not believed any money or property was taken during the incident.

Persons with information are asked to contact either the GBI at 301-334-1909, the sheriff's office at 301-334-1911, or Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975. Anonymity is guaranteed, and a reward is being offered.

Canadian Injured In Crash; Truck Destroyed By Fire

A 57-year-old Canadian man received minor injuries Sunday morning, Aug. 26, when his motorcycle collided head-on with another vehicle on U.S. Rt. 40 at Pocahontas Road near Finzel.

According to Maryland State Police, Robert David Delaney of Halifax, Nova Scotia, was traveling in the westbound lane on Rt. 40 at approximately 9:45 a.m. Delaney's 2001 Harley Davidson Classic motorcycle drifted into the eastbound lane, after he failed to negotiate a curve, and struck a 1999 Ford Taurus being driven by Donald McKenzie, 75, of Frostburg. Passengers in the McKenzie vehicle were his wife Rose and their granddaughter, Megan Cunningham.

Delaney was transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by Frostburg Ambulance for observation of minor injuries. He was later treated and released, according to a spokesperson for the hospital.

Neither McKenzie nor his passengers were injured in the incident.

Cpl. Archie Powers of the McHenry Barrack investigated the accident. Delaney was charged with failure to drive right of center.

In other state police news, a Grantsville man's 1999 Ford F-250 was destroyed by fire early Tuesday on the eastbound Finzel Road ramp, located along Interstate 68.

Wendell Dean Milburn, 32, was not injured in the 6:34 a.m. incident after his vehicle experienced mechanical difficulty and caught fire, according to state police.

Eastern Garrett Volunteer Fire Company responded to the scene.

Oakland Driver Cited Following Three-Car Crash

A three-car pileup on Tuesday, Aug. 21, on Third Street in Oakland resulted in a citation for one Oakland driver. No serious injuries were reported following the crash, which happened at approximately 12:15 p.m. near the entrance to Josie's Restaurant.

According to a report from the Oakland City Police, vehicles operated by Kenneth Dorko, 34, Cranberry Township, Pa., and Amanda Pagenhardt, 19, Oakland, were stopped in the northbound lane as Dorko was waiting to turn into the restaurant's parking lot.

Gary W. Coddington, 34, Oakland, was driving a Ford pickup in the same lane and apparently failed to stop in time. The pickup struck Pagenhardt's Subaru Legacy, which then slammed into Dorko's Ford Explorer.

Passengers in the Dorko vehicle included Tracey, 33, Paige, 3, and Vincent Dorko, 1. Passengers in the Pagenhardt car were Merredith, 12, and Justine Pagenhardt, 15. None was transported to the hospital at the time of the wreck, according to the report.

Coddington was cited for failure to give full time and attention to driving, according to the report.

OPD Arrests Oakland Man After Domestic

An Oakland man was arrested by Oakland police officers recently after he allegedly assaulted a woman during a domestic altercation at the Oakland Golf Club.

Brian Douglas Harman, 36, has been released from the Garrett County Detention Center on a $500 bond after his Aug. 19 arrest on charges of second degree assault, false imprisonment, disorderly conduct, and disturbing the peace. Harman allegedly argued with the woman in the parking lot of the golf facility, reportedly pinning her against a car during the course of the altercation. He was taken into custody on an arrest warrant several hours later at his Spring Glade Road residence.

In other Oakland Police news, an Oakland woman was arrested on disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace charges following an argument with a 17-year-old juvenile female, who herself was charged with second degree assault.

The pair reportedly argued over money Saturday afternoon at one location, then the argument moved to a home in the 800 block of High Street where it continued. When police officers arrived they found Angela Cheshire, 22, standing outside the home yelling for the juvenile to come out. Cheshire told police that the juvenile had stood in a window and threatened her with a knife just before their arrival.

GW Hwy. Stops Lead To Three Drug Arrests

Three Virginia men were arrested on drug charges Friday evening after Garrett County Narcotics Task Force investigators and sheriff's deputies stopped two vehicles for speeding along George Washington Highway in the Red House area.

The first arrest occurred at 6:30 p.m. after a Chevrolet station wagon was stopped just west of Rt. 219. The driver, Frank Vayo Jr., 19, Troy, was arrested when a positive K-9 drug alert on the vehicle led to a search that uncovered suspected marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Vayo was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and was subsequently released from the Garrett County Detention Center on his own recognizance after appearing before a district court commissioner.

The two additional arrests were made at 8 p.m. when a Ford Mustang was stopped for speeding at the same location. After a positive K-9 drug alert, a search revealed suspected marijuana and psilocybin mushrooms, plus drug paraphernalia. arrested were Jonas Diener, 24, and Anthony Hertzler, 22, both of Harrisonburg. Both were charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, while Diener was also charged with possession of hallucinogenic mushrooms. Diener and Hertzler were both released on their own recognizance.

ARC Approves $250,000 Grant For Water Proj.

Congressman Roscoe G. Bartlett (MD-6) announced this week that the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) has approved a grant for $250,000 to the Garrett County Sanitary District to help with the design and construction of the public water system in the Keysers Ridge area.

"This project will be a great economic boon to the area, and will give private residences a reliable water source," said Bartlett.

The public water system, as has been reported previously, will consist of a 100,000 gallon-per-day water well, a 400,000 gallon water storage tank, one and a half miles of water distribution pipe, and water treatment facilities which will include a chlorination building and equipment, an emergency generator, and a septic field.

Approximately 70 commercial and residential properties that are located in the Keysers Ridge area will benefit from the new public water system. The system will also aid the county's efforts in recruiting and maintaining new businesses and jobs in the Keysers Ridge area, Bartlett said.

The total cost of the Keysers Ridge water project is $1,414,300. In addition to the $250,000 ARC grant, USDA Rural Development will provide $400,000, the state of Maryland will provide $200,000, and local sources will provide $564,300 in matching funds.

Survives Strike

stopped for a split-second right in front of me, and then seemed to completely engulf me as it struck.

"There was a loud bang, and I saw nothing but a flash of blue fire right in front of my eyes. I was thrown six feet up into the air and backwards across the tent, and landed on an air mattress instead of the ground, which, along with my rubber-soled shoes I was wearing at the time, probably saved my life."

Paula Hutson, who was standing on dry ground underneath the opposite side of the canopy from her husband, was lifted approximately two feet into the air, while a teenage campground staffer, who was seated under the canopy in a metal chair with rubber footings, was pitched headlong onto the ground. Neither was injured.

Temporarily paralyzed by the lightning strike, Curtis Hutson said, "All I could do was open my eyes, but I was so stunned I couldn't move. I heard my wife yelling my name but wasn't able to respond." In a short period of time Hutson regained his mobility, and was subsequently pronounced fit, and extremely fortunate, by emergency room doctors at Cumberland Memorial. His memory of the incident itself was sketchy at first, but he said scattered recollections came to him over the succeeding 24 hours that allowed him to piece together his account.

"I know I'm pretty lucky," the Garrett Highway resident said of his narrow escape. "The electricity seemed to have entered near my armpit, traveled through my body and exited at my feet. I've got widespread second degree burns in a spiderweb fashion all over my body, and severe burns on my feet. The doctors said when the charge entered my body the electricity took the path of least resistance, which was my bloodstream. My skin is marked in lines that follow the course of veins close to the surface. I'm just glad it wasn't worse."

More Americans are killed by lightning each year than by hurricanes or tornadoes, and many more than are killed by sharks, which have received an enormous amount of media coverage in recent weeks. Over the last three decades, an average of 73 people a year have been killed by lightning in the U.S., according to the National Weather Service, and about 300 more are annually struck but survive. Victims killed by lightning do not succumb to burns, but instead die from cardiac arrest because of the massive electrical shock.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration provides the following advice in the event of a severe thunderstorm with associated lighting strikes:

Go indoors at the first sounds of thunder; stay away from water, trees, poles, towers, wires, and heavy equipment; and do not use the telephone during a storm. Boaters are urged to get to shore and seek shelter, or take cover under a bridge. Campers are advised to take shelter in a car or camper trailer, provided the only ground contact is air-filled rubber tires. Those caught without shelter options should squat on the balls of their feet to provide the smallest possible target and smallest area of ground contact.

Tort Reform Sorely Needed...

The Labor Day holiday was created to recognize working people in the United States for their crucial contributions to our society, and to remember that life as we know it in this nation would literally cease to exist if it weren't for the American worker.

There are, however, a number of serious threats to the businesses that employ the American worker, certainly not the least of which is the wave of uncontrolled, frivolous, and outrageous lawsuits. Not only is this costing business owners huge sums of money, but it is literally stealing money right out of the pockets of every single American, and the amount is way more than most realize.

According to the American Tort Reform Association, litigation in this country costs every citizen — man, woman, and child — $1,200 annually, or nearly $5,000 per year for a family of four. The threat of lawsuits, as well as actually being sued, leaves business owners little choice but to pass along the cost of legal services and liability insurance to their customers. So consumers are hit with higher prices on nearly every product they buy. Obviously, everyone's insurance bills are directly affected.

The fear of being sued is also causing business owners to take away or diminish certain employee benefits, such as health insurance and retirement. Job security is also being weakened, and there is a hesitancy to hire additional workers.

The intent of litigation is worthy — to compensate someone who has truly been mistreated, injured, or in some other way abused by another person(s) or product. But the level of absurdity is off the chart with some lawsuits that are being filed. A Philadelphia couple has filed a $100,000 lawsuit against the Kellogg Company because a cherry Pop-Tart, left unattended in a toaster while the woman drove her children to pre-school, caught fire and set her house ablaze. Black and Decker, the manufacturer of the toaster, is also (of course) included in the suit. Never mind that the mother failed to check on the tart. Never mind that it says right on the Pop-Tart box that the product should not be placed in a toaster and left unattended because it could cause a fire!

In another case, a woman has sued Delta Airlines for a huge sum because she was a passenger on a Delta plane that experienced some trouble. The crew managed to land the craft and save all of the passengers from injury, but the woman claims that her life is now a wreck because she has a permanent fear of flying, and it's all Delta's fault. Never mind that it was her choice to fly. Never mind that her life was saved by the competent crew. A jury awarded her a large sum anyway.

Even the frivolous cases that never make it to court can result in significant sums of money paid by the defendant to his attorney, or paid to the plaintiff just to settle the case and avoid actually going to court. Oftentimes, even though the case is lame and probably would be ultimately won by the defendant, the cost to go to the mat in the courtroom is greater than a settlement amount.

The winners in virtually every case, though, are none other than the handful of greedy lawyers whose entire career is based upon the pursuit of litigation cases, no matter how frivolous, because in our system, either way, these lawyers are winners. They are going to make money, win or lose, while the rest of us will always lose.

Never has the need for tort reform in this country been greater, but we'll be shocked if Congress acts on this issue with any real fervor. Perhaps there are just too many lawyers in Congress.

BE BRAVE — SHOW UP AT YOUR REUNION

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Two decades and three months ago, I and about 185 other kids earned diplomas from Southern High School. To celebrate our advancing age, a bunch of us got together earlier this month for our 20-year class reunion. Being a resident of the home town (as well as a total pushover), I was of course involved in the planning of the event, so my part in it was more than just showing up and being anxious about weight gain or baldness (I actually only worry about one of those afflictions — I'll let you guess which one). No, I had to be jittery about whether or not things would go as planned, or if things planned were appropriate. Of course we didn't please everyone. Some people didn't come because they thought it was too expensive (I disagree), others didn't come because they didn't relish the thought of seeing people they didn't like all that much in the first place, and still others were, I guess, too uncomfortable about the whole thing. But I'm sorry for them, because we had a great time.

Over two days, I'll estimate that about 75 classmates made an appearance, which I think is pretty good as reunions go. Some people looked just like they did in 1981, which was annoying. More annoying were the ones who looked better. But appearances are only that. After the first few glances and the first conversation, the looks didn't matter much. It wasn't at all hard to detect the familiar features and those old voices. Several of us met at the Honi-Honi on Friday evening, just to break the ice. As people descended the walkway nervously, those of us standing at the bottom looked up and scrutinized. Yikes. As we recognized each person, the screams of greeting commenced, and hugs were given all around. A local friend of mine happened to come down the walkway and I had a thought. I yelled, "Hi, Patti! You guys remember Patti, don't you?" She played right into it, which was great. My classmates all looked panicked. "Nah," I said at last, "she's from Pennsylvania." There was great sigh of relief, and I think someone hit me in the arm.

So we gathered and we talked. I marveled at how some things absolutely don't change, like the way girls flip their hair or the way boys stand with their hands jammed in their pockets. As the scene played out, I watched the faces that I used to see nearly every day of my life. They were mostly smiling or laughing, obviously relieved from the tension of earlier when the initial meetings loomed. Our conversations fluctuated from reminiscing about wild high school parties (yes, I went to a few) to pondering the benefits of pre-K. We talked about teachers we had and teachers our kids have. We exchanged childbirth sagas. Some talked about painful divorces, while others relayed tales of life-threatening illnesses. Twenty years of living has passed for all of us, and trading stories with people who knew us "way back when" was comforting.

Just like in the old days, I fell in with my closest friends, Judy Stover Tran and Jane Carroll Pritts. Being with them again is never awkward. It's like we've just gone out of the room for a minute and then come back for more talking. And there were other old friends, too, with whom I can still readily connect — Charlie, Fro, Matt, Michele, Barbara, and lots of others. We 38-year-olds stood around talking just like we used to do, but with an added maturity (and a few added pounds for most of us).

The Saturday evening dinner event was a little stuffier than the Honi, but everyone managed to relate again. Poor Shari Harris had to try to make us behave for a picture. She should get a medal. We were all over the place, joking and getting out of line. It was like herding cats. My husband was watching. He graduated from Morgantown High in a class of over 400, and he told me he was unaccustomed to the camaraderie that exists among my alums. Our class totaled 186, about, and I guess I knew and cared about 40 or 50 of those people, at least. The ties don't seem to be as binding in a big school. I suppose the network of friendship doesn't extend as far, just like in a larger city. When something happens to a kid at Southern, most of the other kids learn about it before too long. Whether that's good or bad — and it's probably a little of both — the phenomenon perhaps fosters a sense of togetherness or understanding, and therefore results in the formation of friendships among people who might never even meet each other in a more populated school.

But even with our small-school bonds, we all had to muster some guts to push through that first moment of reuniting. I understand why people are hesitant — I certainly was. It takes some rationalization: "I'm making it, sort of. I have [pick one or two:] my own home, spouse, business, kid(s), an interesting job, all my teeth, good nails, defined abs, a rad tattoo," etc. It causes us to evaluate ourselves for whatever reason, and then, when some questions just can't be answered, we have to wing it — just show up and be brave and remember that everyone else feels just as nervous, maybe even more.

If you have a class reunion coming up, my advice is to buck up and go. Yes, it can cause flop sweat and upset stomachs. But it is mostly a chance to see people you once cared a great deal about, as well as forge new alliances with some you barely knew back then but who have a lot in common with you now. Life is too short to shy away from opportunities like this, so dig out your dressy dress or your tie, get your nails done for once, take a glance at your yearbook, and show up.

BEES AND THEOLOGY

Here I am, home again after nearly seven weeks. All the things that were left to be done then are still waiting to be done. So I plunge into the line-up of tasks, but all the while pondering the time abroad.

The last full week of my sabbath-time away was spent at Pluscarden Abbey, a Benedictine monastery in the north of Scotland. Pluscarden is my monastic home. It was the first monastery I ever visited, during Easter week 1977.

The Abbey, originally founded in 1230, was re-founded in 1948 when five monks returned to the ruins of the medieval monastery. They cleared away the debris of four centuries, and prepared for the new community. Today the community numbers 32 with a low average age.

The monks live in buildings that date from as early as the 13th century, but they also have a web site (www.plus cardenabbey.org). Rooted in the past, they have a clear vision for the future.

Their prayer services (seven times a day for at least four hours each day) are nearly altogether in Latin. What, at first glance, seems to many people an insular and backward life attracts a steady stream of visitors from all over the world. The taxi drivers attest to this and to the excellent reports guests and visitors make on their departure.

Pluscarden has daughter houses in the United States and in Africa. The monastery also provides the English-speaking secretary to the head of their order in Rome. In many different ways this enclosed community in a remote Scottish valley is the hub of international activity.

There are various doors [for one] to become acquainted with Pluscarden — by visiting the web site, by visiting personally, by going there as a guest. Because it is an all-male community, there is more opportunity for male guests to know the community from the inside. Male guests, for example, eat with the monks, which I think is one of the most powerful parts of the visit there.

Meals are taken in silence, except for the reading by the one monk who stands in the pulpit which stands above the tables. The reading matter is usually nonfiction. Over the years, I have heard as diverse books read as one on the Allied decoding of Nazi encryptions during World War II to a biography of a Christian writer.

Even for the men guests there are additional ways to get involved, chiefly by volunteering. The guest is usually assigned to a monk. When I volunteered this year, the guestmaster asked me how I felt about helping the monk beekeeper. Since I keep bees at home I was delighted.

During three of my seven days there, I went with Fr. Benedict, the beekeeper, to move beehives from one location to another. The main honeyflow comes in July and August from the various heathers blossoming at that time. The weather was rotten for bees. It rained frequently, and was cool and damp when it wasn't raining.

The transfer of the bees was all the more important so that they would have the least distance to travel to the heather during the few hours every few days when the sun actually did shine.

I am not only a Presbyterian pastor, I am a Presbyterian pastor who loves to discuss theology. Fr. Benedict matched that love. As we moved boxes containing 60,000 stinging insects each, we ranged over a variety of theological issues, and discussed the state of our respective churches and the cultures of our respective countries.

There were times when the bees got more active than one might want, and a walk up the logging road proved invaluable. Fr. Benedict impressed me with his ability to stay on a theological subject even as the bees were making points of their own.

One of Pluscarden's great gifts is a culture of friendship. Fr. Benedict and I are at the beginning of friendship. Working in the beeyard and talking theology can each be catalyst to friendship. Doing both at the same time is friendship cement. This new friendship is in addition to others that reach back over the entire 24 years since my first visit.

I returned home strengthened inwardly. The work I do here, whether in my home or in my congregation, is connected to the work that the monks at Pluscarden are doing, their work of prayer and their work of manual labor as well. Now I am at a distance of some thousands of miles from Pluscarden, and I am one small part of their international network. There is encouragement in being even the smallest part of some great work.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

If hunting is as deadly, dangerous, and economically catastrophic as Rick Bissell, Avilton, claimed in his commentary (Change Bear Policy?) last week, why does every state in America permit hunting?

Craig Speicher
Grantsville

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who allowed me to speak to them on Saturday at the Mtn. Lake Crime Watch picnic regarding the need for a youth center in Garrett County.

Thanks to Mr. Z, Sheriff Sanders, Police Chief John Sines, Loch Lynn council member Sheila O'Neil, Mayor Asa McCain, Mayor Britten Martin, Lou DiCarlo, Ms. Dodie Burrell, and Ms. Donna Lantz. Also, thanks to Mr. Jim Deal of Accident for calling on Sunday morning. A couple of the county commissioners, as well as Delegate Edwards and Senator Hafer, paid the event a "token visit." I'm just sorry they didn't stick around long enough to actually converse regarding this issue. Please forgive me if I have left anyone out.

Overall, the responses I got were very positive. There were one or two whom I spoke to who were not as positive — you know who you are; I won't embarrass you here.

Those of you who expressed lending your support, be forewarned — I will take you up on it. After speaking to everyone on Saturday, I came to realize that the need for a youth center in Garrett County has been expressed more than once. So why hasn't anything come of it? It is a true need.

If you have tried to pick up the ball and run with it in the past, we need to talk. If you are interested in lending support in any way, we need to talk.

Parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, teachers, principals, pastors, youth leaders, kids, etc., if you feel there is a true need for a youth center in Garrett County, I encourage you to let your voice be heard. Write the editor of this paper, write to the county commissioners, Delegate Edwards, Senator Hafer, Governor Glendening, and your mayor. If you want to get on the bandwagon, and get your hands dirty with work to make this idea a realization, call me; my name is in the phone book. We need all the help we can get.

Following is a copy of the letter I received from Congressman Roscoe Bartlett regarding his support in this matter.

Thank you. I look forward to hearing from you.

Yvette Nutter, Oakland

Dear Mrs. Nutter:

Thank you for your letter expressing your support for a youth center for Garrett County. I appreciate your taking the time to write and I commend you for your commitment to this particular matter.

It has been my long-standing policy (and practice) to support any application initiated locally for public projects that seek federal funding. As you know, any plans for such a center would have to originate locally. In that regard, it is essential to work with the Garrett County government. If project sponsors seek federal assistance in the pursuit of this matter, just let us know and I will be happy to contact the appropriate federal agency to underscore my backing for the idea.

Thanks again for taking the time to contact my office.

Sincerely,
Roscoe Bartlett
Member of Congress

To the Editor:

I was so pleased to read the Accident Newsletter in the last issue of The Republican, and hope that community members, groups, and organizations will keep this column going by calling in news items.

Thanks,
Peggy Santamaria

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter requested that it be published in this column.

Dear Delegate Edwards, Senator Hafer, and Garrett County Commissioners:

Thank you for your support of the Adventure Sports International complex in McHenry. Building the full facilities of the Adventure Sports International complex will provide all Garrett County residents with convenient and easy access to ice-skating, indoor soccer, year-round swimming, wall climbing, music venues and events (through the amphitheater facility), mountain biking, horse trails, cross-country skiing, and many other adventure sports opportunities.

Recent writers to letters to the editor (August 23), have suggested that monies earmarked for the Adventure Sports International complex (ASI) could be better spent on a YMCA or teen center in Oakland. Any visit to Accident, Friendsville, and Grantsville would find teens congregating in cars in other communities as well. If the leaders of the community would support YMCA or teen centers in each of those communities and other geographically located regions in Garrett County, then the Oakland center concept would be appealing to all Garrett County residents. Sporting, viewing, and other activities that would appeal to pre-teens, teens, adults, and senior citizens in a more centralized location is the concept that should be pursued. Providing one YMCA or teen center in Oakland, which is about one hour driving time from northern Garrett County, is not in the best interest of teens and others who would use this facility.

The leaders' focus on building the facility with the least amount of debt will mean that the rates for use by Garrett County residents can be minimized. That is, Garrett County residents will not have to pay a higher debt service as part of the cost of using the facility. It is too early to know what the charges will be for the use of the ASI complex programs, but I do know that the Adventure Sports International's commitment is to make the experiences as easy to access, open to all county residents, and to make the experience as affordable as possible.

One way to secure monies from the state of Maryland and the federal government for the ASI complex is through economic development programs and grants. In fact, the ASI will employ a local work force including teens, adults, and senior citizens. It is a mistake to assume that the charge for use of the ASI facility will be equal for residents and visitors to our county. Indeed, the McHenry location and ASI concept is the best for our county.

Sincerely yours,
Gary R. Ruddell
ASI board member

Garrett Co. Staff Leaders Provide Monthly Reports

The Garrett County commissioners hosted the regular monthly meeting of county staff leaders this week, hearing reports from 14 departments and agencies. Updates were given on items concerning taxes, paving projects, fair livestock sales, and other issues.

Patricia Yoder, director of Mountain Top Mental Health Associates (Garrett County's core services agency), reported that the department was still adjusting to changes, due to the agency's recent decision to contract with the Washington County Mental Health Center (WCMHC) to provide special services to county children. But, she added, they were "all on the same page and filling gaps as a team."

Yoder also informed the commissioners that a new child psychiatrist would be recruited. Though no contracts have been signed, a doctor has been interviewed, and service may be available as early as September. Additionally, the WCMHC's program will serve students in Southern Middle, Northern Middle, and Dennett Road Elementary schools in the next few weeks, as soon as they receive referrals.

A representative for the board of education, JoAnn Vent, reported that "the first day of school got off to a good start." Vent said that a machine tool trades program would be implemented at Northern High School in January. The program will start on a limited basis, but the main goal of the program will be for students to eventually obtain a national certification in machine tool. Commissioner Fred Holliday said that there was, indeed, a growing need for skilled tradespeople in the county.

Patty Glover of the tax collection office reported that the county has received 57% of the billed county property assessment taxes. She also reported that only about 10 persons took advantage of the office's extended hours during July to pay their taxes. A large percentage of taxpayers paid by mail or bank deposit, Glover indicated, rather than in person at the office.

The director of Emergency Management, Brad Frantz, reported that removal of the radio equipment from the tower on the dome of the courthouse had begun. The equipment will be relocated to the new radio tower, located near Oakland, off Rt. 39. The old tower will eventually be demolished.

Gary Love of Solid Waste and Recycling told the commissioners that the department collected 120 tons of old tires during Tire Amnesty Day in April.

Ron Petrella, administrator of the Sanitary Commission, reported that progress on the McHenry water tank was "one week ahead of schedule." The base for the 500,000 gallon tank has been poured, and the project could be finished by Sept. 3.

Garrett County Extension educator Ann Sherrard reported a site for the new office has been ap-proved, so therefore, the agency "can move ahead quickly" on construction of the new facility. She also said that the 4-H livestock sale at the Garrett County fair went well. Two hundred eighteen animals were sold, garnering $159,000 in sales.

Rodney Glotfelty, Garrett Health Department director, reported that construction on the department's new facility along Memorial Drive was "on target." He stated that the lower level of the structure should be finished sometime in September. Glotfelty projects the department will be in its new building by mid-October.

He also mentioned that September is Prostate Cancer Awareness Month. The department will be conducting two prostate cancer clinics, one at the Grantsville office and the other at the office at G.W. Plaza, Monday, Sept. 25, from 5 to 7 p.m. The cost of the clinics will be $5 and will include an examine by a physician.

Jim Hinebaugh, director of the county's economic development office, reported that only a few remaining documents needed to be signed before work could begin next week on the construction of the ClosetMaid facility near Grantsville. Additionally, Hinebaugh indicated that most of the goals that the department set in previous years have been reached; therefore, they needed to outline new objectives to strive for.

County Roads superintendent Fred Police reported that Glade Run bridge was scheduled for replacement. He also stated that 24 miles of pavement have been completed so far this summer. The paving of Sang Run Road should be completed this week, with Crellin and Grantsville area roads scheduled afterwards. Police indicated that all paving projects should be completed by October.

Gary Mullich, director of the General Services Office, reported that a contract was signed Tuesday morning, allowing renovation work on the courthouse to start. Mullich also stated that the outside runs at the county animal shelter had been covered, so they can now be used this winter.

Dr. Steve Herman, president of Garrett Community College, reported that the fall semester will begin on Wednesday, Sept. 5, and enrollment data thus far for the semester were even with last year's figures. Additionally, he said the steel for the Garrett County Environmental Center would be arriving in mid- September, and that the shell of the structure needed to be completed before winter.

Ken Wishnick, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, reported that Deep Creek Lake was chosen by Trailer Boat magazine as the "destination of the month" for its August issue. Wishnick said that area establishments were already receiving bookings for accommodations, as a direct result of the publicity. The county will also be featured in Camping Life and on the cover of Blue Ridge magazine, though no dates have yet been set. He also reported that several new companies have been added to the roster of sponsors for this year's Autumn Glory Festival. Brochures for Autumn Glory should been in final production next week.

criminal charges for subsequent offenses. Loads of debris over 100 pounds could result in a $5,000 fine and up to five years in jail, and for 500 pounds or more a $25,000 fine could be imposed in conjunction with a jail sentence.

To report an illegal dumping or a suspicion of illegal dumping, persons may call the Savage River State Forest office at 301-895-5759 during normal business hours, or DNR's 24-hour communications office at 1-800-825-PARK.

"It would be a sad thing if we had to close some road access into public lands," Gregory observed, "but people have to take responsiblilty for their actions."

Lake Issues

dise Heights area. The pair's vessel had apparently been blown in toward shore where the lines were overhanging the lake, and the Flying Scot's mast, which topped out at 28 feet from the water's surface, struck a live power line.

"The line that killed the sailor has been de-electrified," association president Roger W. Titus told the gathering, adding that Allegheny Power is conducting a lake-wide inventory to determine where other power lines that cross water could pose a hazard.

"I suspect the primary problem is that there shouldn't have been a line hanging over the lake in the first place," Titus said, adding his opinion that high water levels in the lake may have also contributed to the mishap.

Former DCLPOA president Ed King was recognized by Titus for his actions in saving the 9-year-old boy's life. King was the first of several boaters who came upon the scene while both victims were in the water and unconscious. After determining that the electrical current had ceased flowing through water, King pulled the boy into his boat and resuscitated him while other rescuers tended to the father, who succumbed.

Several days later a second boating accident nearly claimed the life of a sailboater when his vessel was struck and sliced in half by a powerboat. The sailboat operator escaped the accident with broken bones. The 20-foot powerboat was being operated by a juvenile under the supervision of a family member at the time of the incident.

"If a 14-year-old can go onto the lake with his mother and slice a boat in half and nearly kill another person, something wrong is happening," Titus commented. That discussion continued by debating the merits of requiring training and licensing for all motorboat operators.

The land-based issue of black bears roaming in populated areas and getting into trash was also addressed, and the members on hand for the meeting took a proactive approach to the problem by unanimously voting in support of an ordinance requiring bear-proof trash containers for residential properties. "We shouldn't wait until someone is injured by a

APPROXIMATELY 2,500 PEOPLE attended the seventh annual Country Fest and Auction at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry on Saturday. Among items auctioned were 22 locally made, full-sized quilts, which sold for anywhere from $400 to $1,200, with the average price being $763. Above left, fest goers admire the patterns English Garden, Double Wedding Ring, and Star Spin. Buyers of the quilts were from as far away as Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Florida, Connecticut, and Arizona. There were also a number of smaller wall quilts, tree skirts, and table runners, all hand-quilted, sold during the auction. Above right, Aaron Lapp of Accident pedals his way to victory in the pedal tractor pull. Below, children of all ages harvest the five gallons of candy that was dropped from an airplane. Among the other fest attractions were pony, buggy, and hay rides; basket-weaving and chair-caning demonstrations; a wide variety of homemade food items; and a petting zoo, at which the birth of a baby llama was observed and celebrated. The fest is sponsored by the Dry Run Mennonite Church, and proceeds are used to support the church and its school, as well as Christian Aid Ministries, a worldwide Mennonite relief organization headquartered in Berlin, Ohio.

Adult Abuse Seminar To Be Held In Grantsville September 27

A seminar titled "Crimes and Misdemeanors: An Investigation into Adult Abuse" will be held at the Grantsville Holiday Inn on Thursday, Sept. 27, from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. The seminar is sponsored by the Garrett Community Action Committee's Area Agency on Aging, Department of Social Services, Health Department, Dove Center, and Mt. Top Mental Health Association Inc., in partnership with Western Maryland Area Health Education Center, the Geriatrics and Gerontology Education and Research Program, University of Maryland, Baltimore, Garrett Community College, and the Maryland Police and Corrections Training Commission.

The seminar will provide an in-depth look into abuse and financial exploitation of vulnerable adults. Joseph N. Soos, retired 30-year law enforcement veteran, former homicide detective and special agent in the federal inspector general community, will present "Gray Murders: Undetected Homicides of the Elderly." The presentation will introduce participants to the topic of how premeditated homicides of the elderly are misclassified by the law enforcement, medical, and social service communities. Participants will be alerted to five offender categories, their motives, and some of the means by which these homicides are missed, including ante- and postmortem indicators.

Soos holds a bachelor's degree in administration of justice from American University. He has over 3,300 hours of law enforcement training and received more than 25 law enforcement awards for curriculum design, white collar, homicide, and sexual assault investigations. He has served as a consultant to the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services, lead instructor for the National White Collar Crime Center, and curriculum designer and instructor for the Henry C. Lee Institute of Forensic Science. Soos currently researches, designs, implements, and conducts training for criminal justice, human/elder services, and medical personnel. A two-week homicide course designed by Soos was featured in the Washington Post.

The second presentation of the seminar, "Project S.A.F.E.," will be offered by C.J. Messerschmidt, assistant attorney general. Project S.A.F.E (Stop Adult Financial Exploitation) is a new initiative of the Office of the Attorney General in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Aging, Department of Human Resources, and the Maryland Bankers Association. Project S.A.F.E. is a voluntary program that will allow banks to report suspected financial abuse of customers, while protecting individuals' confidential information. The initiative provides financial institutions with educational materials that will assist them in educating their employees to spot suspected financial abuse. Messerschmidt will provide an overview of the initiative.

Messerschmidt serves as the assistant attorney general in the Office of the Attorney General of Maryland. During her legal career she has worked in the Division of Opinions and Advice, serving as the initial counsel to the state's Handgun Roster Board and providing counsel and representation to the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. She currently provides counsel to the Department of Human Resources and conducts appellate litigation in "child in need of assistance" and "termination of parental rights" cases, as well as general counsel regarding confidentiality of records and matters coming under the Maryland State Ethics Law. She was the recipient of the Attorney General's Exceptional Service Award in 1988. She received her J.D. with honor from the University of Maryland School of Law.

In the afternoon, participants will have the opportunity to hear from a panel of experts about local services as they pertain to the subject matter. The panel will consist of: Ralph Burnett, District Court judge; Jay Resh, Garrett Bureau of Investigation; Linda Spassil, Dove Center; Dorinda Adams, Department of Human Resources, Adult Protective Services; and Sue Ellen Lewis, Finan Center. Guest presenters Soos and Messerschmidt will also be available to field questions from the audience.

According to organizers, the seminar will be of benefit to numerous disciplines, including physicians, social workers, nurses, attorneys, law enforcement personnel, and the banking community.

The registration fee for the seminar is $20, which includes handout materials, continental breakfast, lunch, and certificate of attendance. The seminar is approved for five credit hours of Category I continuing education activity from the Board of Social Work Examiners; 7.2 contact hours by the Committee of Nursing and Allied Health under the Maryland Deans and Directors of Continuing Education/Community Services, which is accredited by the American Credentialing Centers Commission of Accreditation; and six in-service training hours with the Maryland Police and Corrections Training Commission. There is a $5 fee for nursing CEUs, payable at the registration table.

The deadline for registration is September 17. For further information, a brochure, or a registration form, persons may contact Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403.

JAY AND SILENT BOB STRIKE BACK

Rated R - Running Time: 1:40 - Released 8/24/01

I said in my review of the South Park movie that the humor of that franchise is an acquired taste. Same goes here. Anyone unfamiliar with the streetwise, Gen-X humor of Jay and Silent Bob (the creation of Jersey-born writer/director/comic book store owner Kevin Smith)—who as a unit are possibly the biggest in-joke in movies today--or anyone who objects to the frequent use of the "F-word" and various other obscenities, may find this film offensive, crude, self-indulgent, or just plain not funny. But if you've experienced them before, or if you're willing to subvert your moral indignation and enjoy some truly clever derivative humor, you may love it.

Jay Phat Buds (Jason Mewes), the long-haired, wiseass, street-talking dude who is always either smoking weed or looking to get laid, and Silent Bob (Smith), his portly, bearded "hetero life partner" in the full-length coat who seldom speaks but apparently follows the same agenda, have appeared in all of Smith's so-called "Jersey" movies [Clerks (1994), Mallrats (1995), Chasing Amy (1997), and Dogma (1999)], but always as side characters who are colorful but incidental to the plot. In Jay And Silent Bob Strike Back, Smith's multidirectionally referential adventure about the two friends' attempt to stop the making of a Hollywood movie about them, they assume the weighty mantle of leading men; the role is unfamiliar and uncomfortable, but for the most part they pull it off.

The film, which requires Jay and Silent Bob to leave their beloved Jersey convenience store and travel across the country to infiltrate Hollywood, includes an abundance of actors reunited from Smith's films, like Ben Affleck and Matt Damon (gleefully lampooning themselves and their movies), Joey Lauren Adams, Jason Lee, and co-producer Scott Mosier, as well as real-life directors Wes Craven (Scream) and Gus Van Sant (Good Will Hunting), among others. As usual, it contains many of Smith's trademarks, like references to the Star Wars movies (Mark Hamill and Carrie Fisher both cameo), and although he only has a few onscreen lines, it's clear he was vocally specific on the set about what he wanted.

After learning from comic book store pal Brodie Bruce (Lee) that the "Bluntman & Chronic" cartoon series (derived from them) is being optioned by Miramax, and that there has already begun a groundswell of Internet-based disapproval from computer geeks everywhere, Jay and Silent Bob decide they must stop the production even if it means losing their legal right to a cut of the profits. They begin the inevitable road trip, during which they meet four dishy girl jewel thieves led by Shannon Elizabeth. After a long digression about a diamond heist (in which they end up caring for a displaced orangutan—don't ask), they arrive in Hollywood and find Chaka (Chris Rock), the comically racist director of the Bluntman & Chronic movie, and attempt to sabotage his film. By this time, however, they are on the run from inept Federal Wildlife Marshal Wilenholly (Will Ferrell), who wants to prosecute them for stealing the orangutan.

As with many successful comedies, the plot is eminently silly, but it is really secondary. The humor derives from the characters' personalities and dialogue, and from the numerous references to Hollywood movies which Smith has packed into the film. Jay And Silent Bob Strike Back is a great, low-budget effort to poke fun at the movie industry; if not a masterpiece of thespianism, it's at least a fun ride through Smith's quirky mind and the lives of his unique characters. ★★★★

BUBBLE BOY

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:35 - Released 8/24/01

Although the idea for Blair Hayes's Bubble Boy seems initially like a lame offshoot of the "bubble boy" episode of Seinfeld (which itself probably derived from the comically weepy 1976 TV movie The Boy In The Plastic Bubble starring a pre-Saturday Night Fever John Travolta in melodramatic overdrive), it is actually much different. "Different" is a good word for this film, written by Cinco Paul, Ken Daurio, and Michael Kalesniko, as it almost deserves its own genre. Recklessly weaving its way back and forth between lowbrow slapstick, romantic comedy, and bizarro-world surrealism, Bubble Boy leaves us baffled as to its director's intentions, and to those of Disney-owned Touchstone Pictures, who apparently distributed the film against the protests of Carol Ann Demaret, mother of real (deceased) "bubble boy" David Vetter. Unfortunately, as most of its jokes fall flat, it's just too dumb to get worked up about. Starring October Sky's Jake Gyllenhaal as the innocent but determined title character, Bubble Boy's sense of humor is so offbeat it makes you wonder if you're getting all the jokes.

We learn in an opening monologue that good-natured, hairstyle-challenged Jimmy Livingston was born without an immune system. To allow him to come home from the hospital, his parents construct an elaborate system of plastic bubbles and tunnels in their Palmdale, Calif., home. Although his closet-Nazi mother (Swoosie Kurtz) tries to protect him from the outside world (altering fairy tales to include bubble-bound main characters who invariably die when they venture outside), he eventually notices girl-next-door Chloe (Marley Shelton), and over the years the pair develop a deep friendship based mainly on their mutual love for the vintage TV show Land Of The Lost. Eventually, however, Chloe begins seeing a boorish lout named Mark (Dave Sheridan), who admits that he just wants to get into her pants. Heartbroken, Jimmy watches as Chloe and Mark get serious and finally announce their engagement. After they leave for Niagara Falls, he decides he must follow them and stop the wedding so he can tell Chloe of his love.

After constructing a mini-bubble in which he can walk around, Jimmy begins his cross-country journey. Pursued by his panicked parents, he encounters a vast number of truly bizarre characters, including a bus full of brainwashed religious cultists whose leader is played by Fabio, a boxcar full of circus freaks owned by midget Verne Troyer ("Mini-Me" of Austin Powers fame), a good-hearted Latino biker (Danny Trejo) and an Indian ice cream/curry vendor, all of whom end up chasing Jimmy or each other to Niagara for various kooky reasons.

The style of this film is not unlike Pee-wee's Big Adventure, as it follows a comically innocent weirdo around the country, through all sorts of strange adventures and characters. But while Paul Reubens's Pee-wee was a loud, wildly energetic leading character who seemed to propel the comedy by virtue of his outlandishness, Jimmy is the least interesting person in this movie; Gyllenhaal's attempt at an affable leading man comes off as bland and simple-minded. In fact, he is so outperformed by all the goofy people that surround him, one can't help but wonder if freshman director Hayes didn't intentionally go for the bizarre in order to compensate for his leading actor's lack of character. At any rate, this film's uncomfortable mix of style and the lackluster quality of its milquetoast hero begets many comic misfires and many downright weird situations, and, unless you're on drugs or in the mood to be baffled, offers precious few laughs for the buck. ★★

Homeowners Get Tax Credit Ext.

The Maryland Department of Assessments and Taxation is extending the application filing deadline for the Homeowners' Tax Credit Program from Sept. 1 to Oct. 31, 2001. The reason for the extension is to allow new applicants who may have just learned about the program more time to submit the necessary application form.

The Homeowners' Tax Credit Program is a state-funded program that provides assistance to homeowners of all ages in paying property taxes on their principal residence based on their household income. The program operates on the premise that there is a "tax limit" on the amount of property taxes a homeowner should pay, and that the homeowner will receive a direct credit for any taxes paid above the tax limit for his or her income level. A graduated formula is used to establish tax limits for each income level. Last year, 62,000 homeowners throughout the state were granted the credit, and the average credit received was $761, according to the Maryland Department of Assessments and Taxation.

For further information or an application form, persons may call 1-410-767-4433.

Board, Officer Election Results Noted By DCLPOA

The membership of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association elected several members of its board of directors during the association's Saturday morning meeting at the Garrett 8 Cinemas, and at the conclusion of the meeting the board elected DCLPOA officers for the coming year.

Louis Battistella, Bill Nickles, and Frank Wolffe were elected to the board to replace outgoing directors Roger Dandridge, Barbara Elster, and Sandy Gold. Battistella is president and CEO of Adam Eidemiller Inc., a Greensburg, Pa., commercial and residential developer. Nickles is a retired corporate executive with a home in the Turkey Neck area. Wolffe, whose principal residence is in McLean, Va., is a patent attorney.

Re-elected to additional three-year board terms were directors Katheryn Gemberling, Carole Perez, and Theodore Rissell.

At the conclusion of the membership meeting, the board elected officers for the forthcoming year. Fred A. Thayer, a retired Garrett County circuit court judge, was elected president to replace Roger W. Titus, who served as president for the past three years. Thayer has chaired the Garrett County Deep Creek Lake Advisory Committee, and is a long-time resident of the lake area.

Titus will remain as first vice president, and Rissell was elected as second vice president. Perez was re-elected as secretary and Tom Myers was re-elected as treasurer.

Titus became president of the association in 1999 following the untimely death of prior president Jerry Polansky. During Titus's three years of service, the state has purchased the lake, the DCL Policy and Review Board was established, and a process was initiated for the sale of lands adjacent to the buffer strip to lakefront property owners.

"This has been an extraordinarily busy time for the POA, and I am honored to have been of service to the association and its members," Titus remarked upon stepping down from the presidency. "I am extremely pleased that the board has elected Judge Thayer to succeed me. He is highly respected in the community and brings to this office an enormous practical and legal background in issues pertaining to Deep Creek Lake."

THAYER ASSUMES POA PRESIDENCY — The Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association board of directors voted for the organization's new officers during Saturday's membership meeting, and retired Garrett County circuit court judge Fred Thayer was elected the POA's president. A longtime resident of the Swanton area of the lake, Thayer formerly chaired the Garrett County DCL Advisory Committee. Outgoing POA president Roger Titus, who will now begin a term as first vice president, is shown at left presenting the ceremonial president's gavel to Thayer.

Discuss Need

Cumberland.

"This county would really benefit from such a facility," Sherbin said. He noted that the inmates in the local jail have no exercise yard. "We need to start meeting more needs, so that when the defendants come out, they are better than when they went in," the judge said.

Both judges asserted that a major contributor to crime in Garrett County is the abuse of alcohol, "a perfectly legal substance that anyone can obtain," Burnett said. But the alcohol rehabilitation programs available in the county are lacking, they said. The type of facility described by Sherbin would better address the recurring problems that lead to criminal activity in the county, the judge explained. Since it could house state and federal agencies, such as Social Services, the funding for it could be enhanced through grants and other sources.

On the other side of the issue, the officials noted that the present location of the sheriff's office is optimum for security to both the district and circuit courts, as the defendants have only a short walk to the courtrooms for all appearances. A site for a new facility, whether it be simply a jail or the multi-purpose building, will be difficult to decide, Holliday said.

"No one wants a jail in his back yard," the chairman said. Several months ago, law enforcement officials and the commissioners discussed a new jail and entertained the idea of placing it on the former property of the board of education. "We heard complaints about that right away," Holliday said.

Beitzel said if a new facility is constructed, he would like to see the present jail razed and the lawn of the courthouse restored. The idea was met with nods of approval from most of those present Tuesday. The judges noted, however, that a holding facility will still be needed in proximity to the courtrooms, and another suggestion was made to take off the second floor of the present building, but leave the sheriff's office where it is and use space there for holding defendants on their court days.

"All of these things must be addressed by the study committee," said Commissioner Ernest Gregg. Gregg said he hoped those present would be willing to serve on the committee, or would designate a representative of their offices. All appeared to agree. The committee is to convene within a week, the commissioners said.

Wednesday Event To Mark "Stop On Red Week"

A resident of the U.S. dies needlessly in a vehicle crash at an intersection, according to research statistics. To reduce these unnecessary crashes, the Federal Highway Administration (FHA) and the American Trauma Society (ATS) are partnering for the fourth year to observe a nationwide week of traffic safety awareness. In Maryland, Governor Parris N. Glendening has proclaimed Sept. 1 to 7 as the state's "Stop on Red Week."

The local observance of the Stop on Red campaign will be highlighted at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 5, at the old Treasure Island parking lot near Oakland. A variety of rescue equipment will be on display for the public, and state and local transportation and law enforcement agencies, emergency service and public health providers, and elected officials have been invited to participate. The Garrett County Traffic and Transportation Advisory Committee is sponsoring the local event in an attempt to increase public awareness.

The campaign's goal is to reduce the more than one million motor vehicle collisions occurring at traffic signals, which annually result in more than 500,000 injuries and more than 1,000 deaths. Red light running is often a factor in intersection crashes. Red light running crashes alone cost Americans an estimated $7 billion a year.

"Along with the Federal Highway Administration, we're trying to educate motorists that red light running can have the same outcome as driving under the influence of alcohol—injuries and deaths," said ATS executive director Harry Teter.

"Stop on Red Week is all about educating Marylanders about the dangers of running red lights. Each year, across the country, more than 18 million intersection crashes occur. This translates to approximately three intersection crashes every minute. Increasing citizens' awareness on red light running and other roadway-related safety issues makes good sense to Marylanders, and translates into health and economic benefits for the entire country," said Nelson Castellanos, administrator of the FHWA's Maryland Division.

The Stop Red Light Running campaign originated in 1995 as part of the FHWA's local community outreach. Early results of the campaign showed that it has raised awareness of the dangers of red light running by 60 percent and reduced crashes at some intersections by 43 percent. The ATS, based in Washington, D.C., has 150 hospital members and 22 state division chapters.

The ATS joined FHWA's national Stop Red Light Running campaign in 1998. This partnership is ATS's flagship campaign for adult safety issue. Further information is available at the following web sites: safety.fhwa.dot.gov/program/srlr or www.amtr auma.ora.

Police To Step Up Patrols On Local Roadways

Maryland State Police troopers, Garrett County Sheriff's Office deputies, and Oakland City Police officers announced they will be stepping up patrols of local roadways and enforcement efforts this coming Labor Day weekend, which is one of the heaviest traffic weekends of the year.

Officers will particularly be looking for alcohol and/or drug impaired drivers, with a "zero tolerance" policy strictly enforced.

"Safety is our top priority," stated a spokesperson from Maryland State Police Barrack W at McHenry. "If you are going to drink, don't drive. Remember to be responsible and have a designated driver," he added.

Giant Lobster Found While Hitchhiking

Southern Girls Anticipate Another Great Soccer Season

With all but two starters back from last year's 12-1 team, which won the Western Maryland Interscholastic League and Area championships, Southern High School girls' soccer coach Ron Petrella and SHS fans can hardly wait to open the 2001 campaign next Wednesday at home against Allegany.

Petrella, who was named Coach of the Year for the area last season, is entering his fourth year as head mentor of the Rams and is sporting a three-season overall record of 28-7-2.

"We lost only two seniors from last year's squad," Petrella said, "so we believe we will be among the strongest teams in the area. But we still have to work hard as a team and try to avoid injuries."

Petrella said that he expects plenty of competition in the 2001 campaign. "Girls' soccer continues to grow in western Maryland, and the quality of players at every school continues to improve each year," he said.

The senior-dominated Rams will be anchored defensively this season by sweeper Miriam Sincell, who was last year's area Defensive Player of the Year, WMIL Player of the Year, one of five Rams named to the All-Area squad, and one of six selected for the All-WMIL team.

Also back in the Southern line-up are All-Area picks Sabrina Scheffel, Brittany Naylor, and Megan Burner, plus goalkeeper Becky Martin, who was an All-WMIL first-team selection and named to the second-team All-Area. All-Area Co-Offensive Player of the Year, Casey Taylor, is attending a private school this year.

Scheffel is a sophomore striker, Naylor is a junior midfielder, and Burner is a senior midfielder.

The Ram defensive unit has allowed a total of 25 goals in 25 matches over the past two seasons, or an average of one goal per outing, while the offense scored an average of 3.2 goals per match last season, with Taylor, Scheffel, and Naylor collectively scoring 23 of 45 goals. Martin led the area and the WMIL in save percentage with a .921 percentage and six shutouts during regular-season action, despite missing two contests because of injury.

The Rams' 2000 season ended last year with a regional semi-final loss to Williamsport, the eventual West Region champion.

Other experienced players on the 24-member roster include senior forward Jenny Hickman; senior defender Alison Ulino, who missed much of last season because of a knee injury; junior defender Kristen Oxford; senior forward Gina Reeves; junior midfielder Chelsea Remley; and sophomore midfielder Robbin Gregg.

"Our goal is to perform well in each match we play this season and advance in the playoffs to reach the state tournament," Petrella said. "Our girls are anxious to get started, especially the seniors, who started the girls' soccer program at Southern in 1998. They realize that this is their last year, and each one wants to play well and contribute to overall team success."

Petrella is being assisted this year by Bob Bonser.

Youth Football League Steelers Split In W.Va.

The two Northern Steeler squads of the Cumberland Area Youth Football League (CAYFL) traveled to Berkeley Springs, W.Va., Saturday to take on Morgan County in their season openers. The Division One Steelers were turned back by a 19-0 margin, but the Division Two squad saved the day by recording a 7-0 win in its debut.

Morgan County's Jordan Truax put the first points of the Division One contest on the scoreboard in the second quarter with a two-yard touchdown run and extra point run. Truax followed that effort moments later by scooping up a Steeler fumble and rumbling 33 yards for another touchdown to make the score 13-0. Teammate Eric Morris scored the game's final points with a 37-yard touchdown run in the third stanza.

Northern's Chris Speicher and Corey Carr were noted for their outstanding performances.

The Division II contest proved more fruitful for the Northern program, as Casey Kamp broke a scoreless deadlock in the third quarter with a 32-yard rushing scamper for the game's only touchdown. The Steelers connected on the subsequent extra point pass for what turned out to be the final point of the triumph.

Northern (0-1) will visit Ridgeley, W.Va., Saturday for its second CAYFL outing.

In the NCAA Division (flag), the Pro-Fit Insulation Bears topped the Team One Terps, 26-13; the Rinker Construction Nittany Lions defeated the TCI Cougars, 34-19; the Gregg's Pharmacy Mountaineers stopped the Gonder Insurance Tigers, 44-25; and the First United Buckeyes whipped the F.O.P. SHS Netters Hope To Rebound By Eliminating Late Stumbles

The Southern High School girls' varsity volleyball team, which has fallen on hard luck as of late, is poised to make what it hopes is a return to the upper strata of Class 1A Western Region play, according to Rams' head coach Sue Newton. SHS opens its season at home Wednesday against perennial powerhouse Allegany with a 6:30 p.m. junior varsity match, followed by a 7 p.m. varsity battle.

Last year's 4-13 Rams' squad was eliminated from the region's semifinals in a five-game defeat at the hands of Beall, a loss that mirrored a large number of Southern's defeats last season. "So many of our matches were lost in the fifth game last year," Newton commented. "We're counting on that to change. We need to learn how to win, and if we can gain confidence by taking some of our early matches, our season will be very successful."

After losing mainstays Aimee Parrack, Laura Johnson, and Heather Boyce to graduation last spring, the 2001 Rams' chances lie in large measure with top returning players Holli Harris and Erin Frantz, both seniors, and juniors Jessica Sharon and Kristen Rollman. The entire roster should see ample playing time, according to the coach, with Harris, Frantz, and Sharon, along with junior Erika Steyer, sophomore Alexis Storey, and freshman Julia Bosley, working to gel on the attack. Rollman and fellow setters Stephanie Weeks and Stephanie Niner, both juniors, will run the offense, and junior Brea Byers is expected to provide much-needed depth at defense.

The upperclassmen's experience should ground the young squad, which has struggled to learn a very complicated offensive scheme over the past several season, Newton admitted. "I feel this group of athletes know the game better than any team I've coached so far at Southern," the Rams' skipper remarked. "They've worked hard during the off-season by participating in a volleyball camp at Alderson-Broaddus College and competing in the local summer league."

Southern puts a tall and athletic front line across the net this year, and should excel in blocking opponents spike attempts as well as spiking the ball on offense. In addition to developing into a team that can close tight matches successfully, Newton said that her top goal for the squad is to become a good passing team that communicates well on the court. With 10 players on the young roster, of which two are seniors, six juniors, and one sophomore and one freshman, "a strong showing this year could lead to a long run of Southern success," Newton concluded.

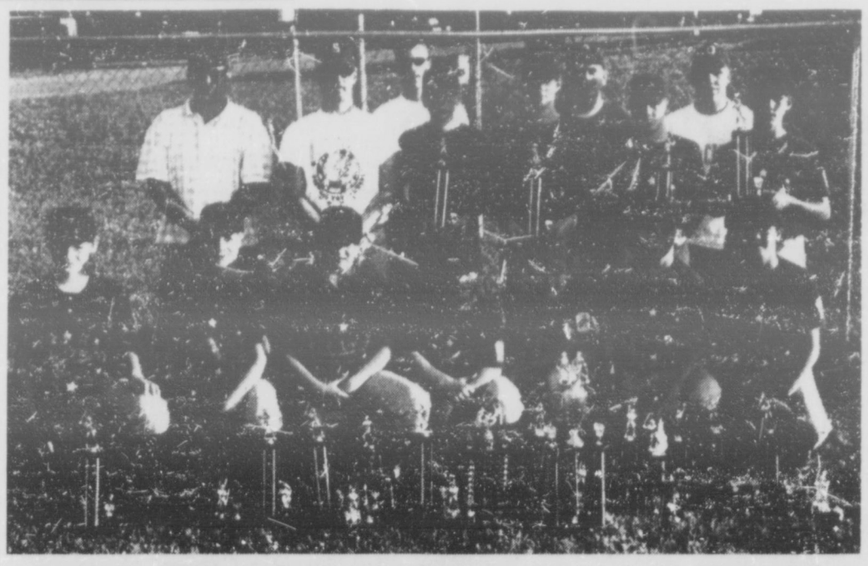
Oakland All-Stars Take One Title, Miss Second By A Run

The Oakland Little League's 11- and 12-year-old All-Stars squad wrapped up its season with first- and second-place finishes in two area baseball tournaments, in Westernport and Salisbury, Pa., respectively. The Garrett County Squad cruised to the Westerport Tournament crown by taking four straight wins with a combined score of 44-6, then just missed the Salisbury Tournament title by dropping a 3-2 heartbreaker in the final championship contest.

Oakland's opening win at Westernport, an 11-0 romp, came over another Oakland-based team. The four-inning, 10-run-rule-shortened contest featured a stellar shutout pitching performance by Anthony Schrock, who recorded six strikeouts and helped himself at the plate by belting two home runs. Shane Weaver and Jason Ashby each stroked a home run as well.

The Garrett County unit took a 6-2 win over PVAA in Game 2, the All-Stars' closest contest. With the game tied 2-2 going into the top half of the sixth, Oakland exploded for a four-run stanza. Mark Bittinger led off with a walk, then Brandon Roberson, Jimmy Hinebaugh, and Weaver followed with three straight singles. Schrock, the fifth batter of the inning, reached base after being hit by a pitch, and Ashby followed with a single. Ashby held the opposition batters scoreless in the bottom half of the stanza to preserve Oakland's four-run win.

Oakland squared off against Cumberland for the tourney crown, and the All-Stars swept the best-of-three final series in convincing fashion, 18-1 and 9-3. Oakland jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first inning of Game 1 as Ashby, Hinebaugh, and Nathan Stephens singled. Schrock, Ashby, and Jeremy Glotfelty belted homers for Oakland. Game 2's six-run triumph closed out the tournament, but details of that win were not available.



ALL-STARS BRING HOME TOURNEY TROPHIES — The 11- and 12-year-old Oakland Little League All-Stars claimed the championship of the Westernport Tournament early last month, taking four straight games by a combined margin of 44-6. The All-Stars concluded their season at the end of July by taking part in the Salisbury (Pa.) Tournament, a weeklong marathon that ended with Oakland being edged out in the final by a 3-2 Somerset (Pa.) win. Kneeling in the front row, from the left, are Matthew Fitzwater, Jeremy Glotfelty, Anthony Schrock, Shane Weaver, Jason Ashby, Brandon Roberson, and Jimmy Hinebaugh. Standing are coaches Chuck Fitzwater, Steve Weaver, and Mike Shreve; Mark Bittinger; Dennis Garlitz; coach Tracy Rinard; Jeremiah King; manager Jason Shreve; and Nathan Stephens.

The All-Stars' final tourney appearance came in the Salisbury Tournament late last month, and Oakland took six of eight outings, losing just two games by one-run margins. One of those heartbreaking losses was a 9-8 defeat at the hands of the Accident squad, and the other came in the tourney championship as Somerset narrowly downed Oakland in a hard-fought 3-2 battle. Oakland decimated the opposition during its six triumphs by a combined score of 62-11.

Oakland's first outing resulted in a four-inning, mercy shortened 12-2 victory over Cumberland, details of which were not available.

The All-Stars fell to cross-county rivals Accident in Game 2 by a 9-8 margin. Ashby led Oakland's offense with a four-for-four performance at the plate as he whacked a home run, two doubles, and a single.

The third game was another Oakland-Cumberland showdown, and the All-Stars took a 7-4 victory behind Schrock's solid pitching and home runs by Schrock and Weaver.

Oakland leveled Mount Savage by an 8-2 margin in its fourth outing of the tourney. Bittinger earned the win on the mound, and Nathan Stephens reach base safely in all three of his plate appearances on two singles and a walk.

Oakland thumped Confluence, 12-2, in a four-inning, mercy-shortened Game 5. Schrock recorded nine strikeouts out of Confluence's dozen outs, and also went 3-for-4 at the plate with a double and two singles. Ashby went 2-for-2 with a double and single, plus a pair of walks.

The All-Stars easily downed Casselman Valley 11-1 in the sixth game in yet another mercy-shortened outing. Ashby pitched a one-hitter and struck out six batters, while Schrock went 2-for-4 at the plate, ripping a home run and a double.

Oakland's tear continued in Game 7 as the All-Stars floored Frostburg with a 12-0 shutout in the Garrett County squad's third straight four-inning triumph. The All-Stars took an early 2-0 lead for more than enough run support for Stephens, who struck out nine Frostburg batters.

Weaver whacked two doubles, Ashby belted a homer, a single and a double, Glotfelty ripped a home run and a triple, and Dennis Garlitz slugged a home run and a single.

That win set up a one-game showdown between Oakland and Somerset for the tournament title, a pitched battle that ended with the All-Stars dropping a 3-2 nail-biter.

Stephens worked the first six innings on the mound, which ended with the score deadlocked at 2-all. Schrock came on relief as the seventh inning started, but struggled to find his control and walked three batters. With the bases loaded and one out, a wild pitch allowed the Somerset runner to scamper home from third for what proved to be the winning run. Oakland had a chance when it batted in the bottom of the inning, but was held scoreless and ended up having to settle for the runner-up spot.

Numerous Oakland players won awards at the Salisbury Tournament. Stephens, Ashby, Schrock, and Weaver were selected to the All-Tournament team, while Ashby won the Tournament Most Valuable Player honor by tallying the tourney's most home runs, doubles, hits, RBI, and highest batting average. Schrock accumulated the most runs scored and times at bat, Weaver tallied the highest on base percentage, and Jeremy Glotfelty was noted as the Most Aggressive Player.

TENNIS ALL-STARS - Two Garrett County high school tennis players, one from Southern and one from Northern high schools, were named to the 2001 Maryland District of the United States Tennis Association's All-Star team. They are Heather Lander of Northern and Josh Stephens of Southern (pictured). The all-star team was honored at the opening session of the Legg Mason Tennis Classic in Washington, D.C., on August 13. Lander, who is a junior at NHS, was a Bi-County doubles champion last season, and is also a member of the varsity volleyball and basketball teams. Stephens, who is a 2001 graduate of SHS, was the 2001 Bi-County singles champion. He is now attending and playing tennis for Potomac State College of West Virginia University. Both students received T-shirts and commemorative medals at the Legg Mason Classic, and attended an autograph and question/answer session with Paul Goldstein, a Maryland native who is currently playing on the ATP tour.

Maddawgs Drop Pair To Raiders In Pee-Wee Slate

The Northern Maddawgs Pee-Wee Football League squad traveled to Cumberland Saturday for a pair of intense battles with the Raiders. The Maddawgs C team played hard but suffered a disappointing 12-6 loss, while the A and B teams were nipped in the final moments of a 31-25 Raider victory.

The Maddawgs C unit put up impressive offensive numbers despite the loss, as Kameron Kamp rushed for 91 yards on just nine carries and scored a touchdown. Matthew Grady rushed for 26 yards on eight carries and Austin Tombley rushed for 21 yards on five carries.

The C team's defense hit the Raiders hard, forcing two fumbles which were recovered by Maddawgs Tombley and Josh Mason. The Maddawgs allowed only three first downs the entire game, but the Raiders were able to get two big plays off in the first half that accounted for two touchdowns.

The Maddawgs A and B combined squads played four strong quarters against the Raiders. The B team came out strong in the first quarter as Josh Duckworth scored two touchdowns and Trevor Tombley added an extra point. The B defense held strong, allowing just one touchdown over the stanza.

The Maddawgs A unit struggled through the second quarter, failing to mount an offensive drive and giving up a pair of Raider touchdowns on defense.

The B team redeemed those foibles in the third quarter as Josh Duckworth scored his third touchdown to put the Maddawgs up by a 19-18 margin. The A squad's defense gave up an early fourth-quarter touchdown to fall behind by a 25-19 margin, but rebounded to force a Raider fumble. The Maddawgs' offense pounded the middle of the Raiders' line relentlessly until Jared Lapp carried the ball across the goal line for the A unit's only touchdown, knotting the score at 25-all. The Maddawg defense then held the home team scoreless until late in the fourth quarter, but a big Raider play resulted in a touchdown that left the visitors on the short end of a six-point loss.

The Maddawgs (1-1) will play host the Ridgeley squad Saturday evening at Northern High School. The C team match-up leads off the action, with kickoff scheduled for 6 p.m.

FSU To Host "Take A Kid To The Game" Day

Area youth will have an opportunity to experience NCAA Football and the college game-day atmosphere when Frostburg State University hosts NCAA Football's annual "Take a Kid to the Game" (TAKG) program on Saturday, Sept. 15. Children ages 12 and under will receive a free ticket with the purchase of a full-priced ($4) adult ticket to watch the Bobcats take on Allegheny (Pa.) College at Bobcat Stadium. The kickoff is set for 1 p.m.

Frostburg State, which is participating in the promotion for the second straight year, will also be giving away free 2001 football schedule posters to the first 150 fans to enter the stadium. There will also be a special halftime contest for Take a Kid to the Game participants held on the playing field.

TAKG is entering its seventh year in the promotion of NCAA Athletics and fourth for NCAA Football. Frostburg State was among a record 181 schools to participate last year in this campaign, which is focused on attracting more of the nation's youth to college games.

"The Take a Kid to the Game program is a wonderful opportunity to introduce the youth of our community to NCAA Football," said FSU athletic director Ralph Brewer. "We drew a nice crowd with this event last season, and this is a great chance for our school to gain some new fans."

Tickets can be purchased at the gates on game day. For more information, persons may call the FSU Sports Information Office at 301-687-4371.

JULY-AUGUST SERIES ENDS IN AN EXCITING WEEKEND

by Dan Muss

This past weekend, Meredith and Ashley Dodd had a lock on first place for the July-August Series in the Flying Scot B Fleet. So the interesting competition was for second place between the team of Dave Bertsch/Ronn Downey, and Lee Coraor/Joan Coraor, with the Coroars ahead by a bit. (This weekend the Coraors' son Nathan was home, and he crewed for his dad while Joan crewed for John Meredith.)

The first race on Saturday was canceled after two fleets started and the wind died, but the race commander, Tom Wolffe, managed to get the second race off in light, fluky air. The Coraors won the 'Scot B race by a bunch. So going into the third race on Sunday it was last chance for Bertsch and Downey, and they pulled off a real "horizon" job by finishing first by more than five minutes.

At this time, we do not know the final tallies for the July-August Series. I'll have them for next week's column. (The reason we do not have the results yet is because the official scorer, Gary Schubert, has to factor in averages for races that were missed by competitors who were out of town for regattas or serving as either race commander or race patrol.)

In the 'Scot A Division on Sunday, John Meredith and Joan Coraor led Harry and Carrie Carpenter for most of the race, but Harry managed to pass them to win on the last leg.

In the Masters' Division race on Sunday, I was sailing with a new crew, Jim Sherrard, and we got a great start on starboard at the pin end and immediately tacked to port, as did everyone else. Ted Rissell, my old nemesis, fouled Elster at the start and had to do penalty turns. While we had the fleet for a while at the start, we just seemed to lag and we were in third place rounding the windward mark, dropping to fourth on the long downwind leg. But at the leeward mark the lead boats had to give room to a 'Scot B Fleeter, and we slipped in and were first again. But again we could not sail well to windward; we were fourth for a while, but managed to catch one boat and finish third. Ted Rissell, with Carol Muss crewing, did a great job in recovering from his early penalty turns to win. It was a long race, but really fun. The fourth-place boat in our division finished within 20 seconds of the first-place boat, that means that any one of us could have won.

Area Speedway Review

ROARING KNOB

by Donna Butler

Oakland's Jeff Thomas claimed his first Late Model win of 2001 at Roaring Knob Raceway Park. The Green Acres Contracting sponsored show saw repeat winners in all of the support divisions.

Outside front-row starter Gary Tonkery took control of the Ken Nicholson and Sons Late Model feature at the drop of the green. With Thomas in hot pursuit, Tonkery would lead the first 11 laps. On the 12th, Thomas slipped by to take the helm. At the halfway point, Thomas held the lead, with Tonkery in the second spot. Starting from the tail, Jeff Ferguson had worked his way into third. Polesitter Dave Yowler rode in fourth, with Billy Eash holding onto fifth. Thomas would lead the remaining circuits on the mountaintop oval. When the checkered flew, it was Thomas over Tonkery, followed by Ferguson, Yowler, and Eash. Mel Minnick, Rob King, Jim Stangry, Jim Kutas, and Bob Neratka rounded out the finishing order. Two cautions were thrown in the 25-lap event.

Yellow fever plagued the normally clean VitaLink-QCOL Classic Lites. When all was said and done, John Cogar of Fairmont, W.Va., had wired the field to take win number 4. Lynn Knepper finished in the runner-up spot, followed by Perry Peters, Bill Vargo, and W.L. Stile. Eight cautions marred the 12-lap event.

Scott "The Ace" Spade of Farmington, Pa., led flag to flag en route to his fifth win in the Country Charm Hot Stocks. Following Spade to the stripe were Steve Huggins, Jim Byers, Chuck Capanna, and Joe Thomas. Four cautions were thrown in the 15-lap event.

Dave Summers took another Fort Necessity Garage Modified 4-Cylinder trophy home to Grafton, W.Va. Summers, starting at the tail, took the reins on lap 7 and never looked back. He was followed by Mike Lewis, Jason Boncoski, Sean Phillips, and Floyd Leonard. The 10-lap event saw one caution.

"Dangerous" Danny Leonard returned to the Knob with a vengeance. Leonard, of Dunbar, Pa., took top honors in the Fort Necessity Garage 4-Cylinder Stock division. Martin Spade Jr., Floyd Carey, Dave Friend, and Spencer Cale made up the rest of the top five. There were two cautions in the 10-lap event.

Lonaconing's Craig Shaw garnered the Sportsman Sprint win, followed by Nicole Miller and Tom Goodman.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park will return to action this Saturday, Sept. 1, when Mel's Truck Service presents Trophy Night for all of the Mountain Thunder divisions. Appalachian Timber Products will present a Gold Rush to the Junior Pit Crew Club.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park is located two miles west of the Youghiogheny Lake, just off Route 40 along Fearer Road. For more information, persons may call the raceway office at 724-329-0306 or 724-329-8196, or visit www.roaringknob.com on the Web.

INTERSTATE 79

The 2001 track champions were crowned after the season championship race. Paul Wilmoth (Late Models) and Jim Byers (Pure Stocks) each repeated their championships from 2000. M.T. Hall (Semi Lates), Shawn Davis (AMRA Modifieds), and Dave Summers (4 Cylinders) were also track champions. Each champion will be honored this winter at the annual awards banquet.

Picking up his third feature event of the year was Chuck Harper in the Late Model division. Harper took home the trophy by leading the race from the drop of the green to the drop of the checker in a non-stop event. He started on the pole alongside Butch McGill. McGill and point champ Paul Wilmoth battled for the second position, but McGill prevailed. Bobby Hill was fourth, Nolan Dalton fifth, and Frank Wilson, Scott Miles, Gary Dalton, Tim Senic, and Tim Dohm rounded out the top 10. Gary Dalton was the Timberwolf Hard Charger.

The Semi Lates saw a new face in the winners' circle when L.C. Powers passed early race leader Ron Howard on lap 19. Powers came from the third starting position. Jeff Kesling also managed to pass Powers before the drop of the checker to pick up the second position. Howard was third. Eugene Towson

Also featured will be a AMRA Modified event paying $1,000 to the winner, along with the Pure Stocks paying $500.

"I can't imagine anyone more deserving of this award," Avery said. "Ben is certainly one of the finest artists I've ever worked with."

In his years of theatrical work, Sincell has handled all or part of the scenery, lighting, sound, props, and costumes for over 175 shows.

"The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival couldn't operate without Ben," said Beth Johnson, GLAF executive director. "He's a remarkable person, a superb designer and technical director, and a brilliant artist."

In addition to teaching several acting and technical theatre courses at GCC, Sincell was responsible for a linkage between Our Town Theatre and the college, which allows students to gain "hands-on" stage experiences and therefore provides a more well-rounded education for these individuals. He has also been a speech instructor throughout his tenure.

Dr. Stephen Herman, president of GCC, said Sincell's contributions to the college are immeasurable. "Ben has been a long-standing, hard-working, dedicated advocate and supporter of the arts in Garrett County and at GCC," Herman said. "This recognition is long overdue and very well deserved."

The past recipients of the Friend of the Arts award are Esther Yoder, Dorothy Leighton, Ron Skidmore and Martin Heise, Nancy Learcy, Jane Avery, and Kathryn Sincell-Corwell.

Sincell lives off Spring Glade Road outside Oakland. He and his wife Beverly have three children, Daniel, Angela, and Miriam. They are members of Bethel United Methodist Church in Mountain Lake Park, where Sincell serves as a lay speaker. He is the son of Robert and Hannah Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park.

No. 1 Graduation Rate in Nation — Maryland received the National Education Goals Panel 1999 Gold Star for having the nation's highest high school completion rate.

SAT Scores Rank 5th in Nation — In 2001 Maryland ranked fifth in the nation for its cumulative SAT score among those states with a participation rate of 65% or higher.

Nation's Highest Standard for Elementary Teacher Candidates — The state established the nation's most challenging passing scores for the elementary education teacher certification test.

First in Family Involvement — Maryland was the first state to sign on to the U.S. Department of Education's Partnership for Family Involvement, and Maryland is the only state represented on the steering committee for national family involvement program planning.

First to Create Universal Student Service — Maryland was the first state to make completion of service-learning activities a condition of high school graduation. Maryland students have contributed more than six million hours of service to their communities since 1997.

Among Top Four States for AP Classes — Maryland ranks fourth highest in the nation in the percentage of public high schools offering AP courses.

Gold Star in Reading — The National Education Goals Panel awarded Maryland a 1999 Gold Star for improvement in fourth-grade reading.

Rush to Technology — Maryland is ahead of its self-imposed pace to have each of the state's 1,375 schools wired for technology by the end of the 2002-2003 school year and to improve the ratio of students to mid-to-high level computers to 5:1.

Enrollment can also be made at the school on the evening of Sept. 6 between 6 and 9 p.m.

No enrollments will be accepted after the evening high school classes commence on Monday, Sept. 10. There is a $50 charge for classes and a $20 book fee which will be returned upon completion of the class.

Lake Issues

bear," one member commented.

Rental property owners and renters were the main groups singled out for producing trash that attracts bears into residential areas. The property owners were cited for not providing bear-proof trash containers and providing trash containers that aren't large enough to handle the amounts of garbage generated by renters. As renters leave they put their trash outside the homes, and it may sit for several days before being picked up, according to one meeting participant.

The permitting process to comply with shore erosion prevention standards needs to be streamlined, another participant said. Currently four government agencies must be consulted before such a permit may be granted, and the association would like to see that number trimmed to one.

Dock fees were referred to as "a bargain" by another participant, who suggested the fees be raised in order to provide funding for more DNR staffing at the lake.

The POA meeting concluded with the election of officers for the coming term and six new directors to fill existing vacancies on the DCLPOA board. (See separate story.)

PRB Meeting

The DCL Policy and Review Board's open discussion of the lake's Land Use and Recreation Plan, which covers the DNR's management of a variety of water- and land-based public and private uses of the DCL Recreation Area, brought up several items that may necessitate further study.

Property owners asked that the lake's carrying capacity, which currently stands at 350 boats at peak times, be re-evaluated. DNR Western Region planner Neal Welch told the audience, "We hope to get funding [for a new carrying capacity study] in this fiscal year and undertake the study in the next calendar year," adding that the funding will likely come from DNR.

Other topics discussed included the possibility of a future federal Environmental Protection Agency ban on personal watercraft powered by two-cycle engines because of noise and environmental concerns raised by unburned gas and oil passing through the exhaust and directly into waters. Such a ban would result in a wholesale shift to four-cycle, gasoline-only powered personal watercraft, which burn relatively cleaner and quieter. As DNR equipment ages, that agency is already replacing two-cycle engines with four-cycle engines.

Noise and safety concerns raised by boating traffic in the late night/early morning hours were also discussed. Current DNR regulations allow boating on the lake at all hours of the night, provided proper navigational lights are used. Cpt. David Street of the Natural Resources Police told the meeting participants that because of the unique hilly geography surrounding Deep Creek Lake that can lead to amplified noises, NRP will set up a task group to study the appropriateness of special noise regulations for the lake.

As a result of other discussion, the board will be investigating lake area zoning ordinances to determine if there is a regulation pertaining to the proliferation of rental homes that are similar to "mini-hotels" able to sleep upwards of six to ten vacationers.

Titus asked the board to consider lobbying that the plan be given stature in the Code of Maryland Regulations, noting that in his opinion such action was necessary "in order for this document to have any status other than 'It's a nice document to be read.'" On behalf of the Property Owners Association Titus asked that the board seek a DNR regulation that no application or permit be granted unless it is consistent with the plan.

Another speaker asked for assurance that the state has the necessary resources to enforce the plan. Lake manager Paul Durham of the DNR told the gathering that while his staffing levels of park rangers and Natural Resources Police personnel have remain unchanged over the past decade and were admittedly stretched thin at times, he felt that he had enough personnel for the short term. Beyond five years however, he said that the staffing levels would definitely have to be upped to correspond with anticipated development in the lake area.

The DCL Policy and Review Board will be accepting comments on the land use plan in writing through the end of September. Comments may be mailed to: Neal Welch, Maryland Dept. of Natural Resources, Resource Planning Program, Tawes State Office Building, E-4, Annapolis, MD 21401

THE ARTS ARE ALIVE IN GARRETT COUNTY — Saint-Saëns' Carnival of the Animals was brought to life in a unique way last week as local performer Jane Avery narrated poetry between GLAF's Deep Creek Symphony's performance of various segments of the piece. Conductor David Wroe is pictured at right as he applauds Avery's interpretations. The symphony last Wednesday was designed for young people, who also heard the overture from the Barber of Seville (and thought of Bugs Bunny massaging Elmer Fudd's head), as well as the Spring Concerto from Vivaldi's Four Seasons, which featured 13-year-old violinist Ryo Goto. Classical music was heard throughout the county in a number of venues last week, as the GLAF symphony presented two more concerts, and the students of the Levine on the Mountain music camp gave performances. The music continued at Our Town Theatre on Sunday and Monday with Friedman and Friends, a chamber group of renowned musicians headed by Erick Friedman. Photo by Linda Jose

Choral Society Sets Rehearsals For Christmas

The Garrett Choral Society, under the direction of Nancy K. Learey, will soon begin rehearsals for its annual Christmas concerts. This year's title is "A Stained Glass Christmas."

All interested singers are invited to participate. Rehearsals will be held at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland, every Sunday evening at 6:30 p.m., beginning Sept. 23.

Gallery Hosting Vick's Country Sketches Exhibit

"Country Sketches — Glimpses of a Changing Culture," an exhibit of works by part-time Aurora, W.Va., resident Molly Vick, will open Tuesday, Sept. 7, at The Gallery along Alder Street, located in downtown Oakland. The public is invited to an artist's reception set for Saturday, Sept. 8, from 7 to 9 p.m. at The Gallery.

"Over the past 10 years Vick has observed and recorded the sights at the stock auctions at Terra Alta (W.Va.) and in the Keyser's Ridge area," a Garrett County Arts Council spokesperson said. "This exhibit is the result of her desire to capture the uniqueness and excitement of the livestock auction." The exhibit also includes two of Vick's paintings of scenes from life in the local Amish community.

Vick's early career was in dance as a performer, teacher, and choreographer. She founded the McLean Arts Center in McLean, Va., from which many of her pupils went on to international success. In 1985, unable to continue her dance career, she enrolled in art classes at the renowned Corcoran Art School in Washington, D.C. Since then, Vick, who divides her time between homes in West Virginia and Vienna, Va., has concentrated on painting and drawing.

The Gallery operates as a project of the Garrett County Arts Council and currently features the work of nearly 90 regional artists. The Vick exhibit is The Gallery's third exhibit to showcase the work of a local artist in the facility's newly renovated special exhibit room.

Gallery hours are Mondays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Garrett County Arts Council at 301-334-6580.

Noted Composer To Be Honored At Frostburg St.

The Frostburg State University Department of Music will celebrate the achievements of American composer Emma Lou Diemer in a special concert on Saturday, Sept. 22, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center's Peaier Recital Hall. The composer will be in attendance at this event, which is free and open to the public.

Highlighting the evening will be the world premiere of Diemer's Trio for Piano, Violin, and Cello, commissioned for FSU's Chamberlain Trio, with Dr. Ellen Grolman Schlegel on cello, Dr. Joan DeVee Dixon at the piano, and Dr. Laura Kobayashi on violin. The Collegium Musicum, under the direction of Dr. Karen Soderberg, will perform "Three Madrigals" and "Kyrie." FSU percussionist Ron Horner will present Toccata for Marimba, and trombonist Bryan Anton will perform Psalms 1 and 122 for Bass Trombone and Piano. The Laurel Brass, composed of Anton, Lori Anton, and Sandra Woodward, will conclude the concert with the world premiere of the Quartet for Trumpet, Horn, Trumpet and Piano.

Before the concert, at 7 p.m., Diemer will address the audience regarding her life in music and career as a composer. At the concert's conclusion, audience members will have the opportunity to ask questions and speak with the composer and all participating musicians. During the week preceding the concert, Diemer will be composer-in-residence at FSU to speak with students, lecture in selected music classes, and serve as mentor and advisor to students interested in composition.

Diemer will present an organ recital of her compositions at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Centre St., Cumberland, on Sunday, Sept. 23, at 4 p.m.

Best known for her choral and keyboard works, Diemer has produced a diverse and sophisticated repertoire that also includes works for orchestra, symphonic band, chamber ensemble, voice, solo instru-

In Loving Memory of Our Dear Mother
Kathleen Lucas
on her Birthday, August 31
Today is your birthday, we cannot spend it with you, but we send you a kiss and hug with all our love. The day Jesus took you home, our lives were changed forever. No one knows the pain we feel in our hearts. It's hard to go on without you. Knowing you're in heaven with no more pain and suffering helps us to go on. We know you are happy and you deserve to be. We have so many wonderful memories of you. The day you sang those songs, you were so happy. I think of that day often. We are grateful to have shared that day with you. We will hold on to that memory forever and hold you close to our hearts. Mom, we miss and love you so very much.

Park To Host Concerts By Solo Singer

Bob Hansel, an acoustic solo performer from the Pittsburgh area, will present two free concerts at the Swallow Falls State Park amphitheater this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 1 and 2, at 7:30 p.m. each evening. Hansel, who plays a variety of music, performs both original compositions and covers of songs by famous artists such as The Eagles, Poco, Little Texas, Willie Nelson, John Denver, Bob Dylan, and Neil Young.

Long-time music fans in this area may recall that Hansel was the bass player for the Bo Sloan Band during the early 1980s, a locally popular band that performed at many of the night clubs in the Deep Creek Lake area. He has also performed with Pittsburgh's Back Up & Push over the course of his 25-year career.

Tapes and CDs featuring many of Hansel's original songs will be available for sale at both concerts. In the event of rain, the event will be held in the Swallow Falls Pavilion. For further information, persons may call 301-334-9180.

Cultural Events Series At FSU Is Announced

Another season of the performing arts will begin this fall at Frostburg State University with its 2001-2002 Cultural Events Series. "Artists from around the globe and the country will appear on campus to celebrate and share their talents with area audiences," stated an FSU spokesperson.

Parents' Weekend will bring the Massenkoff Russian Folk Festival to Frostburg for a special show on Saturday, Sept. 29, at 8:30 p.m. in the Cordts Center Main Arena. This production stars celebrated singer Nikolai Massenkoff and features the Balalaika Ensemble with soloists and the Russian Souvenir Dancers. Designed to entertain all ages, the festival celebrates the Russian spirit and its diverse and rich cultural heritage. This tour of the Massenkoff Russian Folk Festival is presented in partnership with the FSU Campus Activities Board.

Grammy-winner Poncho Sanchez and his Latin Jazz Band will perform Saturday, Oct. 13, at 8 p.m. This performance will take place in the Cordts Center Main Arena. The veteran conguero — translated "conga player" — is on a mission to share his musical passion for what he describes as "homegrown American music for everybody." This tour of Poncho Sanchez is made possible by a grant from the Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation, in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts Regional Touring Program.

In celebration of Homecoming Weekend, the band America will perform on Saturday, Nov. 3, at 9 p.m. in the Cordts Center Main Arena. Opening for America will be singer-songwriter Jonathan Edwards. One of the most influential groups of the 1970s, America now features original members Dewey Bunnell and Gerry Beckley. "The group's clean vocal harmonies, uncluttered arrangements, and evocative lyrics continue to attract fans around the globe," the spokesperson said. Some of their top hits include "A Horse With No Name," "Ventura Highway," "I Need You," "Tin Man," "Sister Golden Hair," "Muskrat Love," and the 1980's hit "You Can Do Magic." Their collection, History/America's Greatest Hits, has sold more than 4 million copies. Edwards is best known for his '70s hit "Sunshine." This tour of America and Jonathan Edwards is presented in partnership with the FSU Alumni Association.

Christmas From Dublin with Three Irish Tenors will return to Frostburg for two performances after last year's sell-out show. The tenors will take the stage on Monday, Nov. 20, and Tuesday, Nov. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center's Pealer Recital Hall. Tenors Ciaran Nagle, Anthony Norton, and Tom Cregan will join Irish harpist Jacqueline Whelan and seanachai (storyteller) and comedian Jimmy Kennedy, plus a host of Irish dancers and musicians, "for a distinctively Irish celebration of the Christmas spirit."

The hit musical Big River — The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn will come to the FSU Performing Arts Center's Drama Theatre on Sunday, Feb. 3, and Monday, Feb. 4. Sunday's performances are scheduled for 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., and Monday's performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. Mark Twain's classic comes to life with music, performed by a pit orchestra, from country songwriter Roger Miller and libretto by William Hauptman. The winner of seven Tony awards, including Best Musical, Big River "showcases the American spirit through America's most beloved form of entertainment, the Broadway musical," the FSU spokesperson said.

The Tibetan Monks from the Drepung Loseling Monastery will present "Sacred Music Sacred Dance for World Healing" on Sunday, March 3, at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center's Pealer Recital Hall. The performance transports audiences to the exotic world of Tibet with the famous multiphonic singers, who practice a type of overtone singing unique to the Tibetan culture, along with masked dancers clad in colorful costumes and accompanied by traditional temple instruments. The Drepung Loseling Monks were featured on the Golden Globe nominated soundtrack of the movie Seven Years in Tibet. This tour of the Tibetan Monks from the Drepung Loseling Monastery is presented in partnership with the FSU Center for International Education.

The pioneering dance company Philadanco, otherwise known as the Philadelphia Dance Company, will appear on Saturday, March 16, and Sunday, March 17, in the Performing Arts Center's Drama Theatre. Saturday's performance is set for 8 p.m., while Sunday's performance is a matinee at 2 p.m. This company from the "City of Brotherly Love" has, according to Dance Magazine, established itself as one of America's foremost dance ensembles. Known for its adventurous choreography that fuses ballet, modern and ethnic dance influences, Philadanco has performed at many world-renowned venues, including the Lincoln Center, the Kennedy Center, Jacob's Pillow, and Madison Square Garden. Other performances include collaborations with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Louis Bellson Orchestra, and the Duke Eilington Orchestra.

This project is partially supported by a grant from the Pennsylvania Performing Arts on Tour, a program developed and funded by the Vira I. Heinz Endowment, the William Penn Foundation, the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts (a state agency), and the Pew Charitable Trusts; and is administered by the Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation. This tour is also supported by a grant from the Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts Regional Touring Program.

Concluding the season on Thursday, April 4, will be Edgar Allan Poe — Once Upon a Midnight, featuring John Astin. This play will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center's Drama Theatre. Known to millions as Gomez, the patriarch of TV's "The Addams Family," Astin proves that he is capable of serious theatre, as he transforms himself into the misunderstood genius and visionary. "Using a blend of the historical with the supernatural, this show confronts the misconceptions and distortions of Poe to reveal the man known as the father of modern detective fiction and a pioneer of science fiction. Along the way, Astin shows the poet's macabre humor, loving tenderness, and inner torment as Poe struggles with his inner demons and the lure of alcohol," the spokesperson said.

CES also offers its expanded dinner theatre program, which includes a uniquely designed multicourse meal with non-alcoholic beverages, tax, and gratuity. Dinner Theatre partner restaurants are Fratelli's Italian Restaurant, Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant, JB's Steak Cellar, Leone's Italian Restaurant, Larry's Blues Cellar, and Oxford House. Information regarding dinner-theatre meal prices, menu selections, and reservation times available and meal purchases can be obtained by calling the CES Box Office.

She holds degrees from the Eastman School of Music and Yale University, and studied with noted composers Paul Hindemith and Roger Sessions. In Memory of my husband on our 56th Wedding Anniversary, September 1, 1945 to 2001

The month comes with sad regret it brings days I will never forget.
Though you left us without a goodbye
Our memories of you will never die.
I miss you more than anyone knows
As each day passes my emptiness grows.
Tears I shed, we wipe away.
But the ache in my heart will never go away.
No one knows the grief I bear
When the family meets and you're not with us.
But the memories you left will always be there.
I miss you so much,

Kitty

Delinquent Maryland Taxpayers Are Urged To Seek Amnesty

Maryland Comptroller William Donald Schaefer announced this week that a two-month tax amnesty period beginning September 1 will give delinquent taxpayers a last-ditch opportunity to pay their back taxes and interest without paying a civil or criminal penalty. Schaefer warned, however, that those who fail to take advantage of this amnesty period face stiffer fines and possible jail sentences if they have not reported, not paid, or have underreported their tax liabilities prior to December 31, 2000.

Maryland Tax Amnesty begins September 1 and will end October 31, 2001. Taxpayers who qualify for tax amnesty include those who have failed to file a return or pay eligible tax liabilities due on or before December 31, 2000, or have underreported taxes due on or before that date. Taxpayers under criminal investigation by the Attorney General's Office, a state prosecutor, or a state's attorney are not eligible for amnesty from criminal prosecution. Individuals and businesses failing to settle delinquent state taxes during the tax amnesty period face legal actions that could include criminal consequences. Effective November 1, fines will increase from $5,000 to $10,000 for each violation, and there are also provisions for up to five years in jail.

As provided in legislation passed earlier this year by the Maryland General Assembly, the comptroller's office will begin an aggressive enforcement effort using new, state-of-the-art technologies that will greatly enhance identifying and locating taxpayers who neglect to file or underreport income and sales or withholding taxes. In addition, the office will add audit, enforcement, and collection personnel and will increase criminal prosecutions.

The following taxes are eligible for tax amnesty: personal income tax, employer withholding tax, corporate income tax, sales and use tax, and admissions and amusement tax.

"We believe that thousands of delinquent taxpayers will take advantage of this tax amnesty opportunity," Comptroller Schaefer said. "Taxpayers who choose not to participate should be aware that severe criminal and civil penalties go into effect immediately following the tax amnesty period."

Revenue collected during the tax amnesty period will be distributed as follows: $2 million for hiring additional tax compliance and enforcement personnel and for publicizing the amnesty program, $8 million to provide grants for public education, $10 million to the Volunteer Fire Company Assistance Fund, and $30 million to the state's general fund.

The comptroller's office is attempting to notify those eligible for the tax amnesty program about how much they owe in back taxes and interest and the amount of penalty to be avoided under the amnesty program. In addition, a widespread advertising and public relations campaign will urge those eligible to "Seek Amnesty."

The only previous tax amnesty period in Maryland was held in 1987. "Maryland taxpayers should have no expectation that tax amnesty will be offered again," Schaefer said. "Delinquent taxpayers should come forward and take advantage of this limited opportunity."

To obtain a tax amnesty application and tax forms, persons may visit www.marylandtaxes.com on-line or call 1-800-MD-TAXES. E-mail requests for forms should be directed to: amnesty@comp.state.md.us. Written requests for applications and forms should be sent to Amnesty Forms Request, Comptroller of Maryland, P.O. Box 1829, Annapolis, MD 21404-1829.

YARD SALE BENEFITS HOSPICE - Hospice of Garrett County received a $1,237 boost from two local women who decided to donate their yard sale proceeds to the organization, for which they also serve as volunteer caregivers. Betty Trickett, Mtn. Lake Park, and Doris Hershman, Oakland, asked their friends to give them items they had left over from their own personal yard sales, and then held another sale with those items. Pictured from left above are Mrs. Hershman; Brenda Butscher, executive director of Hospice of Garrett County; and Ms. Trickett. Hospice provides care, counseling, and assistance to terminally ill persons and their families.

After-School Program Slated In Grantsville

The Grantsville After-School Program will begin its fifth year of operation on September 4 at the Grantsville Senior Center. The program is sponsored by the Governor's Office on Crime, Control, and Prevention, and Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc.

The program operates between the hours of 3 and 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday, providing tutoring, mentoring, and recreational activities for students grades 3 through 8. Karen Wood, program coordinator, has been with the program since its inception, and Jeanette Bland and Denise Fazenbaker are aides at the program.

For additional information or an application for enrollment, persons may contact Linda Green, program director, at 301-334-9431 or 888-877-8403.

Book Club Sets Next Discussion

The Teen Book Club, sponsored by the Ruth Enlow Library, will hold its next discussion on the novel When JFK Was My Father by Amy Gordon on Saturday, Sept. 15, at 2 pm. at the Oakland branch of the library.

When JFK Was My Father is described by Ruth Enlow librarian Keela Pfaff as "a funny and dramatic story full of interesting characters, ghosts, dramatic plot twists," and dilemmas that teenagers of all ages can relate to. The book's main character, 13-year-old Georgia Hughes, uses her vivid imagination to cope with her troubled family life. An American living in Rio de Janeiro in the early 1960s, with a snobbish mother, distant father, and a luxurious mansion run by servants, Georgia dreams of life in a little yellow house with a close-knit family. Her life goes from bad to worse, however, when she is shipped off to boarding school in Massachusetts.

To cope with feelings of alienation at her new school and her parents' marital problems, Georgia fantasizes that she is President Kennedy's daughter. In her mind, JFK is the warm and attentive parent she has never had. As she drifts more and more away from reality, Georgia has to decide, as many teens have to, just how unhappy she really is and where she belongs.

Begun in November of last year, the Teen Book Club meets every other month, and participants have the opportunity to share opinions of that month's book with other members. Following each discussion, the teens choose the book selection for the next meeting.

Teens wishing to participate in next month's discussion may pick up a copy of Gordon's book at the Oakland library to review before the meeting. For more information, persons may call the Ruth Enlow Library at 301-334-3996.

Garrett County SKIES

by Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

Dr. Bob Doyle directs the planetarium at Frostburg State University. Since the mid-'70s, Doyle has been writing sky columns for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure, call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle also hosts "SkyWatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM, Frostburg State's radio station that transmits at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM around Oakland. Dr. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

THE SUN — In early September, the sun shines for 13.0 hours each day, which falls back to 11.8 hours in late September. September sunrises advance from 6:45 a.m. (start of month) to 7:12 a.m. (end of month). During September, the sun's peak height drops from 58 degrees on September 1 to 47 degrees as September closes. Sunsets fall back from 7:50 to 7:03 p.m. The earliest time to see the planet Mars and the brighter stars is about 40 minutes after sunset. Fall officially begins around sunrise on September 22. On this date the sun's direct rays cross the equator, moving from north to south. Over most of the world the sun rises due east and sets due west on this day. On September 25 and 26, day and night are balanced, each being 12 hours in length.

THE MOON — The moon is full on the evening of September 2, rising at dusk and hanging in the sky all night long. By September 10 the moon has shrunk to half full, then seen only in the morning sky. On that same date the moon will appear near the planet Saturn in the southern dawn. On September 12 the crescent moon will be just over the bright planet Jupiter in the 4 a.m. eastern sky. September 15 will see the crescent moon near the planet Venus low in the 6 a.m. eastern dawn. For the next few days the moon will be lost in the sun's glare, reappearing in the western dusk after September 18. By September 24 the moon will have grown to half full, appearing as a letter "D" in the southern evening sky. On that same date the moon appears near the planet Mars. The "D" shaped moon offers the best opportunity to spot its craters and mountains with binoculars or telescopes. September ends with a nearly full moon.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS — Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine more steadily than the twinkling night stars. But if a planet appears very close to the horizon or if it's windy, even the planet's light may flicker. In September, the planet Mercury may be briefly glimpsed very low in the western dusk. The other three bright planets can be seen together at dawn. Most conspicuous is the brilliant planet Venus, low in the east. Above and to the right is the bright planet Jupiter. Higher and yet farther to the right is the planet Saturn.

SEPTEMBER'S BEST SIGHTS — Locate the Big Dipper low in the northwest. Extend its handle outward and you'll come to the bright golden star Arcturus, soon to set in the west. High in the southern evening sky is the Summer Triangle, a large trio of bright stars that points south. Two bright fall evening stars make their first appearance on September evenings. Low in the northeast is the bright golden star Capella while low in the southeast is the bright star Fomalhaut. September is the last month to easily spot the bright pinkish star Antares low in the southwestern dusk (it's to the right and below the planet Mars).

SEPTEMBER ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES — The free public showings on Sundays at the Frostburg State Planetarium will resume on September 9 with "Spaceship Earth"; these hour-long presentations start at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. The Frostburg State Planetarium is just off the front lobby of Tawes Hall. The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet on Friday, Sept. 21, at the LaVale Public Library along the National Highway (Route 40) at 7:30 p.m. All interested sky gazers from the tri-state area are welcome.

After-School Program Slated In Loch Lynn

The Loch Lynn After-School Program will begin Tuesday, Sept. 4, at the Loch Lynn Community Building, 302 Roanoke Avenue. The program is sponsored by the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc. and Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc.

The program operates Monday through Friday from 3 until 6 p.m., providing tutoring, mentoring, and recreational activities for students grades 3 through 5 from the Loch Lynn/Mtn. Lake Park area. Transportation is provided by Garrett Transit Service from Yough Glades, Broad Ford, and Dennett Road elementary schools to the Loch Lynn program.

Program staff are Mindy Paugh, coordinator; and Patricia Falkner and Kathy Kerr, program aides.

Judge Jones To Retire From The Bench October 1

Chief District Court Judge William G. Jones of Charlotte, N.C., will retire October 1 after nearly 25 years on the bench. Judge Jones is the son of Lloyd "Casey" Jones, Oakland, and the late Ella Jones.

Jones was a leader in the planning and implementation of the Family Court in North Carolina and in Charlotte. He was instrumental in starting programs such as Guardian ad Litem and the Children's Law Center, and has long been active in the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges. During his tenure as chief judge, the SelfServe Center, the Child Support and Mental Health offices in the courthouse, Truancy Court, Dependency Mediation, Family Drug Treatment Court, DWI Treatment Court, Parenting Apart, and the Model Courts Project were all initiated.

"Mecklenburg County is in the forefront of improving court proceedings, thanks to the dedicated work of Judge Jones," Chief Justice I. Beverly Lake Jr. said. "His work with Family Court in particular has enabled the court to better meet the needs of children and families. We are losing a forward-thinking, knowledgeable, and hard-working judge."

Jones, a 1967 graduate of Davidson College and a 1970 graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Law, was a clerk for U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan for two years. He practiced law with Casey and Daly, PA, and as an assistant public defender before being elected in 1976 as a district court judge. He was appointed chief district court judge in 1998.

Jones said he decided to retire because he has substantially completed what he set out to accomplish when he became chief judge. "I've had a long and fulfilling career and have been privileged to work with many wonderful and talented people who have made me look good. Even though I'm retiring from being a day-to-day decision maker and administrator, I intend to remain actively involved with courts and how they address the problems and needs of the community," he said.

Other accomplishments during the time Jones has been chief judge include transforming the child support and criminal administrative courts, starting a child care center in the courthouse, developing a strategic plan for the court and its justice system partners; a successful bond campaign for a new courthouse; and a joint project with Community-Based Initiatives to identify and address issues of racial disparity in the courts.

"Bill Jones is one of the top juvenile court judges in the nation," stated Charlotte lawyer George Laughrun. "He's really going to be missed."

"A Touch of Glory"

All around us is the evidence of labor. Everything we use...nearly everything we touch has involved the labor of someone at some time. The process of being born involves some of the most difficult labor there is. Just ask the mother who is drenched in perspiration after giving birth. Even God labored for six days in creating the universe, for in Genesis 2:2 we read that "...on the seventh day He rested from all His work."

So...the eminent positive thinker, Dr. Peale, wants us to be "enthusiastic" about our job. Perhaps you think, "That is easy for him to say!" Maybe you don't feel that your job is so glorious. Yet, if you do your job to the best of your ability and for the glory of God, you cannot help but show enthusiasm to those around you.

As you celebrate Labor Day this year, won't you take time to think about worshipping the Creator each week in His house? He will show you how to put a "touch of glory" in your life.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE PROOF IS IN THE TASTING

September 2, 2001

Background Scripture:
John 2:1-11.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 77:11-15.

The incidents recorded in John's gospel may be read on several different levels of meaning. This episode often serves as a scriptural blessing on the institution of Christian marriage. It is also a story that gives us some insight into the relationship between Jesus and his mother. On a metaphorical level John is telling us that the "new wine" of Jesus is superior to the sacramental waters of the Jewish purification ritual.

John also speaks of this as "the first of his (Jesus') signs." We may mentally translate "signs" into the more common term "miracles," but that word occurs only twelve times in the RSV Bible and none in any of the four gospels. Ancient people had no concept of scientific laws and thus no concept of "miracles".

As a boy I used to love to read the rhymed Burma Shave signs along the road— "Joe said...his car couldn't skid...This monument shows...it could...and did!...Burma Shave". These red and white signs and their humorous verse were not intended to be the message. The message was: "buy Burma Shave." So it was with the wondrous works of Jesus. They were not the message, but the power and glory of God manifest in Jesus.

Levels of Meaning

In the 35 years that I have been writing this column, I have addressed this passage many times. Still, each time I read it, something pops out that I had not thought of or fully explored previously. For example, Mary's simple statement to her son, "They have no wine" (v. 3). Why would Mary have said this to Jesus. Was she simply reporting on what had happened to the celebration, or was she in expectation that her son could do something about it? I doubt that Mary expected him to turn water into wine or had any idea just how he could alleviate this crisis, but there is in it a tone of expectancy.

I have sometimes thought that, for his "first sign," Jesus might have picked a more important crisis than the host's embarrassment when the wedding celebration lasted longer than his supply of wine. But it also occurs to me that Cana stands as a reminder that nothing in my life is too trivial to God in prayer. If a mere wedding feast was not too unimportant for God's concern, then there have certainly been lots of things that I have not shared with God in prayer because I thought them not worthy enough.

I am also intrigued at Jesus' response, "Oh woman, what have you to do with me? My hour is not yet come." This reply could be taken as a rebuke, but to me it sounds like some of the subtle playful banter between two persons who know and understand each other pretty well. Whatever his intention, her instruction to the servants indicates that Mary and Jesus have understood each other quite well: "Do whatever he tells you".

Mary's Confidence

Note that Mary never said to Jesus that he should run out and buy some more wine, much less suggest that he turn the water into wine. She doesn't presume to tell him how to solve this problem, but she is confident that he can do something. This high expectancy certainly must have been an important factor in what follows. Jesus tells the servants, "'Fill the jars with water.' And they filled them to the brim". That done, he instructs them again: "Now, draw some out, and take it to the steward of the feast.

Up to now they had no way of knowing what Jesus was doing and no guarantee that their obedience would bring them anything but humiliation and censure. But Mary's expectancy was contagious and, although they understood nothing of what was going on or how it would end, they did as they were told. On a rudimentary level this is faith—taking the risk to act on a promise or assurance.

I have no way of knowing if this "sign" would have occurred if Mary had not come expectantly her son, if he had not reacted to this need with compassion, and if the servants had not done as they were told. But this incident, I believe, is instructive for us and our relationship to God in Christ. Prayers that are not expectant are not really prayers. We can not often know how God will help us, but we need to live in expectation that He will and discover for ourselves that the proof of the promise is to be found in the tasting.

LESS WORK FOR YOUR DENTIST

The philosophy of dentists today is to make you work harder at keeping gums and teeth healthy so that there is less work to do when you come to him for your check-up. Today, your dentist takes the time to talk to you about how best to take care of your mouth, with brushing, flossing, massaging and rinsing.

We carry a great many dental health products in our pharmacy that can help to put into practice what your dentist is asking you to do. And, our personnel are trained to answer your questions about any of these products.

Antiques

by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Did you ever sit on an antique majolica garden seat? Were the breakable seats taken inside in the winter? Times were different in the 19th century, when the garden seat was most popular.

One of the largest groups of majolica wares made in England was related to gardens and conservatories (glass-sided, indoor garden rooms). Jardinieres, flowerpots, stands, pedestals, fountains and garden seats were made in large quantities until about 1914. Majolica garden pieces were ornamental because of the fragile nature of the material. They could easily chip or crack. They were kept inside glass rooms and protected from the weather. Victorian majolica garden seats are now so expensive, it is unlikely that they would be placed outside.

Q. I was going to throw out my 1950s Hamilton Beach blender, but my daughter had a fit. She said it's a collectible. I decided to give it to her — but I'm wondering if she's daffy. If she's not, what's the blender worth? It's the kind with a round base.

A. Early electrical appliances like toasters and waffle irons have become popular with collectors. The Waring Blendor, called a Miracle Mixer at the time, was introduced at a Chicago trade show in 1937. World War II interrupted the development and production of blenders. After the war, blenders were produced by dozens of different companies. A 1950s Hamilton Beach blender with a chrome base sells for $65 to $75. A blender with a painted base sells for $10 to $15 less.

Paw's corner

Q. I've heard that cats should not chew on plants because they could be poisonous. Is this true? Are all plants poisonous to cats?

A. Some plants are toxic to both cats and dogs (and other pets). Not all are poisonous; for example, catnip is very popular with cats, and many owners grow the herb in the garden, snipping off a few sprigs now and then.

However, many popular household plants can cause digestive problems, mouth irritation and other troubles. Here are a few that should be placed well out of reach of your pets, listed courtesy of the Iams Company:

- Aloe vera plants
- Philodendrons
- Calla lily and Easter lily
- English ivy
- Dieffenbachia
- False Jerusalem cherry
- Oleander, azaleas, foxglove and geraniums (popular garden plants)
- Bulbs, including amaryllis, tulip, iris and daffodil
- Holiday plants like poinsettias and mistletoe

Hang these or place them out of reach of your pets; if your cats like to climb, consider getting rid of these plants (or not purchasing them), or placing them in your garden instead.

If your pet likes to wander in the garden, keep him or her away from harmful plants by any means. Hang wind chimes near the plants to scare cats away; or spray the plants with a mixture of lemon juice and water. Try placing citrus peels, pine cones or cayenne pepper around the base of the plants.

Check with your veterinarian, as well as a gardening specialist, for a list of plants that are safe for your pet. Remember, don't spray the plants with chemical pesticides if your pet may be chewing on them; the chemicals can be harmful, too. Look for alternative pesticides or insecticides.

If your pet does ingest a plant listed as harmful, keep a close eye on him or her for a day or two. If your dog or cat develops digestive problems, stops eating, seems lethargic or shows any other signs of being "out of sorts," take it to the veterinarian immediately.

DCL Permitting Requirements Workshop Topic

The Deep Creek Lake Natural Resources Management Area will conduct a free class on the lake permitting process for lake property owners and realtors at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 15, at the Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park.

"The meeting will provide lake area property owners with an opportunity to learn about the lake permitting process, relevant regulations, and types of activities that may be permitted on the park buffer strip and easement property," a DCLNRMA spokesperson said.

Participants will have the opportunity to ask questions of DCLNRMA staff, and persons unable to attend are encouraged to submit their questions to the staff at 301-387-4111. The spokesperson added that inquiries concerning the buy-down and other issues not related to the lake permitting process will not be addressed during the meeting, but may be directed to the Maryland Department of General Services at 410-767-4089.

The DCL Natural Resource Management Area is a unit of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources State Forest and Park Service. DNR owns and manages DCL State Park, the lake itself, and the buffer strip of land that surrounds the lake's waters.

Weight Loss Puzzles Doctors

ATLANTA, GA -- Doctors were surprised when two separate studies found that a natural dietary supplement could help cause significant weight loss.

Although not conclusive, both studies found that patients receiving the formula called Bio-Rex 3000®, lost more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to decrease the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

According to a spokesperson for Phillips Gulf Corporation, the exclusive North American distributor of Bio-Rex 3000, the company is considering additional studies in order to get federal approval to make pharmaceutical claims. Currently, weight loss claims for the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement are limited. However, with the requisite approval, the company could say that Bio-Rex 3000 decreases sugar cravings, increases metabolism and interferes with the body's ability to produce excess fat.

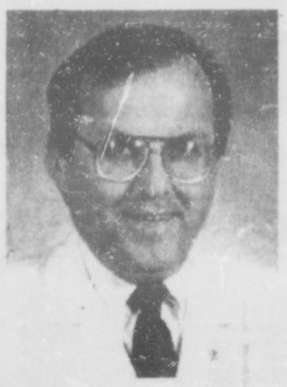
Arthritis, Lupus Support Groups Set Presentation



Dr. Anthony DiBartolomeo, chief of rheumatology, allergy, and immunology at West Virginia University in Morgantown, will present a program on soft tissue pain at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 4, at Garrett Rehab Services in Oakland. The program is a combined meeting of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Arthritis/Fibromylagia Support Group and the local Lupus Support Group.

Dr. DiBartolomeo is board certified in internal medicine and rheumatology, and has received numerous honors and awards for his teaching ability and clinical skills. His special interests include rheumatoid arthritis and systemic lupus erythematosus.

The free program is open to the public. Garrett Rehab Services is located at 6500 Thayer Center, off Garrett Highway. For further information, persons may call 301-334-9767.

Omission Noted

In last week's issue of The Republican, a picture and story were published on page A-15 about a trip to Washington, D.C., taken by students of Southern High School. The information provided for the picture omitted one student, ninth grader Robby Stemple, who was indeed in the photograph. Also on the trip but not in the picture were Stephen Eiswert and Katie Richter.

Safety Reminders Issued For School Transportation

It is that time of year again when children are headed back to school and many of them do not use public transportation. The Maryland State Police is reminding all Marylanders who walk or ride a bike to school to "strive to survive." Pedestrian accidents are one of the leading causes of unintentional injury-related death among school-aged children ages 5-14.

"We must do all we can to ensure our children get to and from school safely," said MSP superintendent Col. David B. Mitchell. "We suggest you plan a route for your child, then walk it with them. If possible, have them accompanied by an older child."

Also, while the actual school bus trip is among the safest forms of transportation, there are substantial pedestrian risks associated with the "total trip" as the child walks to and from the bus stop, waits for the bus, gets on and off the bus at home and at school, and sometimes crosses the street to and from the bus. The basics of safe street crossing are: stop at the edge of the street; look left-right-left for traffic; cross only when no cars or trucks are coming; and keep looking while you walk across.

"Although young children may be able to recite the rules of safe crossing, this does not mean that they can actually do it right every time," Mitchell stated. "It takes many years for children to develop the understanding and skills they need. Most kindergarten through third grade children have no real sense of danger, cannot judge speed and distance to decide how fast a car is approaching, and often assume that the vehicle driver can see them if they can see the driver."

Mitchell reminded pedestrians and bicyclists of the following safety tips:

For pedestrians:

- Be an alert and courteous walker. Don't jaywalk, observe crosswalk markings and traffic control devices.
- When walking on the road, always walk facing traffic. Walk as far from the roadway as possible.
- Always watch approaching traffic to make sure the oncoming driver sees you and is not driving toward you.
- Always wear light colored clothing, especially if you have to walk at night.
- Remember, walking on a controlled access highway is prohibited and dangerous.

For bicyclists:

- Bicycles are vehicles, too. Know and obey state and local laws that apply to bicyclists, including the rules of the road.
- All bikes must be equipped with a bell or other device that can give a warning signal that can be heard 100 feet away.
- After dark or in bad weather, bikes must be equipped with a white light on the front and a red light or reflector on the rear.
- Bikes are prohibited on controlled access highways or roads with speed limits of more than 50 mph.
- Bicyclists, like pedestrians, can be hard to see. Wear light colored clothing and be alert for motor vehicles.

Each year across the nation thousands of pedestrians are killed and about 100,000 are injured in traffic accidents. This year to date, 51 pedestrians have died in Maryland. Young children and the elderly are more likely to be killed or injured in a pedestrian crash.

"These senseless tragedies can be prevented," stated Mitchell. "While it is easy to blame drivers, they are not always responsible, or at fault. We can all avoid potential injuries, and even death, by reviewing and following the advice for safe street crossing. Do not be a distracted driver. Pay full time and attention to the roadway. Remember, our children are now in school and we should always strive to survive."

Adorable Adoptables

SITTIN' PRETTY — These photogenic pooches are among the selection of dogs and cats currently waiting to be adopted at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Fluffy, left, is a young female terrier/poodle mix who would make a wonderful lap dog. She also has a male companion who arrived with her that would make a fine pet as well. Missy, at right, is a medium size 6-year-old female mixed breed who would also make a great lap dog. Both animals are housebroken, a most excellent criterion for lap doggedness. For adoption information, persons may call the animal shelter at 301-334-3553. The facility is located along Oakland Sang Run Road just north of the Oakland Golf Club, and is open every day but Sunday and this coming Monday Labor Day holiday.

Recent Beach Visitors Alerted To Rabid Kitten

A wide-ranging alert regarding the discovery of a rabid kitten at a popular Ocean City tourist facility has been issued by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH). Anyone who may have had contact with a 12-week-old black and white kitten living at Frontier Town between Aug. 7 and 23 is urged to contact a personal physician or local health department.

The rabid kitten lived in the amusement park section of Frontier Town underneath the barbershop and general store, and was also seen wandering in the area of the miniature golf course and campground entrance. Seven individuals are currently undergoing rabies post-exposure prophylaxis after being bitten while trying to pick up the kitten.

Rabies is a fatal disease, and anyone who may have been exposed to the rabid kitten's saliva via a bite, scratch, or fresh open wound may need to receive a series of immunization vaccine shots commencing immediately. There is no guranteed treatment after symptoms appear.

Persons with concerns or questions may contact the Garrett County Health Department's Environmental Health Services office at 301-334-8980. General information on rabies is also available at the state's DHMH web site at www.dhmh.state.md.us.

Apple Butter Boil Slated At Swallow Falls

The annual Apple Butter Boil and Corn Roast at Swallow Falls State Park is set for this Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 1-2, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The food, crafts, and music festival features demonstrations of apple butter making, chain saw artistry, and basket weaving. A pottery display will also be featured Sunday.

Two concerts are slated for the event. The Glade Players, a local hammered dulcimer quintet, will perform Saturday from 1 to 2 p.m., and Frostburg State University professor and acoustic musician Greg Latta will perform Sunday from 11 to noon and again 1 to 2 p.m. Latta's performances will feature hammered dulcimer music and a demonstration of the "limber jack."

Children's craft activities will be available, and samples of apple butter will be for sale along with homemade bread on Sunday. Locally raised corn, hotdogs, and refreshments will be available both days of the event.

While not a part of the festival itself, at 7:30 p.m. both evenings Pittsburgh-based solo acoustic musician Bob Hansel will perform at the Swallow Falls amphitheater. Hansel's concerts feature a wide variety of music, including covers of songs made famous by the Eagles, John Denver, Neil Young, Bob Dylan, and John Prine. In the event of rain Hansel will perform in the Swallow Falls pavilion.

Admission to the park is $2 per person with free access to the Apple Butter Boil and Corn Roast festival and Bob Hansel performances, plus Herrington Manor State Park. For further information persons may call the Swallow Falls office at 301-334-9180.

K-9 DRUG PATROL AT WORK WITH RAILEY'S HELP — A donation from Railey Realty Inc. has led to the acquisition of Tara, a nationally certified drug detection canine and the newest member of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force (GCNTF). The female yellow Labrador shown above with (from left) Sheriff Dick Sanders, Railey Realty representatives Bill Weisegerber and Kevin Lilier, and Maryland State Police Tfc. Robert Sharp. Tara's nose can pinpoint hidden marijuana, cocaine, methamphetamine, hash, or any derivative of those drugs. At the time of her April purchase by the GCNTF, Tara had already completed 12 weeks of narcotics training in Florida, where her Garrett County handler, Dfc. Dave McLaughlin, joined her for a two-week basic handler course before she completed her final narcotic detection certification requirements. Tara and McLaughlin then completed a 10-week drug detection canine school at the Maryland Department of Corrections canine facility in Hagerstown before she assumed her local post fulltime in June. Since then Tara has helped the local investigators seize over ½ pound of marijuana with a street value of $1,200 and one vehicle in Garrett County, and assisted the Preston County (W.Va.) Sheriff's Office in a search that netted four drug-related arrests. "Railey Realty's concern and commitment to its community is the reason Tara is hard at work to make and keep Garrett County a safe place for all of us to live," remarked McLaughlin.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Margaret Hershberger-Wagner with her brother-in-law and sister-in-law, Danny and Ann Wagner of Cresaptown, took in the third annual Western Maryland Truck Show at Grantsville Park last Saturday.

The show featured everything from pickup trucks to road tractor-trailer trucks. It is a puzzle to me what they judge on trucks. They don't include vintage trucks, which I can see how you could judge. Unfortunately, Margaret's husband Jim was on a major road trip to Maine on the interstate highway, where the real show of the big rigs occurs every day. Margaret was visited Friday evening and Saturday by her younger daughter, Ann McLister, and her younger children, Paul and Colleen.

I enjoyed a rare weekend with my girls (the two younger ones). They arrived home from a week at the beach with Lloyd and his parents, Al and Ruthe Sussman of Columbia. But my poor Claire did not even get a chance to catch a rest before a full day of band practice from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday. I can understand that the band needs to put the finishing touches on their show before the first competition in a few weeks, but I also think that it is a bit cruel to make the band kids have a full weekend of marching practice on the last weekend of their summer vacation. Since she was away she missed the Saturday practice that the band also had.

Somehow I managed to get my tanned, semi-blonde, tired three girls out the door today in time for the first bus ride of the new school year. Some way, Meredith remembered to bring her backpack to church on Sunday morning for a special "Blessing of the Back Packs" conducted by Pastor Pat Pietrzogle during the children's sermon. She blessed the students and their school supplies, as well as the teachers and the support system that make it possible to give the kids the best possible education.

Next Sunday during Labor Day weekend, Pastor Pat asks the children and adults to bring along to church an object associated with their work. That is not too hard for me, as it is not too hard to carry a couple paint brushes in my purse. But I don't know what Bob Brenneman can carry in, as he is a stone mason — maybe a trowel that is not too big. What about George Beitzel!? Will he bring in a chainsaw which represents his work as a logger. When Pastor Pat mentioned that once she had someone bring in a couple chickens, I just knew what was going on in my twin nephews' heads. Would they bring in their prize-winning chickens? If they do, I can't blame them, as what kid could resist a chance to bring a live chicken into the church service? Or else they may bring in a bucket of night crawlers, as this is a money-maker for the twins. It will be something to look forward to the kind of things from all the many lines of works of our congregation members. Stay tuned to my column next week to find out what the most interesting things that people will bring in will be.

A side benefit of my attendance at church last Sunday was that Audrey Brenneman offered me some Rose of Sharon blossoms. They are bell-shaped flowers with a deep red center. While I stopped across the road ready to turn into her driveway, I noticed a huge well-drilling machine. I learned that the salt from Route 495 had polluted her well water, so the state of Maryland will pick up the bill for her new well.

Anyway, she was across the road chatting with her neighbors, Mrs. McCrobie and daughter, who is one year older than Claire. I tried to remember the name of my classmate in school named McCrobie. I drew a complete blank until I was at home and realized it maybe was Carl, but I was not sure. I talked Mrs. McCrobie out of a couple stalks of orange Japanese lantern pods and even a couple plants of it. I hope they survive the move because they are excellent doll dress material.

I wasn't able to rush right home with them, as I had to detour to Ralph and Ethel Buckel's because Ethel told me at church she had some nice gladiolus flowers. That was a very big understatement. Besides the ordinary beautiful colors of lavender, scarlet, and white with pink stripes, there was a very unusual shade of green.

Green flowers are pretty rare, especially this special shade. A lot of gardeners around Bittinger are very generous to me with their lovely flowers. Pretty soon I will limit my flowers to the autumn colors — red, orange, yellow, brown, and rust. I like earth colors, but I will miss the blue, lavenders, and pink flowers. I will miss the fresh green, too.

I will announce some new neighbors on Legeer Road. The old Wiley place is now "Buck Hill Farm" recently moved into by Bill and Debbie Atkinson, formerly of Middletown and Slate Hill in New York state. Last week I was intrigued by Bill's cherry red 1931 Ford Model T pickup truck when we both were at Buckel's Store. It is a real "cherry," in mint condition, and I heard that it runs great. Imagine a 70-year-old truck in perfect condition! I wonder how many miles it has on it. That is one of the many questions I wanted to ask Bill and Debbie on Saturday.

I always look for something new and different for this column, but unfortunately, the Atkinsons were not home. I did meet a couple they used to know in New York. They said they are from Goshen, N.Y., but weren't interested in being friendly. Of course, I was driving my old beat-up car.

Most people are prejudiced concerning people from New York. I have nothing but pleasant memories of New York, even the very high society like Jackie Kennedy Onassis and that mega star, Angela Lansbury, who were extremely friendly and gracious when I met them. I once encountered Angela Lansbury on a staircase in a big theatre in Manhattan when she was ready to star in a major theatre production, Sweeney Todd. I was laden down with about 20 costumes belonging to her co-star, and I asked her where his dressing room was. She grabbed about a big armload full of costumes and said, "Let me help you with these," and dragged me and all those costumes about a quarter of a mile through the huge Uris theatre to take me to the right dressing room. If anyone deserved to be snooty to a lowly worker, she would be the one.

And as far as Jackie, she was delighted to hear my memories of her mother Janet, a really glitter socialite of America who was a judge of a pony club event where I competed. She treated me like I was her own daughter and scolded me when she caught me using my teeth to pull a needle and thread through leather. She said, "If I ever catch you doing that again, I will slap you." She also conspired to fix me up with a cute young judge that I had a crush on.

Janet was not from New York, but she lived on a beautiful ocean-front farm in Newport, Rhode Island. Her daughter Jackie was living in Manhattan when I met her at a fox hunt event at the Hunt Club in New Jersey, where both she and my employers hunted. Those were the high fliers who left me with very fond memories.

I, like them, felt the same way about the ordinary working class, or even lower class like the bus driver, who, when I couldn't find my bus fare, just waved me on, and a taxi driver who picked me up in a questionable neighborhood, snatched me up into his safe cab, and gave me a good lecture, too. Even the gang on the street hanging out near my apartment building assured me that I "not need to be afraid when I come in late because," one said, "we will never let anything happen to you."

Gary assured me that if Bill and Debbie had been home instead of their out-of-town guests, they would have welcomed me. He also praised the Sunday afternoon barbecue that he and Sharon attended, as well as quite a few other neighbors from Legeer Road, including Olin and Ruth Bender, Jeff and Virginia Brenneman, and the Ron Bender family, all of Legeer Road, and Sharon Buckel's parents, Harold and Mabel Griffith of Friendsville. Bill's mother also recently purchased the next door home owned by Randy Buckel and wife.

All the new neighbors of the Atkinsons had a lovely time with good company and great food. Welcome the Atkinson family to Bittinger. They have two college-age daughters who used to show cattle. I don't know whether they had beef or dairy, or whether they have any plans to do any farming on "Buck Hill Farm." I know that I did not see any sign of a new barn or, for that matter, the old barn. It looks like it is gone, with not even an old silo to mark its place. I assume that Bill is more interested in deer hunting than doing much farming. But until I get a chance to talk with them, that is just a guess. Maybe I will get a chance this week.

You would be surprised what a lot of effort is required to get my columns for the week. For example, last week long after I finished the column, in fact it was already typed and e-mailed by my mother, I got a phone call from someone (I didn't get her name) who had news about the Get-Away Bible School at Cherry Glade. By the time I got the news, it was too late to get the information in to The Republican, as the week was almost up. But since I bemoan the lack of news from that part of the Bittinger community I decided I had better try to get the facts straight about it. Our Pastor Pat told me that the new name of the pastor of Cherry Glade is Barry Maust, so I looked up his phone number and got the story from his wife.

Unfortunately, I did not get the tip about a special music program to be held this coming Saturday evening at Glade Mennonite Church. This is the church on Accident-Bittinger Road between Foxtown Road and Rock Lodge Road. You can't miss the big yellow sign shaped like an electric guitar. The program will be at 6:30 p.m. on Sept. 1.

Another important event in the Amish-Mennonite church is coming up soon. I believe that it is Saturday, Sept. 14, and will be a program and bus tour of "The Forks," as this area used to be known and is about the history of Amish and Mennonite families in this part of the country. I did pick up a flier about it from our church vestibule on Sunday, and also Paul Yoder, Grantsville, called me and he promised to mail one to me. I hope I will get it soon, as I seem to have misplaced the one that I got from my church. So you will have to wait for more details about that event next week.

Other important news from Emmanuel Lutheran Church is that last weekend a synod-wide meeting titled "Mid-Size Congregational Transformation" was held in Fairmont, W.Va. Those attending from Emmanuel were Bill Hady, Bill Southerly, Ruth DiPaolo, Pete and Linda Buckel, Meredith and Rob Vagnetti, and Pastor Pat. Speaking of Linda Buckel, she was recently elected as president of the West Virginia-Western Maryland Synod's Women of the LCA. Quite an honor.

Another important female leader of the Lutheran Church of America, Ida Hakkarinen of the D.C. area will join Pastor Pat next Sunday. Ida is a member of the national council for LCA. She has been a good friend of Pastor Pat since 1989 when both attended a synod lay school in Gettysburg, Pa. Ida will deliver the sermon. You don't want to miss next Sunday's service. Communion will be celebrated, there will be Labor Day celebration, and a special sermon by a real mover and shaker of the national body of the Lutheran Church in America.

Patty Diehlman is anxiously awaiting the arrival of her son Luke, who plans to move down here with Patty and Steve from his father's house in New Hampshire. I guess Steve and Patty will have some new worries with a teenage boy in their household, but he plans to start college at GCC this fall. Hopefully his school work will keep him busy and out of trouble. Of course, his mother also plans to return to GCC again this fall. Between her new job as bus driver on the Wayne Collier run and her studies, she will be busy, and her little Claire is only days from her first day in pre-kindergarten at Accident Elementary. I got her a fun thing to take along on her first day on Wednesday, which is a Monarch caterpillar in a jar with, of course, a fresh stalk of milkweed. Her class can watch it turn into a chrysalis and then hatch into a full grown Monarch butterfly. Last week I was busy trying to find several caterpillars for Claire and maybe Mere's classroom.

Mere is lucky this year to be in the class of one of Caitlin's favorite teachers and a favorite former student of mine, too, Angela Bittinger Rush.

Last year Marci Glotfelty took a caterpillar to the Meyersdale Manor Nursing Home and one elderly lady just loved it, so I want to replace the one that flew away to Mexico last fall. I have not decided if I will give our Bittinger teachers, Mrs. Stanton and Mrs. Kolbe, a caterpillar, as I want those butterflies for my dolls. My daughter does not approve of that at all. "It is not fair to the caterpillars," she says. Yes, that is true, but something has to suffer for my art's sake.

Ruth DiPaolo was a dinner guest of Ken and Harriett on Sunday in celebration of her birthday. Marci and Rodney Glotfelty will be entertaining her for dinner on Tuesday night.

Dale Glotfelty has returned home from the hospital in Morgantown. He has to return daily this week for platelets.

Bill and Andrew Hady and Lenny and Torrey participated in the junior golf program at Oakland Golf Club on Sunday in the Father-Son Golf Scramble.

Lenny and Torrey Pohoisky and Landon Southerly attended the Pittsburgh Steelers-Detroit Lions exhibition game at the new Heinz Field on Saturday afternoon. The Steelers won the game, 20-0. They also attended the Pittsburgh Pirates-Houston Astros baseball game that night in the Pirates new stadium. The Pirates were victorious, 8-2.

Recent visitors of Ida Reckner were: Anna Renner, Thurmont; Lois Kolb and granddaughter, Accident; Wanda Zimmerman, Deer Park; and granddaughter Ginger Zimmerman, Frostburg; Lisa, Adam, and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg; Jodi Platter, Grantsville; and Bob Brenneman.

Jim and Donna Glotfelty were Sunday afternoon callers at the homes of Ken and Harriett Buckel, and Bill and Tina Buckel and family, near Grantsville. Bill is recuperating from recent back surgery.

Word has been received by relatives here of the recent death of Mary Lou (Hastings) Bender, wife of the late Owen Bender, following a lingering illness at her home in Ohio. The Benders were former residents of Garrett County.

Southern States Local Annual Meetings Slated

Eglon Farm Service Inc. will hold its annual membership meeting on Thursday, Sept. 6, at Maple Spring Church of the Brethren, Eglon, W.Va., beginning at 8:30 p.m., and the Southern States Oakland Cooperative will hold its meeting on Friday, Sept. 7, at Pleasant Valley Community Center, Joni Miller Road, Oakland, beginning at 8 p.m.

With the theme "Working to Make the Business of Farming Pay Better," the meeting will include reports on both local and company-wide operations, as well as the election of local board members and Farm Home Advisory Committee (FHAC) members. Retiring FHAC and board members also will be recognized.

Board nominees up for election include Donald Adams, Jeff Harsh, David Moran, and Joe Viola for the Eglon Farm Service and Carl Bachtel, W. Brooks Hamilton, Ray E. Miller, and Herbert H. Myers for the Oakland Cooperative.

Nominees for delegates to District E election meeting later in the year are Eugene Bachtel, Stanley Harsh, and Claude Winters for the Eglon Service.

"Making the business of farming pay better is an ongoing goal for Southern States because it's a cooperative owned by the producers it serves," noted Charlie Wood, vice president of government, member relations, and corporate communications. "The annual meeting is the best single opportunity to advise the membership on our progress toward that objective."

Founded in 1923, Southern States now has some 321,000 farmer members in a 22-state area extending from Maine to Louisiana. As one of the nation's largest agricultural cooperatives, the Richmond-based firm provides a range of farm inputs, including fertilizer, seed, livestock feed and pet food, animal health supplies, and petroleum products, as well as other items for the farm and home.

In addition, Southern States gins cotton, procures peanuts, and markets small grains, corn, soybeans, and fish. The cooperative has more than 1,250 retail outlets and had sales of $1.55 billion in its fiscal year ended June 30, 2000.

Mountain Top Saddle Club Hosts Final Horse Show Of 2001 Season

Photos by Holly Huxford

The final Mountain Top Saddle Club (MTSC) horse show for the year was held Sunday, Aug. 26. A number of competitors took part in the show and several awards were given. Mary Van Sickle and Jett Scootin' Blue, pictured above, came away with the blue ribbon and "high point" in the Hunter Division.

The MTSC, in operation for 19 years, hosts horse shows in the ring at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The ring, which is maintained by the MTSC, is open to members for practice on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Typically, MTSC hosts four horse shows each year. Points are given to placing members based on how many competitors are in each class. At the conclusion of each horse show, high-point ribbons are given to the winners in each division. High-point day awards at the horse shows do not require MTSC membership.

"The club promotes friendship, horsemanship, and horse shows for children and adults alike," said Holly Huxford, a spokesperson for MTSC. "Many adults competing now were introduced to horse shows by the club. From the large grins on Sunday, sometimes even in pouring rain, it's obvious that the up and coming new youngsters will be our future adult horse show competitors."

Huxford said the shows are often "family affairs," as parents and children both show their horses.

"It is rewarding to see the smiles, laughter, and comradeship at each show," she said. "The applause for every child competing, whether a ribbon is won or not, is very encouraging."

The saddle club will host its Year End Awards Banquet on Nov. 3.

USDA Starts Making Emergency Aid Payments

President Bush last week signed the Crop Year 2001 Agricultural Economic Assistance Act, clearing the way for a total of $5.5 billion in emergency aid to producers. Agriculture Department sources last week said the government would begin cutting checks as early as this week, with payments in producers' hands by Labor Day.

The package includes $4.62 billion in market loss assistance to eligible producers — the level is nearly 85 percent of the market loss payments producers received in 1999 and 2000.

Eligible oilseed producers will receive $423.5 million in assistance, while producers of specialty crops are eligible for $159.4 million. Peanut producers who received 2000 crop year peanut payments are eligible for $54.2 million in assistance, and wool and mohair producers will receive $16.9 million. Cottonseed ginners who received 2000 crop year payments are slated for $84.7 million, while $129 million has been earmarked for tobacco growers.

Grants totaling $10 million will be sent to the states to cover direct and indirect administrative costs related to the processing, transportation, and distribution of food through community food banks.

During the signing ceremony at his Crawford, Texas, ranch, Bush said the aid will come at a time when producers need it most. The president noted the importance farmers and ranchers play in the nation's economy and their key role in national security.

"We've got to make sure our ag economy stays strong and healthy," Bush said. "And this supplemental is a way to help do that."

In the Senate, Democrats pushed for $1.9 billion in additional emergency funds to bring the total package to $7.4 billion, but were forced to vote for the original package because of time restrictions and a veto threat from the White House.

Prior to leaving Washington, D.C., for the annual summer recess, Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Tom Harkin (D-Iowa) and Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle (D-S.D.) said they would work to get the additional emergency aid when the Senate returns next month.

Dry Weather Gives Farmers Excellent Week For Harvests

Last week was dry for Maryland farmers as they spent an average of 6.4 days in the fields, advancing activities such as harvesting fruits and vegetables. Peaches are 86 percent harvested, 8 percent ahead of last year at this time, and 5 percent ahead of the five-year average. Twenty percent of the apple crop is harvested, 4 percent ahead of both last year and the average. Tomato, cucumber, and sweet corn harvesting have progressed 15 percent, 7 percent, and 6 percent respectively from the previous week.

Farmers also took advantage of the dry weather to harvest fourth cutting of hay. Alfalfa hay, fourth cutting, is 40 percent complete, 14 percent ahead of last year, and 19 percent ahead of the five-year average. All other hay, fourth cutting, is currently 25 percent harvested, 11 percent ahead of last year and 17 percent ahead of schedule.

Topsoil and subsoil surpluses have decreased 15 percent and 4 percent respectively from the previous week due to the dry conditions. Topsoil moisture is rated 6 percent surplus, 75 percent adequate, 17 percent short, and 2 percent very short. Subsoil moisture is now 3 percent surplus, 77 percent adequate, 12 percent short, and 8 percent very short.

SHOW YOUR AGRICULTURAL PRIDE ON YOUR LICENSE PLATES, suggests the Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration. The MVA recently introduced a new plate to recognize the importance of the agricultural industry in the state. "This is a very visible way to support Maryland's farmers and the valuable contributions they make to our economy," commented Maryland Department of Agriculture Secretary Hagner Mister at the formal introduction of the plate, held on Aug. 21 in Glen Burnie. Locally, the agricultural community generates $22-24 million to Garrett County's economy, according to Brooks Hamilton, president of the Garrett County Farm Bureau. The new plate benefits the Maryland Agriculture Education Foundation, which was created in 1989 to improve awareness about Maryland's agricultural heritage through educational programs. The plate is available for passenger, for hire, light duty trucks, trailers, and multipurpose vehicles. The $20 fee for the plate is added to the annual registration fee, along with a $5 annual renewal fee. Vehicles with plates for individuals with disabilities or personalized plates may obtain modified agricultural plates. The tags are now available at full-service MVA offices and may be purchased in person or by U.S. mail.

Labor Day weekend will be the final opportunity to view the Volkmar Wentzel photography exhibition at the Aurora Community Building. The display of Preston County photographs spanning from the early 1900s to the 1970s will be open from noon to 7 p.m. today, Thursday, Aug. 30, through Monday, Sept. 3.

The 93 photos were primarily taken in the Union District of the county, which includes Aurora, Stemple Ridge, Eglon, Horse Shoe Run, and Hogback Ridge. The entire Wentzel collection has been given to the Aurora Area Historical Society, where it will be maintained in the society's archives.

Persons interested in purchasing a copy of a photograph from the display may contact Alice Penzo at 304-735-5471. Requests should be made by the exhibition's closing date of Sept. 3.

The Aurora Community Building renovation and the Wentzel exhibit were both community-wide efforts, according to Penzo. "Our many volunteers have included those who worked on the building renovation, built the ramp, built boxes on which the framed photos were hung, prepared the photos, or served as docents for the approximately 210 hours the display was open to the public," she said, adding that a great deal of financial support was also received.

The Monster Mash winner will claim a record $1,000, and the truck pull king will receive $250. For further entry information and rules for both contests, persons may call 1-888-210-8373.

Webster Assists Floyd Victims

Chad Webster, a ninth grade student and member of the Junior ROTC at Preston High School, recently completed missionary work during his spring break in Snow Hill, N.C. Webster joined a work team from a United Methodist Church in Greenbrier County, W.Va., that helped to construct and repair homes damaged by Hurricane Floyd in 1999.

The team, which consisted of 14 adults and 15 youths between the ages of 14 and 18, left for North Carolina on Easter Sunday. The members worked from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m for one week in Snow Hill doing a variety of construction jobs, such as repairing roofs. One of Webster's duties was to instruct the other team members on the best and easiest way to take shingles off a roof.

After returning from North Carolina and completing the school year at Preston High, Webster worked for Winters Painting and Construction during the summer.

He lives in Terra Alta, W.Va., with his mother and stepfather, Nanette and Jay Sowers, and his brother Bradley.

The trip was orginally organized by Webster's grandfather, Pastor Daniel Stemple, and his wife Elaine of Alderson, W.Va.

20th Mt. Grove Potato Festival Set For Sept. 8-9

The 20th annual Mt. Grove Potato Festival, sponsored each year by the Mt. Grove Volunteer Fire Department, is set for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8 and 9

Events get under way both days at 10 a.m. and will continue throughout the evening. Attractions planned during the two-day festival include live entertainment, cake walks, door prizes, a flea market, and craft shows. Concessions, including the VFD's "famous" steak subs, will be available for sale throughout the weekend.

Saturday's special events include a decorated cake contest, followed by the ever popular cake auction at 2 p.m. The top three prize-winning cakes, as well several others entered into the contest, are traditionally auctioned off and donated back to be sold again, offering festival-goers a lively, entertaining afternoon.

The 4th annual Mt. Top Cruisers Car Club Car Show, also slated for Saturday's potato festival activities, will feature antique and classic cars and trucks from the tri-state area.

Proceeds from the annual festival are used each year for the MGVFD's operating expenses. This event, according to a VFD spokesperson, is the organization's largest fundraiser of the year.

Plenty of free parking will be offered on the fire department's grounds, located on Rt. 219, between Silver Lake and Thomas, and there is no charge for admission to the festival or to the entertainment planned throughout the weekend.

For more information about any of the activities planned at this year's event, persons may call 304-735-5035 or 304-735-3043.

Mill Day To Be Held On Sept. 1

The fourth annual fund raiser for the Friends of Reckart's Mill (FORM) will be held Saturday, Sept. 1, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the mill, located near Cranesville, W.Va.

The scheduled activities for the event include tours of the historic mill, live music by J.C. and the Boys, a craft sale, door prizes, a 50/50 drawing, homemade desserts, and chances on various merchandise, including a golf package for two at Alpine Lake Resort.

All proceeds from the event will go to FORM's restoration of Reckart's Mill. The structure was built in 1865 by Henry Albright and has gone through many repairs and restorations over the years. FORM's ultimate goal is to completely restore the mill and return it to full operation.

For more information about the event or information about the mill, persons may call Terrie Hardesty at 304-789-2225 or 1-888-478-2324.
